Nerve Gas En Route To Ocean

Times News Services

RICHMOND, Ky. — A closely guarded freight train, loaded with potentially deadly nerve gas rockets, began its slow journey to the sea today from an army arsenal here.

A second 46-car train, carrying the same cargo and similarly protected by elaborate safety measures, was to leave Anniston, Ala., this afternoon.

Their destination, expected to be reached after 37-hour, 600-mile trips over classified routes, was the Sunny Point military terminal near Wilmington, N.C. The deteriorating Second World War rockets will be shipped from here to a point in the Atlantic Ocean 282 miles off Florida and dumped in 16,000 feet of water.

The trains together contain 418 vaults, concrete and steel jacketed, with 30 nerve gas rockets to the vault.

The army kept the routes secret but said the shipments would move through thinly populated areas. By highway, it is about 540 miles from Anniston and about 645 miles from Richmond to the North Carolina coast.

The army said there is no danger of leakage from the vaults.

Army chemical experts will accompany the shipments and their mechanical gas-leak dectors will be backed up by 12 rabbits and 12 pigeons, highly sensitive to gas.

Army spokesman said similar shipments in the future will be unnecessary because the army is developing a method of decomposing the gas at the military bases where it is stored.

CLAIM CITIES ON ROUTE

Congressional sources said the Anniston train will pass through the Georgia cities of Bremen, Griffin, Macon and Athens before angling up through the Carolinas to an ocean terminal at Sunny Point, N.C.

The train is to move no faster than 35 miles an hour.

Gov. Lester Maddox, of Georgia offered to ride atop the train to demonstrate his confidence in the army's safety precautions. The army said it had no orders permitting him aboard.

But Representative Tim Lee Carter (Rep. Ky.) says he will be on the Blue Grass Depot train until it leaves Kentucky "to help allay fear among the residents."

Dissent has been expressed by a number of persons, among them Florida Gov. Claude Kirk, three congressmen from his state and U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations.

Thant said disposal of the gas in international waters would violate a UN General

PLUMBERS REJECT MEDIATION OFFER

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. construction industry appears headed for another deadlock following rejection by a fifth union Sunday of settlement proposals made by a special mediator.

The plumber's union voted 90 per cent against accepting proposals by the mediator, deputy labor minister Bill Sands.

Other unions which have also rejected Sands' proposals are the bricklayers, laborers, heat and frost insulators and the tunnel and rock workers.

And Teamsters president Ed Lawson said that union's negotiating committee also is recommending that its members reject a settlement proposal of 19 per cent over two years on an average rate of $4.50 an hour.

Pickets Close Haney

Postal workers stayed off the job at a number of post offices in British Columbia today and threw picket lines around the tiny office at Haney where postmen have ignored union instructions to take rotating strike action.

The 25 Haney postal workers had consistently rebuffed union instructions to strike but today were prevented from going to work by the picket line.

Postmen were on strike today in the Vancouver, North and West Vancouver, Burnaby, Richmond and Delta, all in the Greater Vancouver area, and in Kamloops.

NORMAL HERE

It was business-as-usual in Victoria today, but Ken Stofer, public relations officer for the main post office, indicated local postal employees could be locked out Tuesday as a result of today's strike in Vancouver.

He said it all depends on whether there is enough mail available Tuesday to warrant sorting and delivering staffs.

Jim McCall, union strike coordinator for the lower B.C. Mainland, said Haney was the only post office in the country where workers had failed to support the strike. He said the union decided to take picket action following published reports that Haney workers were staying on the job.

CAT OUT OF BAG

He said that until the Haney rebellion became general knowledge, the union had looked upon it as an internal union problem to be dealt with following settlement of the national dispute.

He added that union members had decided to take the picketing action on their own after the Haney workers "blabbed to the newspapers,

Insurance Bill Showdown Seen

WINNIPEG (CP) — An amendment that could produce a key showdown vote on the NDP government's compulsory government automobile insurance bill went before the Manitoba legislature today.

The motion, introduced by Liberal House Leader Gordon Johnston, would allow private companies to sell basic coverage in competition with the proposed Manitoba Insurance Corp. (See also Page 2.)

It would mean a "free choice" insurance plan as opposed to the state monopoly on which the government is insisting.

Success of the amendment would kill the key principle of the bill and almost certainly lead to a general election.

Mr. Johnston introduced his amendment shortly after the house went into committee of the whole for clause-by-clause study of the bill.

Meantime, Premier Ed Schreyer gave notice of a number of government amendments to be considered later.

They included establishment of an advisory board of not fewer than five members, which would be consulted on details of the insurance scheme and on transitional assistance for those losing business or employment under the advent of the state-run plan.

Quebec Workers Forced to Return

QUEBEC (CP) — Construction workers began returning to their jobs today following the passage Saturday of tough legislation by the Quebec national assembly aimed at ending a province-wide strike.

Officials of the Confederation of National Trade Unions which represents most of the workers had recommended the return to work although CNTU President Marcel Pepin described the legislation as a "bludgeon law and a tomahawk law."

Renewed activity at large and small building projects throughout the provincial capital was reported early today.

The emergency legislation was presented Friday by Labor Minister Pierre Laporte at a special session of the national assembly called to deal with the strike.

Kidnappers Execute U.S. Aide in Uruguay

Times News Services

MONTEVIDEO — The Tupamaro guerrillas executed American police expert Daniel A. Mitrione because the Uruguayan government refused to release an estimated 150 political prisoners as ransom for him and two other kidnapped foreign officials.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that a second body had been found, but the police said nothing.

Mitrione's body was found today bound and gagged in a bloodstained stolen car parked on a city street. He had been shot twice in the head.

Radio Monte Carlo said the body also had a bandaged bullet wound in the chest. Mitrione was reported to have received such a wound when he was abducted 10 days ago.

The body of the 50-year-old father of nine children was found, with his hands chained together and his white hair dyed black, by a two-man police patrol searching for the stolen car.

Meanwhile, more than 5,000 troops and police searching for the three kidnapped men made more than 100 arrests. Those arrested included nine suspected members of the Tupamaro guerrillas, including their leader, and a doctor believed to have treated Mitrione, of Richmond, Ind., for his earlier bullet wound.

Local radio stations received several anonymous telephone calls telling of Mitrione's death shortly after noon Sunday, the time a Tupamaros communique had said the adviser would be killed if the government did not free all of its political prisoners.

The telephone callers also said Mitrione's execution would be followed by those of two other hostages: Brizilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide, 41, and Claude L. Fly, 65, an American agronomist employed by the Uruguayan government.

'PRAY FOR ME'

Fly's wife, in Montevideo, received a letter from her husband Sunday. He wrote: "Please don't worry. I am well. Pray for me and wait. Go home, they are feeding me. Help me please. Always my love, Claude."

In a post script, he added: "They have my glasses. I cannot read without my old pair, but they won't give them to me."

Mitrione and Dias Gomide were kidnapped July 31. Fly was lured from a laboratory Friday by men claiming to be bodyguards assigned by the government.

The Tupamaros, a leftist guerrilla group organized seven years ago, demanded the release of all political prisoners held by the government. President Jorge Pacheco Areco refused, saying the Tupamaros were "common criminals" and those held by the government were not political prisoners.

Pacheco Areco met with his 11 cabinet members and other top officials Sunday night and called a joint session of Congress today to suspend such individual rights as trial guarantees and habeas corpus.

REACTION ANGRY

Several congressmen proposed reinstatement of the death penalty, which was banned many years ago. There was also an unconfirmed report that a group of right-wing extremists calling themselves the "Death Squad," like the killer squads of police vigilantes in Brazil, had threatened reprisals against the families of suspected Tupamaros.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Adair broadcast an appeal for mercy 20 minutes before the noon deadline Sunday, saying the assassination of Mitrione "would be a high crime, not only against the traditions of Western society but also against humanity."

Manhunt Snares Tupamaro Chief

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — The Uruguayan government has derived one dividend from the search for kidnapped foreign officials. It has captured the leader of the Tupamaro guerillas sought for six years.

Raul Sendic, 45, was arrested Friday with a dozen other persons during the search for U.S. advisers Dan A. Mitrione, 50, and Claude L. Fly, 65, and Brazilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide, 41.

The rebels immediately threatened reprisals against the government, the diplomatic colony and security forces if harm comes to their "arrested companions."

Police believe the Tupamaro organization got its start among Socialist party organizers of a sugar workers union in northwestern Uruguay in the late 1950s. They later transferred their field of operations to Montevideo, the capital.

Extremists in Party Threaten Ulster PM

BELFAST (Reuters) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark, back from a Spanish vacation, faced threats today within his Unionist party to topple him from power in riot-torn Northern Ireland.

His first official engagement was scheduled for tonight when he planned to attend a meeting of his constituency association. It was believed to be preparing a proposal of no confidence.

He gave little indication of being worried when he talked to reporters Sunday night and sidestepped questions about possible resigning.

Only two hours before he arrived from Spain Sunday an explosion rocked Magherafelt, the constituency, 30 miles west of Belfast. It was the fifth major bomb blast during the weekend and was believed to be a studied welcome-home insult.

Peace Talk Arrangements Show Unexpected Progress

TEL AVIV (CP) — As the ceasefire along the Suez canal entered its third day today, Reuters news agency quoted Israeli sources as saying an unexpectedly rapid solution has been found to procedural arrangements for the proposed Middle East peace talks.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel planned flying Wednesday to New York to see Gunnar Jarring, the United Nations mediator charged with arranging direct negotiations with Egypt and Jordan, the sources said.

Jarring has been conferring in New York with Israeli and Arab envoys.

The sources said substantive issues dealing with future borders and the withdrawal of Israeli forces would come next, in Jarring's talks.

At a five-hour session Sunday, the Israeli cabinet heard a report from Lt. Gen. Yitzak Rabin, the Israeli ambassador in Washington, who was expected to return to the U.S. with Eban.

QUIET IN WEST

As the diplomatic tempo quickened, an Israeli army spokesman reported silence on the western front, with Egyptian forces along the canal observing the ceasefire which came into effect at midnight Friday night.

But Israeli troops facing Syria, Jordan and Lebanon engaged in clashes with Palestinian Arab guerrillas strongly opposed to the current peace bid.

Guerrilla attacks on villages near the Lebanese border led to the first retaliatory air raid Sunday by Israel across the frontier since the ceasefire. Lebanon is not included in the U.S. peace plan.

The targets attacked were on the southwestern slopes of Mount Hermon east of the Hasbani River.

Showdown Near For Manitoba NDP

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba legislature today entered clause-by-clause study of the NDP government's proposal to introduce compulsory government automobile insurance.

The bill moved into committee of the whole on a voice vote. The only audible dissenter was Liberal Democrat Larry Desjardins.

Committee study of the controversial bill started with a procedural wrangle. Liberal House Leader Gordon Johnston moved that the legislation not be proceeded with until a clause was added that would allow freedom of choice and competition.

Opposition Leader Walter Weir told the committee he believes more information is needed and moved that three members of the original auto insurance investigative committee be summoned before the whole legislature to give information.

This motion has the same intent as a Conservative motion defeated last Friday.

The auto insurance committee was headed by Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley but included members from outside the legislature.

The two independent members of the legislature then suggested further debate be withheld until promised government amendments can be brought before the house.

Gordon Beard, independent member for Churchill, suggested there should be an adjournment until the government amendments are printed and distributed to members.

After a lengthy procedural wrangle, the Weir motion was ruled out of order by committee chairman Russell Doern (NDP—Elmwood).

During the debate, Premier Ed Schreyer challenged anyone to find a precedent for such a motion either in the Manitoba lawbooks or in Ottawa.

Opposition Leader Weir challenged the chairman's ruling, which necessitated Speaker Ben Hanuschak being called in to put a voice vote before the whole legislature. The voice vote and subsequent standing vote was 34 to 22 in favor of Mr. Doern's ruling, with only the Conservative members voting against it.

In an off-shoot of the rotating strike situation, about 50 postal workers in Surrey municipality, south of Vancouver, staged a sit-down protest in the Surrey post office today in a dispute over handling of third-class mail and periodicals.

A post office spokesman said the dispute arose over efforts to bring handling of such mail in the Surrey post office into line with normal practice in other post offices.

In the east, rotating strikes had 956 employees off the job at 21 points in Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Dry Australians Turn to Prayer

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Prayers for rain were said Sunday in hundreds of churches in drought-stricken eastern Australia where sheep are being sold for less than the price of an ice cream cone.

Roman Catholic Bishop James Freeman called for prayers for rain every day this week in all the churches in his diocese as millions of sheep face death by starvation, and farmers face bankruptcy.

Prayers for rain were also said Sunday in many churches of other denominations, although there were no general directives.

Within hours of the start of the bishop's week of prayer, a few drops fell in his district of Armidale, New South Wales, and skies were overcast, But there still was no sign of a downpour and the week of steady rain that is needed.

Three million sheep are estimated to have died in the parched outback of the states of New South Wales, Queensland and South Australia.

NICKLE PER SHEEP

At Cleve in South Australia, sheep were sold last week for five cents a head.

At other sales in New South Wales, many sheep are going unsold and some graziers say they will have to shoot them to prevent them dying slowly in pain.

John D. Volger, who farms near Boonah, south eastern Queensland, said:

"The main object now is not to produce but to help our stock survive somehow."

Many farmers are hand-feeding stock although this is unlikely to last more than a few weeks, as reserves become depleted and cash runs out.

WOOL PRICE LOW

"It's just not economical to keep weak sheep alive," said a farmer at Moree, New South Wales. "With the price of wool down to its lowest for 22 years and no sign of the drought ending, some of us are giving up hope."

Many farmers have already walked off their mortgaged farms to seek jobs in the cities.

Drought has brought greatly increased risk of bushfires. In the Sydney metropolitan area alone, the daily average of fire outbreaks during July was 127 compared with 112 a day during November, 1968, when the most disastrous bushfires on record occurred.

"That was a hot summer" said a fire brigade officer. "This is still winter and already we are tackling more fires."

DILUTION IS HELP

The army contends that the ocean will render the gas harmless by dilution if salt water or pressure cracks the vaults.

The disposal plan was also criticized by consumer advicate Ralph Nader. He said the plan should not have been devised solely by the army, but should have been considered by a broad range of scientists.

A British delegation containing representatives from the Bahamas and Bermuda also was coming to the United States to review the plan, because of island fears of ocean contimination. The U.S. Embassy in London said the gas will not be buried at sea before Aug. 18.

About 1,446 nerve gas vaults were sunk in the Atlantic between June, 1967, and June, 1968.

The 418 containers hold 12,540 rockets which in turn contain nerve gas sopotent contain nerve gas so potent that one tiny drop can kill a said disposal must take place because the warheads are leaking. The rockets each contain 11 pounds of gas.

Murder Charged In Knife Death

Douglas Roy White, 35, of Campbell River, was charged today in Campbell River court with non-capital murder following the death Saturday of a 32-year-old Surrey man.

Larry Lowise Patenaude, of Surrey, died in hospital Saturday after he was stabbed in the stomach during a scuffle in a Campbell River house late Friday night, Campbell River RCMP said.

Immunity For Tate Witness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Linda Kasabian was granted immunity from prosecution in the Sharon Tate slayings today after Charles Manson's lawyer demanded but was denied a mistrial on grounds she "is lying."

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older said: "I believe that when a witness testifies under the conditions Mrs. Kasabian has in this case, she has immunity as a matter of law."

He added: "The people have presented the petition for immunity and I have signed it. The motion for a mistrial is denied."

Irving Kanarek, representing the shaggy-haired Manson, charged with murder in the seven killings along with three girls, argued that Mrs. Kasabian should have been granted immunity before she took the stand as the state's star witness. This, he said, would have prevented her from tailoring testimony to win immunity.

The immunity ruling came at the request of the defence, which said immunity might free Mrs. Kasabian to recant her testimony if she wilshed.

The petite, sandy-haired mother of two has spent 10 days telling her versions of the killings of Miss Tate and six others last August. She said she went to the murder scenes but harmed no one and stood outside as a lookout.

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, was charged with murder conspiracy with the other defendants but not brought to trial with them. She has said she once was a member of Manson's hippie-type "family" but fled in terror after the killings.

Chief prosecutor Aaron Stovitz told the judge the state postponed a formal immunity grant because "we fear for the safety of Linda Kasabian."

Stovitz also said the state hopes to bring her back as a witness in the trial of Charles (Tex) Watson, a defendant now fighting extradition from Texas.

It was not immediately known whether Mrs. Kasabian would soon leave the jail cell where she has been in custody since her arrest last December. Her lawyers said: "We'll have to give this some thought and discussion. We're not going to thrust her out into a crowd where she might not be safe."

MUST LINK OTHERS

Another issue is whether Mrs. Kasabian will be declared an accomplice. Such a ruling could affect the fate of Manson, 35, and defendants Susan Atkins, 21, Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22.

California law says a defendant can't be convicted solely on the testimony of an accomplice. But, says one prosecutor in the Tate case, "corroborating evidence need not be strong enough to convict. It must tie each person into the case."

To provide such corroborating evidence, the prosecution plans to call at least 40 witnesses.

The judge can leave the complicity decision to the jury or make it himself. If he decides on the basis of her testimony that Mrs. Kasabian was an accomplice, he may instruct the jurors that they can't convict the four defendants on Mrs. Kasabian's testimony alone.

Mrs. Kasabian has testified that after the Tate slayings she disposed of knives and bloody clothes worn by the killers but that Manson had a strange power which made her obey his orders.

nine children and in my own name, I ask you to free him so that he can return to his home and his friends."

The Brazilian government sent an air force plane Sunday to bring 59 wives and children of Brazilian embassy officials back to Brazil. Among them were five of the kidnapped consul's six children.

Mitrione's wife Henrietta, pale and haggard after her 10-day ordeal, had been waiting for news at her suburban home with five of her children aged from 6 to 26.

Mitrione apparently was killed more than 12 hours after the Sunday noon deadline set by the Tupamaros for his execution.

Local residents in the area where his body was found reported hearing shots this morning, a police spokesman said.

Mitrione was sent to Montevideo by the U.S. Agency for International Development as an adviser to the Uruguayan police. Tupamaro communiques accused him of being a spy for the U.S. government and said he had admitted "providing lethal weapons to repress the Uruguayan people."

The Tupamaros have said nothing about what they plan to do with their other captives.

Mitrione was the latest victim of the wave of political kidnappings which have claimed the lives of the West German Ambassador in Guatemala and a former president of Argentina.

May 29, former Argentine president Pedro Auegenio Aramburu was snatched from his home in Buenos Aires. July 16, it was announced he had been murdered by his guerrilla captors.

NIXON URGES LAND POLICY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today sent Congress a report on the state of the environment urging the development of a national land-use policy.

The report, prepared by the Council of Environmental Quality, may well be a preview of things to come, although too late for legislative action this year.

It recommends federal encouragement of planned and controlled land development, protecting areas of scenic and recreational value.

Economic incentives emerge throughout the wide-ranging report as one of the major tools to be used by the federal government in attacking environmental problems.

The costs of cleaning up environmental pollution, it emphasizes, must be allocated throughout society in the prices charged for products and services.

The report warns that man's activities are already altering the world's climate in ways that could bring on a catastrophe.

Tokyo Waters Japan's Worst

TOKYO (AP) — The 11.3 million inhabitants of Tokyo, already plagued by air pollution, awoke today to the uncomfortable knowledge that Tokyo Bay is fouler than any river in Japan.

Scientists completing a survey of the bay described it as a pool of stinking water. They found it is 10 times more polluted than the dirtiest city rivers.

In Suruga Bay, at the foot of Mount Fuji, a fleet of 144 fishing boats cruised the polluted waters Sunday in protest against threatened extinction of once-rich fishing grounds. They were joined by more than 4,000 persons on shore who demanded a halt in the discharge of wastes from paper plants.

A subsequent rally decided to bring suit against the four major paper companies involved, as well as the governor of Shizuoka perfecture, for violation of port regulation.

Afterwards, joined by 50 extremist youths, the fishermen marched on the plants, shook the gates threw stones into the compounds.

Pollution of the environment, a by-product of Japan's surging industrial boom, suddenly has become a major political issue.

The Japanese Socialist party has drawn up a program it wants achieved by 1985. Prime Minister Eisaku Sato has been named head of a committee to grapple with the problem.

Communists Attack Above Phnom Penh

From AP-Reuters

PHNOM PENH (CP) — One Communist attack was reported four miles north of Phnom Penm today, while other Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces hit Saang, 24 miles south of the Cambodian capital, for the second straight day.

In South Vietnam, 10 Americans were killed and 41 wounded in two ground attacks, mine and booby trap incidents, and two aircraft crashes.

The attack just north of Phnom Penh appeared to be only a minor skirmish, on an outpost at Prek Leap on the Mekong River. A government spokesman said the attackers were driven off with the help of naval boats on the river. But the attack, coupled with another Friday at Prek Luong, slightly less than five miles from Phnom Penh, indicated that the enemy has moved within rocket and artillery range of the capital.

BUILD UP BASE

The spokesman said Communist concentrations around Phnom Penh were not as large as they were a month ago, but he said Communist strength was increasingly steadily. For the moment, however, there was no solid indication that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were about to launch an offensive against the city.

The spokesman claimed 10 Communists were killed at Saang and said fighting continued there today. The district capital on the Bassac River, has been hit repeatedly since it is on one of the main Communist infiltration routes from Vietnam to the base camp area the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are building up near the Kiri Rom plateau.

New fighting also was reported at Kiri Rom, 55 miles youthwest of Phnom Penh. The Cambodian command said a large government patrol was ambushed and suffered heavy casualties, with five killed and 39 wounded. He said the Communists left 39 bodies on the battlefield.

Missing Time magazine correspondent Robert Anson was reported alive and well.

A Cambodian University professor, who was held by the Communists in the same area as Anson after the correspondent was captured near Skoun Aug. 3, said he saw Anson whose only complaint was that he was being badly bitten by bugs.

Most of the action in South Vietnam was reported in the northern provinces.

Court Corrects 'Injustice'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The transfer of two Indian youths from juvenile court to adult court and the sentence of one of them to a year in jail was quashed in Supreme Court chambers Friday.

Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins found bias and denial of natural justice in the case of Vernon James Wilson, 16, and Murray Dwight Wilson, 17.

They were charged last May with breaking and entering a bowling alley at Ocean Falls, B.C.

Family and Children's Court Judge J. V. B. Lind ruled at the time that the two boys be transferred to adult court. Then sitting as a provincial court judge, Lind accepted a plea of guilty from Vernon Wilson and sentenced him to a year. The case of Murray Wilson was put over.

Mr. Justice Kirke Smith pointed out that neither boy was represented by counsel when transferred to adult court and he called it "the most serious miscarriage of justice I have ever seen while at the bar or on the bench of this province."

U.S. Judicial System 'Like 1900 Merchant'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger proposed today creation of a council representing all branches of the federal government to bring the U.S. court system up to date.

"In a supermarket age," he said, "we are like a merchant trying to operate a cracker barrel corner grocery store with the methods and equipment of 1900."

In his first state-of-the-judiciary message to the American Bar Association, Burger said the courts need more money, judges and trained administrators and a streamlining of their trial and appeals processes to retain public confidence.

He questioned the priorities of a nation that spends $200 million to develop the C-58 airplane and $128 million on its federal judicial system.

For at least 50 years, he said, the federal court system has had steadily increasing burdens.

"Some of this," he said, "is because of new laws and decisions and some because of a tendency that is unique in America to look to the courts to solve all problems."

Burger said "the public may well be called upon to pay something more for the federal judicial system to increase its productivity."

RECOMMENDS COUNCIL

He told the lawyers and judges they should give urgent consideration to asking Congress to create a new judiciary council which would report to all three branches of the federal government on a wide range of matters affecting federal courts.

For example, he said, it could report on caseloads in particular districts, propose creation of temporary judgeships to meet urgent situations and study the present juridsiction of federal courts.

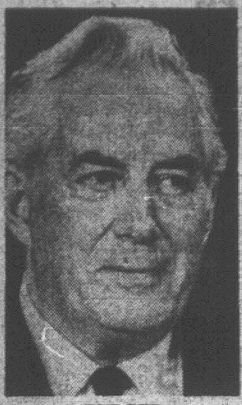
Burger said the council could have six members, with two appointed by the president, two by Congress and two by the U.S. Judicial Conference, which he heads.

"People speak glibly of putting all the problems of pollution, of crowded cities, of consumer class actions and others in the federal courts," he said. "We should look more to state courts familiar with local conditions and local problems."

The chief justice, whose address was broadcast and telecast, said there is a widespread public complaint that the present system of criminal justice does not deter criminal conduct.

"That is correct," he said, "so far as the crimes which trouble most Americans today. . . . If ever the law is to have genuine deterent effect on the criminal conduct giving us immediate concern, we must make some drastic changes.

"The most simple and most obvious remedy is to give the courts the manpower and tools, including the prosecutors and defence lawyers, to try criminal cases within 60 days after indictment. . . . I predict it would sharply reduce the crime rate."



BURGER

'Zedbroid' Born

WARSAW (Reuters) — A Polish zoo has successfully crossed a zebra with an ass, producing a tiny striped animal with donkey's ears, the Warsaw newspaper Express Weiczerny says. It shows a picture of the animal standing barely as high as the zoo director's three-year-old daughter. The newspaper calls the animal a "zedbroid."

SAANICH ISSUES BUS PETITIONS

Saanich municipal council has made available a number of petitions for people opposed to discontinuance of bus service to parts of the peninsula.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines announced last week it has applied to the Public Utilities Commission for permission to discontinue three routes, Sidney and Deep Cove, West Saanich and Cordova Bay.

Copies of the petition, which will be sent to the superintendent of Motor Carriers of the PUC, are available at the clerk's office in Saanich municipal hall, Royal Oak Pharmacy, Cordova Bay Super-Valu, Prospect Lake General Store, and Cunningham's Service Station, 5485 Pat Bay Highway.

Protesters will have until Thursday to sign them.

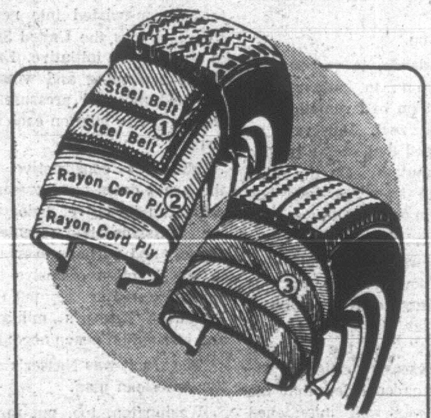
A Tire So Safe, So Strong It Could Outlast Your Car
Radial
Simpsons Sears Allstate

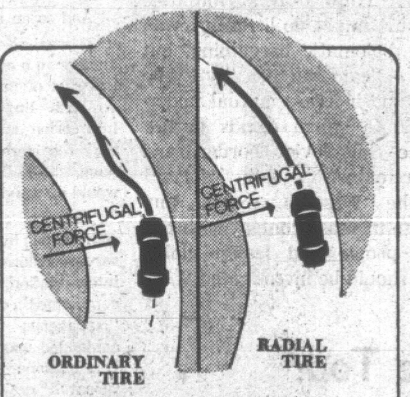
Steel-Belted Radial

This tire gives you better performance and greater safety than any other tire made to-day.
We're making a strong claim. And it's backed up with a tire built with the strength of steel. The Allstate Radial is a new idea in tire design . . . so safe and so nearly indestructible that they will probably be the last tires you install on your car.



Radials Are DIFFERENT

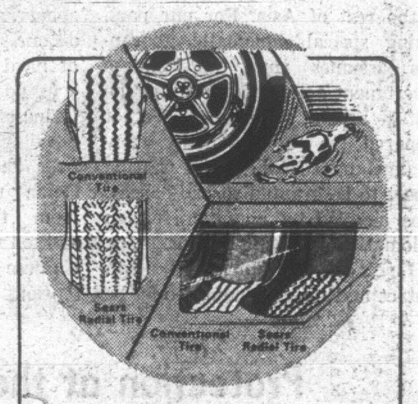
This revolutionary, new Sears Allstate radial tire keeps the tread on the pavement. Steel cord belts (1) keep the tread rigid and rayon plies in the carcass. (2) run rim to rim for important side-wall flexibility. When these tires flex, the tread stays flat on the road. In conventional tires all the reinforcing is in the (3) carcass. The tread squirms and lifts off the pavement as the side-walls flex. The Sears Allstate radial tire is built differently to perform better.



Performance... PLUS

Sears Allstate Radials take curves like a train on tracks. The steel braced tread stays in full contact with the road, while the sidewalls take up the stress of centrifugal force. Result—effortless, controlled cornering. Cross winds also have no effect on your car.

Because the steel belts prevent tread distortion, Allstate Radials last more than twice as many miles as ordinary tires. Moreover, this absence of distortion reduces rolling resistance within the tire and results in better fuel economy . . . as much as 10% better.



Safety... PLUS

Sears Allstate radial tires run up to 25% cooler than conventional tires for high-speed safety—because there's virtually no tread squirm. And without squirm your tires stay squarely on the road for better traction, positive steering and safer stops. The two steel cord belts resist cuts and punctures mile after mile. They even hold the tread grooves open for a claw-like grip especially on slippery rain-soaked roads.

History in the Making

THE NEW NON-AGGRESSION pact between West Germany and the Soviet Union, if ratified as expected by the two governments, will be an historic document which could herald a new era in Europe. European history has a sorry record of international agreements which when most needed were not honored. But even if future events should cause a similar rejection of the latest Bonn-Moscow pact, there can be do doubt that the preliminary agreement to the pact last week indicated a much improved international climate in Europe and an apparently sincere intention on the part of both signatories to create a new environment in which peace will predominate.

Bonn's Foreign Minister Scheel said "the treaty will help relax tensions"; Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko saw it as fostering "the interests of further co-operation between our countries," and contributing to European security.

It is only necessary to recall the state of East-West relations a few years ago to recognize the great progress that has been made in attaining the conditions in which such a pact could be acceptable. That fact rears above even the important details of the agreement: that the document could have been negotiated at all. Besides agreeing to renounce aggression against each other, the two nations accept as permanent the post-war borders of Europe. Certain considerations regarding Berlin have been conceded by Russia, although these have not yet been made public and must be approved by Britain, Russia, the United States and France before the pact can be completed.

It is significant that West Germany, in an accompanying letter, reserves the right to work through peaceful means to achieve German unity — that is, with East Germany — and that Moscow is willing to accept this provision. It may be a hollow one in some ways, but it embodies a right which no West German government could afford, politically or otherwise, to abdicate.

The importance of the treaty to the world lies in the fact that it constitutes an attempt to place relations between West Germany and the Soviet Union on a new plane. This can have far-reaching implications for peace; it may also have very important effects in other international areas — NATO-Warsaw Pact relations, for instance, or in future trade.

A suggestion made abroad, while the preliminary talks were proceeding, that Bonn might be selling out NATO in its efforts to achieve the non-aggression agreement with Moscow, was strongly denounced by the Sunday Telegraph of London. This journal called such a charge "invidious and unjust," and pointed out that West Germany had kept in meticulously close touch with its Western allies at every stage of the talks.

West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt and his minister have carried to fruition an imaginative and statesmanlike policy. The Kremlin has shown a promising disposition to co-operate. This could have far-reaching effects in our era, and most of them should be good.

A Cultural Approach to China

CANADA AND CHINA HAVE been discussing an exchange of diplomats for more than a year but some of the remaining obstacles appear as wide as the Pacific Ocean. Peking demands that Canada indicate at least tacit support for the Communist government's hegemony over all of China, including Taiwan. And Canada wants a guarantee that our diplomats will not be subject to harassment and abuse.

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson, formerly a member of the Department of External Affairs in Hong Kong, feels that both demands are highly unrealistic. Taking sides in the Taipei - Peking feud would only hurt our credibility in the rest of Asia. For our part, asking special diplomatic guarantees assumes that the Chinese government acted incorrectly in the past — a point the Chinese are not prepared to admit under any circumstances. Nor should Canada expect to be granted special concessions enjoyed by no other foreign diplomatic missions in Peking.

Increased Chinese-Canadian contact and understanding could be enhanced, according to Mr. Anderson, in many non-diplomatic areas. At present there is an exchange of journalists, and in the past university professors from both countries have traded podiums. Using these precedents, it might be possible to expand the programs to include eventually summer student tours. Australia and New Zealand, countries now involved in the Vietnam War and opposed to the recognition of the Chinese government, have sent up to 100 of their young people to China for three weeks each year.

To date Canada has made few overtures to the Chinese government outside the diplomatic sphere. A cultural-social initiative on our part might do little in terms of hard diplomatic bargaining, but it would indicate our sincerity to the Chinese and increase mutual understanding. As storm clouds gather over the Sino-Soviet border, and China remains virtually isolated from the Western world, any method to increase contact with the Chinese people and lessen global tensions should be investigated.

Protection at the Top?

A STATEMENT ISSUED BY Raymond Marcellin, French Minister of the Interior, says that in the fight against the international traffic in narcotics "there exists the fullest co-operation between American and French governments." It adds that "the Attorney-General of the United States and the French Minister of the Interior have expressed their satisfaction about the efficiency of the measures taken jointly in the interests of both countries."

The American attorney-general and the French minister may be satisfied. Tough-talking, anti-narcotics crusader Judge Samuel Leibowitz, is not. The outspoken American legal figure who blames the narcotics racket for the deaths of hundreds of young citizens, has told the public, via television, why.

He says that more than half of the illegal heroin coming into the United States is prepared in Marseilles from raw material provided by Turkey. American and French authorities work together to try to block the flow. Their work leads them to the back alleys of Marseilles in search of the factory where the narcotic is processed — and they cannot find it. He does not fault the police or the good people of France in their efforts. But he wants to know why it is apparently impossible to come to grips with the persons engaged in the manufacture of a substance which is killing young addicts in his country.

The judge would go to the extreme of calling for a boycott against French imports until sufficient effort is expended in France to track down and eliminate the source of supply. He suggests Mafia connections.

That procedure might be ineffective, but it does indicate an essential course — elimination of the supply at its source. And Judge Leibowitz points the finger where it should be pointed — not at the small fry but at the people on top.

Linguistically, Love Will Find a Way

Western

THE Public Service Commission, in abandoning its love bug, offers the curious explanation that "its scientific usefulness has now been destroyed." Who recruited the bug in the first place is none too clear. The commission, in a distinctly huffy recent statement, claims that it had not even heard of it until attention was aroused by recent newspaper publicity. This is odd because the bug (identified by the public service alliance as Mr. Pelletier's bug) has been busily at work since last April.

In any case, it is well known that language has become a key to promotion in the civil service and it occured to someone that motivation is an important key to the mastery of a second language. This seems incontrovertible. Cold cash being considered a reasonably strong motive in most fields, there is a certain logic in the position emphatically stated by the PSAC: "We say that simple desire to be promoted ought to be enough justification to be allowed to take French courses."

Questions

A quite different idea might be drawn (and was in fact drawn) from the questionnaire scientifically developed by industrious researchers for the benefit of eager, prospective language students. This was addressed to attitudes and required positive or negative expressions of opinion on such interesting questions as:

"Do you find French-Canadian handsome or ugly? Honest or Dishonest? Or somewhere in between?"

Or (agree or disagree): "The French-Canadian way of life seems crude when compared to the English-Canadian way." . . . "compared to English Canadians, French Canadians are unimaginative people."

And so on and on.

It was also possible, in response to another question, to indicate that thoughts of promotion had something to do with linguistic zeal. However, an impression developed that such a motive was considered unworthy. On the other hand a small bite from the love bug would do wonders in official Ottawa.

After a certain amount of angry comments by newspapers and civil service groups, it now develops that this interpretation was erroneous. The matter complained of, far from being an "outrageous insult" as the alliance contended was a research project. "The commissioners have concluded that the research project was well intentioned and could have been potentially useful in validating or invalidating certain learning hypotheses, which they have been assured was the sole purpose of the study."

Love, according to earlier research, makes the world go round. Love, according to the theory of B and B times, was to do the same thing for French grammar and conversation.

But the problem is to distinguish true love from mere transient affection. In the present atmosphere of Ottawa, only the most backward civil servant, one would suppose, could fail to sense the approved answers to the questions posed. There was even wild surmise that the questionnaire, though nominally concerned with attitudes, was in fact a simple IQ Test, failure in which would merit instant dismissal if not deportation from these shores.

Whatever the truth of matters, the statement by the public service commission is a clear indication that love for the moment at least, is being ejected from Ottawa. Let scholars at Lake Couchiching deal with it. The Alliance, in welcoming this news, says that the situation has been defused. This seems a rather dismal ending considering all that has been written on the subject.

The commission is in no doubt that the newspapers, as usual are to blame. But for them the love bug would still be at work with incalculable results. "It is unfortunate," observes the statement, "that attitude surveys and motivation research are still capable of misrepresentation and misinterpretation."

Such great projects, however, are seldom dropped for long. There are at least two maxims which should be encouraging to Commissioner Carson—or is it Mr. Pelletier? The course of true love never did run smooth. And love will find a way. Especially in these B and B times.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

A Salutary Show of Big Power Muscle

Frye

THE striking fact about current Mideast peace moves is that the two great powers — the United States and the Soviet Union — have joined in knocking Arab and Israeli heads together. Both Washington and Moscow have pressured their respective clients toward negotiations and away from reliance on force. Great-power willingness to do some joint head-knocking has long been the recognized pre-condition for progress toward a Mideast peace. The United States has long been ready. Now, at least for one brief moment, the Soviet Union has joined the ball game.

Neither the Arabs nor Israel wanted to be arm-twisted into negotiations on the conditions the United States outlined in its June 19 initiative. Each has been busily squirming and wrestling to cast off the unwanted pressure. But so far, the big-power grip on each side has held firm.

Moscow's constructive influence on the Arabs dates from presentation of the American initiative. Prior to that time, the Russians had seemed ready to support and perhaps even to participate in an Egyptian offensive into occupied Sinai. Thereafter they put the brakes on President Nasser's military ambitons and insisted on peace negotiations.

The result was Nasser's acceptance of the American plan.

Washington, too, put major pressure on Israel to reduce her emphasis on power and territory as a source of security, and negotiate on terms acceptable to the other side.

Beginning in April, the United States insisted to Israel that when and if there is a peace treaty, it must include virtually total Israeli withdrawal from territory occupied in 1967.

Israel found this an exceedingly difficult pill to swallow; but eventually — though making every effort to disguise the act — she did agree to negotiate on this basis. In layman's language, she agreed to put near-total withdrawal up for sale at the bargaining table.

Without American pressure for such withdrawal, there could not have been a Soviet veto of an Egyptian crossing of the Suez Canal. Without Israeli acquiescence, there could not have been any negotiations.

Both great powers thus played a critical role. It was not a dress rehearsal for an imposed peace that; would be a project of much greater magnitude. But it was the kind of tough-sinewed big-power diplomacy which independent observers have long hoped for.

Price Paid

Both the Russians and Americans have paid a price in damage to relations with their clients.

Israel, disturbed by the American demands and torn by domestic political upheaval, has extracted from Washington extensive reassurances for the possible future. Whether Moscow has also given Nasser promisory notes remains to be seen.

The Russians have been at least momentarily estranged from certain of their more extreme clients, notably Iraq, Syria and Algeria. Red China's vigorous effort to move in and exploit the opening is a measure of its potential significance.

A major side effect of Soviet diplomacy is that the Palestinian Arab guerrillas are now isolated both from the moderate-Arab Establishment and from Moscow.

The guerrillas' political clout is being downgraded. Observers who thought the Palestinians could dictate, or at least veto, acts of Nasser and King Hussein have been proved wrong. Forced to choose between the commandos and the Russians, Nasser chose Moscow.

The full score, of course, is not yet in. The commandos may yet be able to sabotage a cease-fire by raiding Israel and provoking reprisals which, in turn, will involve the regular Arab armies. But all sides are aware of this possibility, and all but the guerrillas will seek to minimize the peril.

Barring accidents, the principal focus of peace-making attention now will shift from the Big Four, which have dominated the scene for 16 months, to meetings in which the Arabs and Israel, through UN mediator Gunnar V. Jarring, will try to hammer out their own settlement.

This is what Israel has long wished. It means that the Soviet Union's bargaining power is being moved one step away from the negotiating table, toward the background. The Arabs are fighting this development, but it seems likely to stick.

Israel has also obtained a second commodity of great long-range importance: a formal acknowledgment from Egypt and Jordan that the objective of negotiations is de jure co-existence—this is, legal acceptance of a state of Israel.

The Arabs in turn have obtained from Israel a statement, however veiled and qualified for domestic consumption, that virtually total withdrawal from territory occupied in 1967 is negotiable at the bargaining table.

Equally critical in Arab eyes, they are getting a procedure for negotiation which does not involve automatic recognition of Israel at the outset, or any other form of unacceptable humiliation. Direct face-to-face peace talks could, in their view, have involved both these things.

The whole undertaking is a good compromise. While negotiations are not the same thing as peace — as the world has learned at Paris — they are a great deal. There has been nothing of the sort, except armistice talks, since foundation of the state of Israel.

The trick will be to keep the project on the rails.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"IF THEY EVER GIVE MALE NAMES TO HURRICANES, I HAVE THE PERFECT ONE FOR 'D'."

Looking Back

From the Times of August 10, 1910:

The East is beginning to take notice of the rapid growth in the West. Recognition of this fact is not invariably appreciation. In some quarters it takes the form of apprehension. Quebec fears an addition of 200,000 a year to the population west of Lake Superior will mean ultimate political domination of Canada by that region.

Why that phase of the matter should create apprehension is not quite clear to the minds of the people of the West.

Central Saanich Trailers

I have read with utter astonishment that our Mayor, speaking on behalf of the Council and people of Central Saanich has welcomed with open arms and given his blessing to the establishment of the first trailer park and camping site in Central Saanich!

Three long years ago I foresaw the need and necessity for Central Saanich to provide accommodation for the influx of tourists that are anxious to spend both their time and money in "The land of plenty". But instead of appreciation and approval, I have received nothing but roadblocks, disapproval and negation of the whole idea. And it is therefore a shock to discover that this particular project has been approved in principle for at least a year with District 63 School Board actively participating.

I am not unaware that the first trailer park in Central Saanich is on land administered by the Federal Government, and as such, is not subject to the by-laws of any municipality, but I am surely justified in supposing that our Mayor would not give his (and our) approval and blessing to any project that did not conform to the rules and regulations of our municipality. Therefore I feel that it is not unreasonable to assume that the site has also: The blessing of . . .

2. The Metropolitan Board of Health regarding the percolation tests and sanitary facilities.

3. The standards of the Municipaity in regard to:
   a. Public access roads.
   b. Buffer zones.
   c. Number of sites per acre.
   d. Number of successive days any tourists may stay.
   e. Cement pads.

Since there has been no public hearing on this matter, as there must be for any other such application, I feel that the participation of our Mayor at the opening ceremonies of this trailer park indicates that all the requirements have been met. I feel it is the duty of the Mayor and Council of Central Saanich to assure the residents, and in particular those who have applications pending, that such is the case, and if not, an adequate explanation should be forthcoming without delay. — Mrs. G. Y. Kirkpatrick, 1948 Keating Cross Road.

Why buy American?

It is with concern that I, a former Canadian, read of Mr. Eric Kierans' desire to see the pending contract for a Canadian communications satellite awarded to Hughes Aircraft Company of California.

I would like to present the following points for consideration in this connection:

1. The U.S. policy in awarding contracts in this country (I have worked for years for a prominent heavy construction contractor) is to use "MADE IN U.S.A." at ANY COST — it is usually a part of the specifications.

2. Why should Canada subsidize American industry at the expense of her own people, particularly at this time, when unemployment rates are at a high level, and are caused, in many instances, by policies originating in the U.S.?

3. The jobs created would more than offset, through cash flowing back into the Canadian economy, the additional cost of the Canadian-made product.

It is an acknowledged fact that the Canadian economy is highly dependent upon the whim of the U.S. — why encourage this situation when an alternative is available? — Mrs. Milton T. Bard, 2045 9th Ave., San Francisco.

In Sunny Greece, a Mix of Tourism and Torture

Composer Mikis Theodorakis, who wrote the musical scores for the movies Zorba the Greek and Z, was released from prison by the ruling junta in Greece this spring. He was later interviewed by Tony Summers of the British Broadcasting Corporation. This portion of the interview was subsequently published in the BBC magazine, The Listener.

THEODORAKIS

Easter was just coming up. The Greek people wanted something.

Three hundred people freed from prison isn't many when there are 2,000 who have been imprisoned for three years without judgment. Some people have been in prison for 19 years already — old people, sick people.

International opinion, European opinion, wanted something too. So too did the Council of Europe. Perhaps the regime believed that with such a spectacular gesture, the Council of Europe would also make a spectacular gesture, but it didn't come off.

Are there any special memories of life in Oropos Jail that you can tell us?

It's as if I was still in Oropos. It all happened so suddenly, I wasn't prepared psychologically.

Every afternoon, we stood on the seashore and threw bread into the water. Then the seagulls came in thousands from all the islands. That was our contact with liberty.

It wasn't too bad there. I had my little home, my papers. There were so many household chores, cleaning, cooking . . . They tried to turn us into lazy people, but we worked all the same.

I wrote and I studied Byzantine music. We formed a choir. The meetings were delightful. The time passed.

You wrote a lot of music while you were in prison, and the score for 'Z'. How did you manage it and how did you get it out?

That's a prison secret. I did Z while I was under house arrest at Zatuna. Of course, it was very difficult to get anything out of there. I had 16 policemen with two officers — 18 persons, always around the house, with spotlights at night. I wasn't allowed to have any contact with anyone. I was always within the four walls.

From others now serving long sentences we've heard horrific tales of torture in prison. Did you also suffer ill-treatment in spite of your illness?

No, I underwent my torture in Greece in 1948, and I was ill for ten years after that. That was in Macronissos. This time I was pretty well-known: people like that are killed straight away or left alone.

Of course, there's the psychological type of torture. My own brand of torture was, first of all, my arrest. I was hiding behind a piano for two hours while they looked for me. Just like a little mouse or like a little bird, if you like. I could see the police, like wolves all around me.

When I was finally caught, at three in the morning, I was trembling all over with fear. They took all my clothes, they tied my hands. I felt sure that as I was caught living in hiding, with no one knowing where I was, they would kill me on the spot because that's the best way to get rid of you. They have done it to others. I just wondered how they would kill me.

I was naked. I asked for a pair of trousers. And then I was taken outside. The house was on a little hill, north-west of Athens in a place called Haidari. It was the last house on the hill and then there was a pine wood. I was taken to the wood and I thought I was going to be killed on the spot, and I even felt relieved.

Then someone said: 'We are going to kill you, what do you feel?' I answered: 'I feel Greek.' Then I was taken off in my own car. All the men were carrying coshes. They wanted to hit me, but they apparently had orders not to maltreat me, although one of them seemed to get rather excited by it all, like a gorilla might get excited, and he did try to hit me.

They put a sort of hood over my head, and that was a torment, too, because I didn't know where I was being taken. Then I thought: well, they're not going to kill me just like that. Perhaps they're going to torture me first. But what sort of torture?

Then I was going up some stairs and I was sure they were going to throw me off a balcony: 'killed while escaping'—that's classic. But no, the hood was removed and someone said: 'Hello, Mikis, we've tired ourselves out chasing after you. You are tired, too. Now you are going to have a rest.'

Then started the torture of complete isolation. You feel terribly cut off from the outside world. You lie in a cell, half-naked, on the concrete floor. They had taken my shoes. I had grown a beard, because I'd hoped to escape disguised as a tourist. I was dirty.

There were four policemen with me day and night. Even in the lavatory, everywhere. I started to forget the faces of my friends and colleagues. I stayed like that for 75 days and nights.

Then there came a moment when I was sure that they were going to come and get me to execute me. So when I was given a pencil and some paper, after a fortnight, I wrote a series of poems to get through the psychological block. I wrote something called Le Soleil et Le Temps. I did 32 poems in that place and set them to music.

But the really bad time started when I was taken from that cell to another one, situated right below the famous terrace in Averof Jail where tortures took place day and night. Eventually, at about 11 o'clock one evening, I heard footsteps. I had a cellmate. He knew what was going on upstairs. He told me they were preparing the instruments.

We heard the escort party arrive. Then silence. Then suddenly you heard beatings and screams, and you count: one, two . . . 100 . . . 200. Then you hear someone being picked up. It's over. Every morning and every evening it's like that. You hear the cries of men, of women.

And because right across the road there was a maternity clinic you could also hear the screams of women in labor. The whole world seemed full of screams.

I was a witness and would be able to tell everyone that in Greece, where everyone goes for the sun-bathing, the tourism goes on side by side with tortures. People are tortured in the name of the West, in the name of NATO, in the name of Western values.

Everything looks all right. The policemen welcome the tourist because he brings money with him. But the tourist must be told that there are cries going on, that it's a moral question. We fought Nazism side by side with the English in order to liquidate it, so that there wouldn't be any concentration camps, any torture. Well, now torture is being carried out with equipment of the English, the Americans and the French.

When he brought you out, M. Servan-Schreiber said he had proof that the American CIA really runs Greece.

Since the Civil War the Americans have been stationed in Greece in accordance with the famous Truman doctrine. They have spent $1.5 billion on that — according to a book I read called The American Empire.

All to install the Police, and the Army, and state machinery — the up-to-date terror machine, if you like, with which to liquidate a people.

The Americans look on Greece primarily as a military base. The American strategists looked at their map and said: 'What's that? Oh, that's Greece, that'll make a good base.' Then there are the great capitalists — Onassis, Niarchos and everyone. Behind them there's Shell, Pechiney, and Greece is in their hands.

What do people do? They leave. We have a 120 per cent increase in refugees leaving Greece to live abroad. Greece is a prison for Greeks now.

There's no doubt that the masters are American, and the Armed Forces co-operate very well with them. Of course they do, because the Americans can change them in five minutes if they want.

If the Greek people knew that they only had to deal with Mr. Papadopoulos and Pattakos, they wouldn't last one minute. The people are quite strong, but they feel that the Colonels have got the American Fleet backing them and all the imperialist power of the United States behind them.

Sometimes, from abroad, one gets the idea that oppression is limited to intellectuals and professional people. How great is the general loss of liberty in Greece?

That is an entirely false impression. The intellectuals are the mouthpieces, they are the guides of the people, but everyone is oppressed, because freedom is not something abstract, it's concrete.

It's very important to be able to sleep in your house at night, to be sure that you won't be taken away to such and such a place without any defence. That's a very important human right, isn't it?

Then there's the freedom of the unions. In Greece there's a decrease in wages of some 3 to 4 per cent every year. We used to have increases in wages of 10 or 20 per cent every year, but you can't get that without freedom of the unions. Everybody ought to know that all Greeks suffer. They're all oppressed by the Colonels, and it's all bound to go bang one of these days.

Newspapers usually call you a Communist. What are your political beliefs and your hopes for the future of your country?

I'm a communist because I am Greek. I believe that many decent people living in other countries who are not communists would be communists if they lived in Greece, because the communists were the only ones to put up any resistance in the Second World War. My father was a prefect. He belonged to the middle class and aspired to the upper class. In the war, his sort of people said: Laissez-les faire. It was the communists who started the struggle against the Germans.

So I first joined them out of love for my country, for freedom. Later I was attracted by Marxism-Leninism, and I am quite convinced that, in Greece, the only system that can liberate the people is the socialist system.

The Greek Civil War killed half a million people. What do you say to those Greeks who prefer the status quo to a new blood-bath?

Of course, the Civil War has a very important bearing as a historical factor. No one in Greece wants a civil war. Nor do we. We don't want to shed a single drop of blood. For the moment, the Greek people can see that the balance of power is not in their favor. But as soon as we can organize the forces of the Greek people and Greeks feel self-confident, and when there is a change in your countries' attitudes towards our people, not just in words but with action — then the Greek people will fight.

What help would you ask from the outside world?

You must look on this struggle as your own. You must completely isolate the Junta. Put pressure on your governments, and on the government of the United States, which is above all responsible for what is going on in Greece. Get a complete boycott going. Get the workers to refuse to handle things for the Greek Junta. Dockers should strike, just as they are doing now in France and Italy. Don't forget that it is now that the Greeks will see who are their friends and who are their enemies.

Can West Do Anything?

By ALFRED FRIENDLY

ATHENS — The Greek junta, a western diplomat and old hand here observed recently, "is an unpleasant anachronism in terms of the political development of Europe since the war, but it's not un-Greek, and in any case there's nothing we can do about it without hurting ourselves as much as we hurt them."

Viewed from the scene, "unpleasant" seems too mild a word for it. "Odious" might be more exact.

But it is hard to quarrel with the basic point that the West in general and the United States in particular cannot do much about it without cutting off their nose to spite their face.

The Pell and Hartke amendments evidence the conviction of the most dedicated American opponents of the dictatorship that denial of military aid will cause the regime either to fall or to mend its ways. But there is utterly nothing in the picture here to suggest that such a measure would serve either considerable evidence that in the long run it would be counter-productive.

Almost from the moment of the colonels' coup, April 21, 1967, it has been clear to anyone not living the dream world of the Greek exiles that the only force on the horizon able to topple the junta was its own underlings: the large corps of junior officers in the military establishment.

The theory, at least arguable up to a year or so ago, was that denial of arms would convince the younger officers that the junta had no future, and would cause them to turn against it, reject it and sponsor a more reasonable and proto-democratic regime.

The trouble is that the proposition is no longer even arguable. The junta has taken its younger officers completely into camp, and simply, by giving them promotions, power, prestige, perquisites and a cornucopia of money benefits. Greek sources who once saw hope in the captains and majors now declare, with startling repetition of the phrase, that the juniors "never had it so good."

What purposes, then, would continued denial of arms serve aside from the self-indulgent one of crowning American proponents of the measure with moral righteousness?

For domestic purposes — keeping at bay any internal force bent on overthrowing it — the junta already has arms enough for 20 years. For weapons it may believe it must have for external purposes (presumably to use against Turkey) it has a standing offer from France to supply all the heavy equipment it wants, on longer term loans and at lower interest than America will grant in the future.

The junta wants weapons from the West, to be sure: the $50 million worth of tanks, planes, ships and anti-aircraft missiles held up under the arms suspension, and a flow in the future. But its needs for them are simply not pressing enough to induce it to turn into true-blue democrats overnight, to release its couple of thousand political prisoners or change its ugly but deeply cherished political spots.

It is not suggested here that an American determination to continue to refuse armaments or to cut Greece off from military cooperation would drive the colonels into the arms of the Eastern bloc. But it is not naive to suppose that, in the long run, it will drive them out of the Western bloc. Nasserism, Greek style, has always been a gleam in the colonels' eye.

The idea behind a continuation of the arms ban is a specific manifestation of a deeper, more general fallacy: that America can lever the junta either out of existence or into an immediate restoration of democracy. America does not have the levers. In a game of reciprocal blackmail threats and extortion, the colonels' cards are at least as good as those of the United States.

Greece is enjoying an economic boom with a growth rate faster than any advanced country except Japan. In price stability it is second to none. Tourists are at record high numbers. There is no force in sight, internal or external, able to topple the junta from power.

That they run one of the most inept and incompetent governments ever in Greece, that their problems are enormous, is not to the point: in the narrow terms of holding on to their rule, staying in control, the colonels now have it made.

If there is no immediate power-politics purpose served by the arms suspension, is there a longer term political one? The argument is to be heard that because the regime is markedly unpopular among a majority of Greeks — which is almost certainly the case — the United States is digging its own ultimate grave in Greece by cooperating with or supporting the junta in any way.

Possibly. Some day, it must be hoped, the dictatorship will be succeeded by a decent government. That its citizens then will automatically hate the United States for having taken distasteful but necessary steps for the defence of this corner of the Mediterranean is not so certain.

Conceivably, punishing Greece for having a vile government by removing the military umbrella that America now holds over it, at a dangerous moment in history, may strike Greeks of the future as no great service either — especially when removing the umbrella has no effect in getting rid of the junta.

(The Washington Post)

Arms Ban 'Fiction'

COMMONWEAL

There wasn't much doubt about Washington's 1967 arms embargo against Greece being a fiction. Just how complete a fiction, however, was left for Senator Vance Hartke to reveal.

Hartke contrasted the military aid figures for fiscal '69 with those of '66 and discovered aid to be twice what it was before the supposed embargo.

In 1966, $89.4 million in military aid was extended to Greece. In 1969 military equipment delivered to Greece, free of charge and at the expense of the American taxpayer, ballooned to $158.6 million.

In addition, the Greek government received $11.4 million in military sales, raising to $170 million the net worth of military equipment received in one year by Greece from the U.S.

Hartke is chagrined. "Our military aid to the dictatorial regime of Greece, condemned and censured by many of its European neighbors, seriously jeopardizes the cohesiveness and effectivness of NATO, prohibits the opportunity for the rebirth of democracy in Greece, and mocks our democratic ideals and principles," said Hartke.

★ ★ ★

Hartke urged a cessation of all military assistance to the present discredited Greek regime, exclaiming that "ultimately the United States' position in the world will be determined more by our commitment and fidelity to our own democratic ideals than by the quantity of arms we sent abroad."

This is the rationale, part of it at least, behind S-648, Hartke's rider to the Military Sales Act, seeking to stop all future military assistance to Greece.

The Hartke amendment is a meritorious one, but how far it will get is questionable. The issue of freedom in Greece is not a particularly pressing one in Washington. In fact, the only thing on Washington's mind at the moment in connection with Greece seems to be when and how to confirm officially what is in fact the case; the end of the embargo.

Soviets 'Spied' During Mercy Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union disguised military aircraft as civilian planes and apparently collected radar and photo-intelligence data about U.S. military bases and North American coastal areas during mercy flights to Peru last month, U.S. defence sources reported.

The sources said these judgments were based on routes flown by the planes and photographs and ground observations of Soviet AN-12 and AN-22 transports refuelling at a base operated by the U.S. Air Force and Navy at Keflavik, Iceland.

The Russians said the flights were to ferry emergency supplies to earthquake-devastated Peru.

Pictures show the planes were equipped with radar boosters and wing antennas that experts said usually were found on military rather than commercial-type Russian planes.

Also, ground observers reported seeing camera ports closing as Soviet planes landed at Keflavik after making wide, sweeping approaches that gave a broad view of the base.

An AN-12 Pathfinder plane bound for Peru also was reported to have flown over the Kindley Naval Air Station in Bermuda, an important U.S. Navy anti-submarine base.

Defence sources said a close-up view of the Soviet aircraft on the ground at Keflavik indicated they had been dressed up rather hastily to look like civilian aircraft by painting on the insignia and markings of Aeroflot, the Russian international airline.

However, the AN-12s had gun turrets in their tails.

The AN-12s, huge planes somewhat comparable to the American C-5, had windows in the nose which experts said could be used by bombardiers.

This was the first indication the Russians considered AN-22s a dual purpose plane for use as transorts and possibly as bombers.

Sources said the radar boosters could be employed either for navigation or radar mapping.

They suggested the Russians took the opportunity presented by the mercy flights to get good radar reference mapping information of some of the North Ameriacn coast line. One stop en route to Peru was Halifax.

Plane Crash Victims Include 49 Students

LIMA (AP) — Forty-nine young American exchange students returning from the Inca ruins at Machu Picchu were reported killed Sunday in the crash of a Peruvian airliner. The department of civil aviation said 99 of the 100 persons aboard died, making it Peru's worst air disaster. Only the co-pilot survived.

Several other Americans were aboard in addition to the students spending the summer in Peru under the sponsorship of International Fellowship Inc. of Buffalo, N.Y. But their exact number was uncertain.

International Fellowship received from the state department a list of 49 of its students 14 to 19 years old aboard the plane. But the airline, Lansa, issued a list of 54 Americans aboard which included three other teen-agers, a 21-year-old and four older tourists. The airline listed two of the students on International Fellowship's list as Peruvians, and it was thought some of those it listed as American might be Peruvian

The airline said the Lockheed Electra carried 91 passenger and seven crew members, but later the aviation department said there were two more crew members aboard.

OFFICER SURVIVES

Most of the passengers had flown to Cuzco, the ancient Inca capital 365 miles southeast of Lima, for an excursion to the Inca ruins at nearby Macchu Picchu. After the day of sightseeing, the plane had just taken off from Cuzco for Lima when one of its four turboprop engines failed and the pilot, Capt. Alejandro Calegari, requested permission to return to Cuzco.

The plane crashed into San Jeronimo Hill six miles south of the Cuzco airport and exploded, scattering bodies over a wide area.

Lansa officials said the airline was sending a plane to Cuzco today to bring the bodies to Lima.

International Fellowship said the students, among 400 Americans spending 45 days with Peruvian families, were accompanied by 14 Peruvian youngsters, including Marisel Bedoya Vicanco, 16, daughter of a former Lima mayor.

WAS AN EXTRA

Officials said the tour was an optional part of the vacation program during which students participate in organized activities while staying with their host families. The company president, Mildred Brown of Buffalo who was vacationing in Port Colborne, Ont., left today for Peru.

The student victims were from New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, Maine, Wisconsin, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, Illinois and Pennsylvania, the company said.

Peru's worst previous air crash occurred eight years ago when 97 persons died in the crash of a Varig Airlines plane near Lima.

Air Threat Forces Landing

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Eastern Airlines DC-8 jetliner with 112 passengers aboard made a precautionary landing here Monday after a passenger threatened the safety of the craft, an airlines spokesman said.

The spokesman said the plane, en route to San Juan, Puerto Rico, from Kennedy Airport in New York, landed here "after a remark was made alleging to the possible threat to the safety of the aircraft."

"It was not a hijacking," the airline spokesman said "A remark was heard and a precautionary landing was made."

A spokesman at the Dulles airport operation centre said the plane landed after the pilot said "he had an engine out." She said there were no injuries.

The FAA said a woman passenger on the plane suffered a heart attack. An ambulance and physician were sent to Dulles.

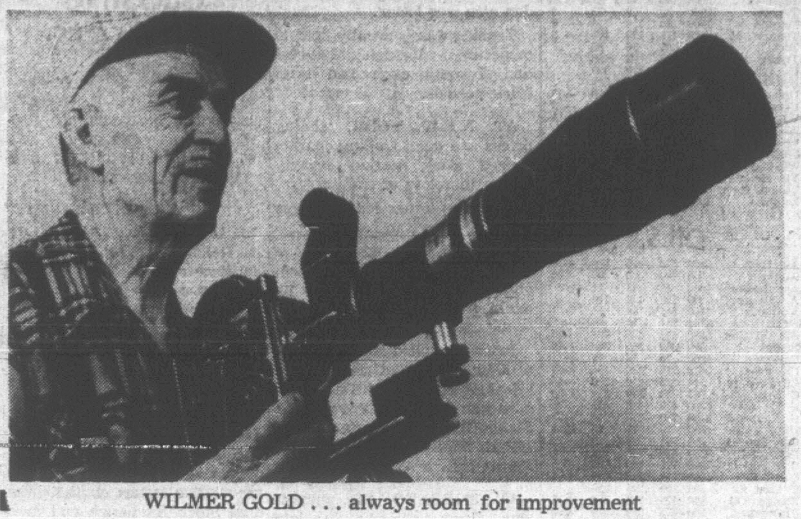
YOUBOU PHOTOGRAPHER SHARES HIS EXPERIENCES

Snapping the World as It Goes 'Round

By DONNA CLEMENTS



WILMER GOLD . . . always room for improvement

YOUBOU — While travelling around the world trying to capture the perfect picture, Wilmer Gold or Youbou has made several movies to share his experiences with people.

"When one is striving for perfection you get certain satisfaction when you produce something pleasing and worthwhile," he explained. "I get a lot of pleasure out of sharing my travels with other people and that is compensation for many of the privations and hard work I have gone through."

Gold said he really does not expect to achieve his dream because there is always room for improvement.

●

As a young boy he became interested in snapping photos. He was born and raised in Alberta. When? Gold will not reveal the year because he said he is like Week-Sackachak, an old Indian friend who, after he became 39 years of age, felt he did not grow any older.

"My dad was a fair amateur photographer and I followed in my father's footsteps," he said. "In high school I used to take the class pictures."

After graduating from school, Gold worked for photographers and attended photographic schools in Victoria and Edmonton during his life-long career as a professional photographer.

In 1935 he purchased 15 acres of waterfront property at Youbou. Although he has now sold most of it, he still has his home by Cowichan Lake and has his own water system in the small community.

Gold made his first trip overseas to England, Scotland and Wales in 1955. During this trip he only took still shots with his Century, Graphflex and Rolliflex cameras.

"When I returned after the six month trip I sold my photographs to magazines and newspapers," Gold explained. "The response was very good."

Gold started using his Bolex movie camera along with his other cameras on his six-month trip to Australia and New Zealand in 1962. He has shown his 90-minute all-color nature film called "Flora and Fauna", which is the result of his trip, to television and movie audiences.

●

"I also give special showings if requested and for charities," he said. "I edit the film and give the commentaries."

Two years later he travelled to Egypt and during his five month stay filmed the hour-long movie "Antiguities of Egypt."

"I was really impressed with the pyramids," said Gold. "To think that they go back 5,000 years to when in England man was just a bunch of savages wandering around. It is really hard to believe just how advanced the Egyptians were at that time."

●

Gold has just completed editing two films he took while on a five-month tour of the world this year.

He spent two and a half months of that time in Nairobi, Africa, where he filmed "Africa's Wildlife", an hour-long movie.

Gold said he went on many safaris and visited several parks to acquire the material.

One of the highlights of his experiences while making the movie was when he saw over 100,000 wild beasts, zebras and buffalos migrating at one time across the Serangeti Plains. "It was a sight of a lifetime," he stressed. "There was a mass or animals for miles and miles."

He said he also filmed a pride of eight lions sunning themselves.

"We drove right up to them. They seem to accept the vehicle just like it is another animal. They didn't pay any attention to us."

●

Another highlight of his film is when a lioness jumped a wild beast and strangled it to death.

"I even got her disembowelling her kill," he said. "She does the killing and then the male moves in for the first feed. Then the female eats, followed by the young."

He travelled by plane and boat to major cities the world over.

Some of his impressions were a bus trip to the island of Bali, 500 miles south of the Equator; Bombay, the gateway to India; or Banares where pilgrims come to bathe in the Ganges River, which is holy to them.

"The river is very polluted," Gold said. "They cremate the dead there as well. I witnessed several cremations but just got still shots of some of them. While the cremation is going on the undertaker stands there with a long spiked pole and while the corpse is, burning he drives the spike into the corpse and takes a bit of it and throws it into the river."

●

He said he loves to travel but it is always nice to return to his home where we are so badly spoiled.

"The big cities around the world are heavily populated, dirty, squalid, and very hot according to our standards," Gold said. "In North America people have so much in the way of creature comforts, education and things for the well-being of living and pleasure."

He said in the "have-not countries" many of the people's prime concern is to get enough food to stay alive.

"We work to live. They work to exist. And I mean just exist."

Gold said plans for his next trip are still indefinite but he hopes to travel either to the West Indies or the Canadian Arctic.

Head Beagle On High Seas

Canadian and American ships and planes will join forces Aug. 17 to 28 for a joint maritime exercise with the code name Head Beagle.

Commanding the Canadian contingent will be Capt. Michael A. Martin, who recently succeeded Capt. Robert Peers as commander of the 2nd Canadian Destroyer Squadron.

Taking part in the exercise will be the Esquimalt-based HMCS Yukon, HMCS Mackenzie, HMCS St. Croix and the submarine HMCS Rainbow.

Their American counterparts will be the Seattle-based ships of the Reserve Destroyer Division, USS Braine, USS Bridget, USS Evans and USS Uhlmann. The tug USS Tatnuck will also take part.

In charge of the American ships will be Capt. D. L. MacLane.

Canadian and American anti-submarine aircraft and U.S. Navy attack aircraft will also be used in the exercise which is designed to provide anti-submarine, gunnery and seamanship training.

INMATES KEPT IN THEIR CELLS

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Inmates of the British Columbia Penitentiary were kept in their cells during the weekend after tear gas and firehoses were used early Saturday to break up an eight-hour protest, warden Eric Atkins said Sunday.

He said some prisoners would be allowed to return to work in prison shops early this week but "recreation of all kinds will be curtailed for a while."

He said disciplinary action against some of the 300 prisoners involved in the sit-down protest would be taken "shortly", but it was too early to determine yet how long any suspension of privileges might last.

Richard Graves, acting western regional director of penitentiaries, said prison authorities here will begin an immediate investigation into the disturbance. A similar investigation in Ottawa might possibly be at cabinet level.

The inmates refused to return to their cells Friday night, burned athletic and recreational equipment, and were eventually routed by water and tear gas as they protested the death of prisoner Walton Brass, 27, of a cerebral hemorrhage.

●

MATHER ASKS PROBE

OTTAWA (CP) — Barry Mather (NDP-Surrey) said today he has asked Solicitor-General George McIlraith to investigate the death of an Indian prisoner at the penitentiary at New Westminster.

About 285 prisoners conducted an eight-hour sitdown Saturday in protest against the Tuesday night death of Indian Walton Brass, 27.

Warden Eric Atkins denied a charge by the protesters that Brass was murdered and cited a New Westminster coroner's inquest held Thursday that ruled the prisoner died a natural death from a massive cerebral hemorrhage.

BANKS OF NEW engines stand ready for assembly line startup at Ford's St. Thomas plant where production of Pinto starts this week. The new vechicle will have a 1.6 litre motor to drive the little auto at better than 30 miles to a gallon, with a more powerful two litre engine available as option. Customs clerk Ruth Cobban, perched on a rack, indicates some of the 21,500 European-made engines, which feature belt-driven overhead camshaft.

Ionarc Shoots For Mars Rocket

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — A Canadian company hopes to turn Australia into a major producer of space-age metals with the construction of a tiny furnace which burns 2½ times hotter than the surface of the sun.

Ionarc Smelters Ltd. of Vancouver has been working with the U.S. Space Agency on the development of a gas core nuclear rocket for a 1985 deep Marle Thorpe, vice-president and executive director of Ionarc, smelting process he hoped to bring to Australia was partly an offshoot of this space rocket research.

He expects to find a site based on the supply of raw materials and get a plant into operation in the next two years.

Overseas Cars Sales Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — One out of every five automobiles sold in Canada in June was of overseas manufacture, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

The average price paid for the overseas cars was $2,518, compared with $3,629 for Canadian-and American-built automobiles.

The bureau said June sales of overseas-made cars were up 14.8 per cent in numbers and 16.5 per cent in value from a year earlier. Sales of North American cars were down by 9.1 per cent in numbers and 8.1 per cent in value.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Stocks in Summer Setback

Major markets in North America all slipped lower in a late summer slump today. London also was lower.

Trading was generally light to moderate, although Montreal and Toronto each had brief brisk periods.

Declining issues led advances by more than 2 to 1.

Analysts said no trend is likely to develop in the market until trading activity picked up again, which probably would not occur until after Labor Day.

AT TORONTO the market was down sharply in late trading.

Canadian Tire lost 1½ to 21¼, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 1 to 38½, Aquitaine ¾ to 21¼, Falconbridge ¾ to 144¼ and Bow Valley ⅝ to 12⅞.

Alberta Natural Gas was up ¾ to 19 and Asbestos Corp. ⅝ to 29⅛.

The market opened with fractional losses, turned marginally upward during the next 30 minutes of trading but dropped after the first hour.

Largest losses were in banks, beverage, merchandising and industrial mining sectors.

AT MONTREAL, prices slipped slightly lower in brisk early-afternoon trading.

Trading was busy among speculative issues on the Canadian Stock Exchange and moderate among blue-chip issues on the Montreal exchange.

Flaconbridge was off 3 to 144, Fraser Development 2 to 22½, Consolidated Bathurst ⅞ to 10¼, Brascan ⅜ to 13, Gulf Oil ¼ to 15½, Northern and Central Gas ¼ to 12¾ and Pacific Petroleum ⅛ to 25.

CPR was up 2¾ to 58, QSP Ltd. ½ to 14½, Aquitaine ½ to 21¼, and Bank of Commerce ⅜ to 19⅜. Up ¼ were Imperial Oil at 17¼, Royal Bank at 21½ and Dominion Textile at 12⅝.

AT LONDON, British funds continued to advance and industrials moved narrowly with no decisive trend.

IOS issues eased on the latest developments in the struggle for control. Hudson's Bay eased.

Dome, Hudson Bay Oil and Gas, Pacific Pete, Hollinger and Massey-Ferguson eased among Canadian issues. Canadian Pacific, Gulf, BP, Cominco and Power Corp. advanced.

Canadian Imperial led Canadian banks higher.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was light to moderate.

Tokar was the leader in the industrials with a volume of 4,500 shares, up .10 at $2.00. Driver Development was up .01 at .38 and Athabaska was off .10 at $2.40.

Ponderay topped sales in the oil section with a turnover of 16,900 shares, trading unchanged at $1.45. Royal Canadian Ventures lost .05 to $1.10 and Giant Reef was unchanged at .28.

Yukon Antimony, in the mines, sold 117,000 shares and was off a half cent at .21. Pacific Asbestos dropped .15 to $1.90 while Mercury was up .01 at .26.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some speculative buying developed during the final hour of trading, but rapeseed prices still closed up to 7⅝ cents lower at the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Early stop-loss selling that met with indifferent buying interest had rapeseed futures sharply lower at the open. The futures moved steadily downwards all day.

Light trading in other commodities was featureless. Oats and barley were neglected most of the day.

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybean futures declined nearly 5 cents under profit-taking and apparent speculative liquidation on the Board of Trade today.

New-crop corn futures advanced more than 3 cents and tended to influence buying of wheat and oats. Soybean oil and meal prices were mostly lower, possibly discounting early a government report that might be bearish on prices.

Prices Board Will Probe Ford Estimate

OTTAWA (CP) — The prices and incomes commission will investigate a three-per-cent estimated price increase announced by Ford Motor Co. of Canada for its 1971-model cars and trucks.

A commission spokesman said discussion with Ford were held recently, and that it is likely an investigation will begin in the next two weeks.

It will be the first prices and incomes commission study on automobile prices.

The spokesman said other auto manufacturers probably will announce price increases and will also be investigated.

Under agreement between the commission and business leaders last February in Ottawa price increases this year must be clearly less than cost increases.

The study could take six weeks.

EFFECTIVE MANAGEMENT

Time Diagnosis Key to Efficiency

By PETER COSSETTE
Kates, Peat, Marwick & Co.

It has been estimated that knowledge in the world has doubled between 1900 and 1950 and doubled again between 1950 and 1960. At this rate the manager in the mid-seventies will be faced with an environment that will tax his management skills to the limit. In spite of a large number of new tools and techniques to help him, his most important and shrinking commodity will be his own time.

Time is of vital importance to the manager. Hours and days pass with alarming speed; before he can make better use of his time, however, he must have clearly defined objectives. Seven practical steps to time saving are: time diagnosis — an accurate and objective record of every minute of the day; intelligent discrimination with regard to the tasks that the manager has to undertake himself; delegation of matters that can well be dealt with by someone else; a close examination of the organization structure; improved communications; time for concentration; and proper planning.

Detailed Record

Many managers know they have been busy all day but may not be able to give a precise account of their duties. To know how he spends his time a manager should have a consistent and detailed record of his performance during every working hour. This will show him how many hours he has spent "stamping out brush fires", doing things that did not need to be done or were out of sequence in the scheme of priorities, and giving valuable time to people who did not have a right to it. He is then in a position to compare his record with an ideal time plan suited to the job he should be doing. He may need help in deciding exactly what that job should be but a detailed analysis of time used is an essential prerequisite to remedial action.

This diagnosis leads naturally to a phase of "discrimination," where the manager can decide what it is that he is doing that need not be done at all, or could be done by somebody else. For example, how many managers go to functions that do not require their participation, do not impart new knowledge or are of little value for business development? How many hold large meetings regularly where time is wasted hearing from people who have no immediate concern for the matter under discussion? How many managers open their own mail, answer their own telephones, make their own appointments? The number is tragically large.

In Real Trouble

From an analysis of how a manager spends his working day will come a definition of tasks that can be done by somebody else. The worst thing that can happen in a business is to mix functions so that no one but the manager bears the responsibility. When that happens the company is in real trouble. No company can operate effectively unless work is divided and yet many managers cannot forget their antecedents and even when they are at the top of the organization they still keep a finger in production, marketing or personnel or wherever it was they came from, much to the chagrin of the heads of those departments.

A manager who is continually chasing his shadow in a vain attempt to do all the things he thinks should be done may be suffering from the effects of poor organization. He may have organized his company badly and have too many people reporting to him with a mass of trivia. A hard look at his organization and how it functions may bring more relief from time pressure than he thought could be possible.

Communication is perhaps the single most important facet of the manger's job. It is also the most time-consuming unless it is logically and effectively handled. The methods the manager employs and the use he makes of the mechanical and electronic aids available will, to a large degree, determine not save but how effectively he will communicate. While it may not only how much time he can be possible to emulate Churchill or Eisenhower and have all reports reduced to one sheet of foolscap, with a little planning and care he will be able to receive his information in a short form that can be rapidly assimilated.

When the average person is considering a complex problem he needs a certain amount of uninterrupted time to comprehend the situation. Obviously, the more often he is interrupted the longer it will take him to solve the problem or complete the work. So it is with the manager. He may handle a tremendous amount of fairly superficial work in which he is making decisions almost intuitively, but projects needing penetrating analysis and study will certainly require time and concentration of time.

Careful Planning

To implement many of these suggestions will require the most careful planning. There are many planning aids and one of the most effective is a large planning board on which the whole year's planned activities can be seen at a glance. Priorities must be established, dictated by their importance, urgency or the time frame in which they must be done. Having firmly established the priorities, the manager should record his plan of action and then adhere to it as closely as possible. Obviously it will undergo revision and change but this does not in any way lessen the effectiveness of the planning process, for without it there would be a lack of co-ordinated activity and a resulting loss in time and efficiency.

A vigorous application of these steps may well lead the manager to that happy state where results can be achieved without excessive personal strains and stresses.

President John Kazakoff said second-quarter results illustrate the "impressive growth pattern" of the company, which operates electric light and power services in Venezuela, El Salvador, Bolivia and Barbados.

Morse Corp.

Robert Morse Corp. reports consolidated net income before taxes and extraordinary items of $623,000, for a net loss of $227,000 after taxes for the six months ended June 30, 1970.

Consolidated net income on the same basis a year earlier was $1.97 million.

The company said the loss was due to the fact that most profit was earned in corporate units paying full income taxes while losses were in units not now taxable.

Dominion Bridge

Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. reports unaudited consolidated net earnings of $2.4 million or 93 cents a share for the six months ended June 30 against $1.2 million or 47 cents a share in the six-month period ended April 30, 1969.

The company last year changed its fiscal year-end from Oct. 31 to Dec. 31.

Mackenzie McMurry, president, attributed the growth in earnings to a 40 per cent increase in sales. Sales for the first six months this year were $51.2 million.

Brian Allin, a 140-pound Vietnam veteran, showed steely nerves under tremendous pressure to turn near-disaster into his first tournament victory as a pro.

He won $3,000 and the Carling Cup with his seven-under-par total of 67-69-73—209 on the 6,815-yard Richmond Country Club course. Par is 36-36—72.

His last-hole heroics averted what looked like a sure playoff as four other players tied at 211. Rafe Botts (69-69-73) of Los Angeles, Rick Jetter (71-68-72) of San Jose, Calif., Finn Sorenson (71-71-69) of Edmonton and Wayne Vollmer (73-66—72) of Vancouver each received $1,300 from the total $15,000 pot.

Defending champion Bill Wakeham of Victoria and Mexican Open champion Ernesto Perez of Tijuana, both of whom shared the lead after the first round then blew up in Saturday's session, finished tied for sixth with 54-hole totals of 213. They took $750 each.

FELL BACK

Allin, who went into the last round eight strokes under par and two ahead of Botts, lost three strokes to par and fell two behind Vollmer, who charged to seven-under at the turn.

Then Vollmer ran into trouble and they were tied at five-under with three holes left. Allin dropped a stroke behind on the 16th when he scored a five on the par-four hole, but bounced ahead again by birdying the 17th as Vollmer took a one-over five after his approach shot bounced over the sun-baked green.

As they started the 18th, Botts, Sorensen and Jetter had already finished at five-under, and a tie seemed likely.

But Allin out-drove Vollmer for the first time in the round, then drilled a three-iron shot to within four feet of the pin on the par-five hole. Vollmer's approach shot again bounced over, virtually eliminating his chances of snatching victory. The Vancouver pro made a good recovery for a birdy and a tie for second.

With most of the more than 4,000 spectators massed around the green, Allin stepped up and canned the putt for his eagle, touching off an explosion of applause.

ASSISTANT PRO

Allin got out of the service in September and returned to his job as an assistant pro at the Montecito club at Santa Barbara. He entered the B.C. Open after a friend sent him an application form.

Vollmer, who looked a solid choice to win after his first nine holes Sunday, moaned about approach shots that wouldn't hold.

Wakeham, who had won the championship the two previous years, was a good bet to repeat after his opening round 67. But he blew to 77 Saturday in the second round.

"I can't explain it," he said. "I just played badly."

Perez, who also had a 67 in the first round and practically matched Wakeham's Saturday disaster with a 76, said: "I never made a putt."

Top amateur in the tournament was Mike Davis of Portland, Ore., who finished with 74-70-72—216—even par. He got a gold medal and a merchandise prize.

City Stars Earn Trip To Canadian Tourney

KELOWNA (CP) — An all-star team from the Victoria senior amateur baseball league capped a strong comeback Sunday by blasting Vancouver CYO 15-3 in the final of the British Columbia senior championships.

With its back to the wall after losing 5-3 to Vancouver Saturday, the strong-hitting Victoria team was forced to play three games Sunday to win the right to represent the province in the Canadian championship in Brandon, Man., Aug. 28-31.

Victoria started its comeback Sunday by eliminating Kelowna 11-5, then forced a deciding game by stopping the previously unbeaten CYO squad 6-3.

Victoria unleashed a 15-hit attack against Vancouver, in the sudden-death finale, scoring seven runs in the first inning and forcing CYO to use four pitchers.

FIVE HOMERS

Outfielder Gord Strongman batted .524 for Victoria in the three-day, double-knockout event. He hit homers in all five games the winners played and batted in 14 runs.

Strongman had a single, double and home run and five RBIs in the game against Kelowna. He added another three RBIs in Victoria's 6-3 win over Vancouver and three more in the lopsided championship game.

In games Saturday, Victoria beat Kelowna 7-1, a Kootenay all-star team stopped Quesnel 10-5, Kelowna edged the Kootenay squad 3-2 and CYO came from behind to defeat Victoria 5-3.

Rick Mosher's three-hitter helped CYO to a 4-0 shutout over Kootenay while Kelowna clipped Quesnel 9-2 in Friday's openers.

CYO COMES BACK

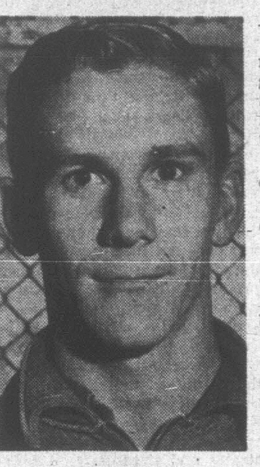
CYO had to come from behind a 3-0 deficit to hand Victoria its only loss on Saturday.

Victoria took a 1-0 lead in the first and made it 3-0 in the sixth on a two-run homer by strongman off Vancouver ace Larry Webster.

But CYO mounted its comeback on run-scoring singles by Webster and Al Foreman in the seventh and capped the drive in the eighth on hits by Howie Stevens and John Kochan.

Kelowna dropped its 7-1 decision to Victoria as Strongman, Mike McAvoy and George Fuller laced homers to support the five-hit pitching of George Brice.

Royals Blank Cougars; Defaults Hit Schedule



ASH VALDAL

By DAN STINSON

VANCOUVER — Perhaps the most disappointing aspect regarding the Western Canada Soccer League is that it may no longer exist at the conclusion of this season.

Even now, the very existence of the league is in jeopardy.

First, there is a matter of competition. There isn't much.

Second, as a result of the first problem, the games do not draw well.

Third, teams recently have been defaulting their games.

In a league which three teams — Victoria Royals, Vancouver Spartans and Cougars — literally dominate, fans find it difficult to lend their support.

Victoria, playing some of its best soccer of the season, defeated Cougars, 4-0, to remain four points ahead of the idle Spartans for first place.

Don't let the score fool you. Royals had to work for this one as Cougars started quickly only to be thwarted by a tough Royal defence.

His first tally came at the 10-minute mark of the first half. Coach Brian Hughes took an indirect free kick into the goal area and Bob Bolitho headed the ball to Mark Robb, who bouned a shot off the cross bar. Valdal picked up the rebound and fired it home from about five yards.

Valdal counted his second goal at 43 minutes when his 15-yard drive was deflected into the goal by Neil Ellett of Cougars, giving Victoria a 2-0 half-time lead.

PRETTY GOAL

It was Brian Robinson, however, who scored the game's most impressive goal. From just over the mid-field line he took a pass from Jim Menzies, moved to within 25 yards of the goal, and boomed a perfectly-aimed drive into the open right side at 15 minutes of the second half.

Fifteen minutes later, Valdal completed the game's scoring, netting his hat trick by picking up Jan Bentley's rebound and scoring again from about five yards.

Graham Lee, Victoria netminder in the second half, blocked a direct kick by Cougars' Chris Bennett at 35 minutes, helping to split the shutout with starter Barry Sadler, who was well-tested in the first half.

Cougars, who controlled most of the play in the opening 45 minutes continued to threaten in the latter part of the contest, but impressive defensive play by Ray Telford and Ron Thompson helped to keep the Mainland side scoreless.

SPARTANS TOP SEATTLE

Four scheduled league games were not played during the last week.

On Friday, a Spartan-Sea Tac game was postponed, Winnipeg Blues failed to show up in Victoria on Saturday and in Vancouver Sunday, and Regina Concordia defaulted two games to Edmonton in the Prairie Division.

Spartans made their trip to Seattle Sunday and topped the Sea Tacs 5-1.

Trip to Series For City Colts

PORT COQUITLAM — Victoria All-Stars, repeating their performance of last year, captured the Provincial Colt League baseball championship Sunday by defeating Vancouver Quadra, 3-1, and will now represent Canada in the Colt World Series to be played in Lafayette, Indiana, August 17-26.

All-stars, who will also represent British Columbia in the Canadian tournament at Winnipeg during the Labor Day weekend, turned in solid team efforts behind sparkling one-hit pitching performances in their last two games.

Following Ray Andre's one-hit, six-strikeout display in Victoria's 3-0 victory over Castlegar Saturday, the B.C. champions got both brilliant pitching and timely batting from Glen Wallis in Sunday's title triumph over Quadra, which earlier defeated Castlegar in the losers' bracket final.

Wallis yielded a run to Vancouver in the top of the first inning, but runs by Mike Lee and Dave Anderson in the bottom half of the same frame sent the Stars ahead to stay.

After receiving a base on balls to lead off the bottom half of the opening frame, Lee advanced to second on a passed ball and scored when Anderson's ground ball was overthrown at first.

Tom Craig's sacrifice then advanced Anderson to third and he scored the winning run on Wallis' single.

Wallis added the insurance marked in the fifth inning slamming a double and completing the circuit on another overthrow to first.

Colwood Barrage Paced by Pitcher

Colwood Inn launched a 10-hit barrage Sunday to defeat Labatts 7-2 in the opening game of a best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final playoff series at Heywood Avenue Park.

Pitcher Jack Lundquist, who tossed a five-hit triumph, paced the pounding at the plate by connecting for three singles in three trips and driving in two runs.

Ken Griffin also blasted three hits for the Colwood crew, which made use of three of the four Labs errors while scoring all the team's runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Both Steelers and Gilmour are from the McGinnis loop.

Beard Rings Up Tenth Victory

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Frank Beard took a look ahead to this week's Professional Golfers' Association national championship after picking off the $30,000 first prize Sunday in the American Golf Classic.

"No," the soft spoken technician said, "I've never won two consecutive tournaments.

Beard, who almost didn't come to Akron for the $150,000 event, fired a conservative 71, one-over par, on the demanding 7,180-yard Firestone layout in the final round.

He had 276 strokes, two fewer than Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton and Tommy Aaron who earned $11,600 each.

Toronto's George Knudson fired a 67 Sunday, lowest score of the day and wound up at 282. He earned $3,180.

Of the players who had a chance to challenge Beard, only Nicklaus could break par. He had a 69, Crampton took a 71 and Aaron finished at 72.

The victory was the 10th of his career and second of the season for Beard, who didn't arrive until Wednesday night, just hours before the tournament's start, because he and his wife became the parents of their fourth child a day earlier.

"I really didn't decide to come until the baby was born and I knew everything was all right at home. Actually, it was my mother who urged me to come."

Reed, 'Bomb' Wreck Ticats

HAMILTON (CP) — George Reed descended on Hamilton Saturday night and Saskatchewan Roughriders burst the Tiger-Cat bubble, scraping a 23-22 win in the season's first Canadian Football League interlocking game played before 25,135 fans.

The victory was Saskatchewan's first in Hamilton's Civic Stadium since the interlocking schedule started in 1962, and the 'Riders hadn't defeated the Ticats anywhere since 1967.

Reed, deceptively strong at 205 pounds, crashed through the usually brutal Hamilton defensive line with such ease that Ticat coach Joe Restic admitted after the game the Westerners had found a weak spot in what many considered one of the toughest defensive units in the country.

Reed carried 36 times—more than the entire Hamilton club did in the game—including 34 rushes for 199 yards. He also scored the Roughriders' first touchdown.

BOMB DOES IT

But despite Reed's efforts and Saskatchewan's domination of play, it took a 91-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Ron Lancaster to speedster Silas McKinney to decide the issue.

Lancaster scored the other Saskatchewan touchdown from one-yard out while Jack Abendschan booted a 24-yard field goal and two converts.

Ed Buchanan was Hamilton's most effective weapon when the Ticats could get hold of the ball (they used only 34 offensive plays in the game). He rolled up 105 yards on eight carries, including a 77-yard touchdown romp, and took four Joe Zuger passes for 50 yards.

The man who was expected to set a CFL career scoring mark, Tommy Joe Coffey, missed by two points. He entered the game with 745 points, five behind Jackie Parker, current coach of the WFC's British Columbia Lions who ended his career with 750.

But Coffey was held to just four points, converting touchdowns by Buchanan, John Manel and Bill Starr and kicking a single on a 47-yard field goal attempt that went wide.

Despite bruising play by both teams, only Saskatchewan's Bobby Thompson was injured seriously enough to put him on thesideline. Coach Eagle Keys said the injury was minor, but likely would keep Thompson out of the Roughriders' next game, Tuesday night in Ottawa against the Rough Riders.

CITY ATHLETES WIN TITLES

Record Vault Highlights Meet

Three Victoria athletes collected titles Sunday and another missed a triumph by an eyelash on the final day of the two-day B.C. open track and field championships at Vancouver.

Vicky Hammond won the women's long jump with a leap of 16 feet, 7½ inches, Dave Weicker was timed in 1:54.4 as he won the 800-metre final and Tom Antonson earned the triple-jump crown with an effort of 44 feet, 6¾ inches.

Another Victorian, Jill Pelland barely missed her second title of the meet in a dual with Vancouver's Peggy Busck in the women's 200-metre hurdles. Both were time in 28 seconds flat, one-tenth of a second off the Canadian record, but judges gave first place to Miss Busch.

Mill Pelland cracked the victory circle Saturday in the 100-metre hurdles, nipping Victoria Track Club mate Penny May by one-tenth of a second as she finished in 14.4 seconds.

Jill was fifth in the 100-metre sprint, won in 11.6 by Vancouver's Stephanie Berto, who also won the 200-metre final Sunday in 24.1.

Victoria field-event ace Lorna McHattie, won the discuss Saturday with a toss of 113 feet, 7¼ inches after finishing a close second to Vancouver rival Leona Sparrow in the javelin.

Bev Cox, a midget-age performer from Victoria, qualified for the Canadian open championships Saturday as she finished third in the women's 400 metres, won by Vancouverite Norren Liepens, who also won the 800 metres Sunday and was named the top female performer of the meet.

Among other entrants from Victoria clubs, Ray Parks and Brad Yakubowich were fourth and fifth in the 100 metres, won by Harry Jerome of Vancouver; Antonson was fifth in the long jump, Bill McCormick sixth in th 110-metre hurdles, and Norm Patenuade placed fifth in the 10,000 metres.

Al Kane of Vancouver, later named the meet's best male athlete, highlighted Sunday's events as he set a provincial native and open record of 13 feet, 6½ inches while winning the pole vault.

Other mainland winners included Gary Salmond (hammer), Ziguart Strauts (discuss) and Jerry Tighe (10,000 metres).

The next competition will be held in 1972.

The U.S. collected seven victories and two ties in the 12 singles matches. They won three and halved one in scotch four-some matches.

'Bellies Reign; Rocks Are Out

New Westminster Salmonbellies required a little help from Coquitlam Adanacs on Saturday to clinch the Western Lacrosse Association championship.

Salmonbellies did not need any assistance, however, to dispatch Victoria Shamrocks 22-10 the same evening before about 700 fans in Memorial Arena.

Coupled with Adanacs' 20-12 home-floor victory over Vancouver Burrards, the results brought Salmonbellies the league title while officially eliminating Victoria from the playoffs for the third consecutive year.

Rocks were in contention for half the game and tied the score 5-5 at 9:03 of the second period on a goal by Frank Alexander.

Ed Goss scored the first of his six goals at 6:41 to bring Salmonbellies the lead again and the mainlanders added five more unanswered tallies before the period ended.

Paul Parnell of New Westminster had two goals and five assists, bringing his career assists total to 508. Parnell moved ahead of former Shamrock, Adanac and Salmonbellie Jack Bionda (504) into third place in the history of western Canadian lacrosse.

Victory also moved Adanacs within four points of second-place Burrards.

Bucs Feel Pennant Pang After Stopping Mets 8-3

By The Associated Press

Pennant fever is spreading in Pittsburgh.

It was running rampant in the Pirates' clubhouse — although no one would admit it — after they took advantage of New York pitching problems Sunday to turn back the Mets 8-3 and regain a 3½-game lead in the National League East Division.

The teams wrap up the four-game series tonight with the Mets sending their ace, 16-game-winner Tom Seaver, against Dock Ellis, 12-8.

In Sunday's other games, San Diego Padres turned back Atlanta Braves 4-2 in the only other single contest. In double-heading action, Philadelphia Phillies beat Chicago 6-1 after the Cubs won the opener 4-1, Montreal Expos nipped St. Louis 7-6 then lost to the Cardinals 4-0, San Francisco Giants ripped Houston 6-1 after the Astros grabbed the first game 7-5 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles Dodgers shellacked Cincinnati Reds 7-3 and 13-3.

TWINS LEAD CUT

When Alex Johnson and Don Mincher came marching home, the California Angels and Oakland A's did an about-face and headed back into the American League's West Division title race on the double.

Mincher, a former Minnesota slugger, socked two singles against his old teammates, delivering six runs in Oakland's 3-0, 6-3 wins.

The two sweeps cut the Twin's lead in the West to seven games over the runner-up Angels and eight over the third-place A's.

Elsewhere Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees divided 11-inning struggles, the Yanks taking the opener 6-4 and the Orioles winning the nightcap 12-9. Washington Senators split with Cleveland Indians, bowing 6-3 after a 7-3 victory. Boston Red Sox downed Detroit Tigers 7-4 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Kansas City Royals 4-2.

The Mets and Pirates play seven of their final 10 games this year against each other.

Nolan Ryan was nursing a 3-2 lead when the Bucs opened the seventh inning with a walk and put runners on second and third, as Ryan threw Matty Alou's sacrifice bunt past first base.

In came Ray Sadecki who proceeded to give up three more walks — one of them intentional— plus a pair of run-scoring singles and a sacrifice fly and the Pirates led 6-3.

TWO-HITTER

St. Louis rookie left-hander Jerry Reuss twirled a two-hitter to silence Montreal's bats in the second game of their twin bill. Bobby Wine's two-run, tie-breaking double highlighted a four-run, seventh inning that paved the way to the Expos' first-game triumph.

Los Angeles unleashed a 35-hit attack — 20 of them in the second game — to cut the runaway Reds' lead in the Western Division to 12 games. Ted Sizemore led the Dodger attack with seven hits for six runs batted in.

Chuck Dobson, who had a 6-11 lifetime mark against the Twins, handed them their first shutout setback in 126 regular season games to trigger Oakland's sweep before a season-high Minnesota crowd of 41,339. He fired a four-hitter for his seventh consecutive victory since the All-Star break.

Frank Robinson, out of the Orioles' starting line-up with a shoulder injury, pinch-hit a double in the 11th inning of the nightcap to trigger the deciding three-run volley after the Yanks had fought back from an early 6-0 deficit.

The Senators scored five runs on one hit — Rick Reichardt's two-run single-five walks and an error in the sixth inning of the opener to beat Sam McDowell despite a Cleveland triple play.

FIVE KILLED, 30 HURT IN RACETRACK MISHAP

KARLSKOGA, Sweden (CP) — Five spectators were killed Sunday when two racing cars hurtled into a crowd of spectators at the Swedish Grand Prix meeting here.

At least 30 persons were injured when the two cars, both Ford Escorts, locked together and catapulted from the track into the crowd on the first lap of the first race.

Ambulances, police cars and private cars took the injured to nearby hospitals, where doctors later reported that 15 were in serious condition.

Drivers were Pekka Virtanen of Finland, who is believed to have suffered two broken legs, and Rune Tobiasson of Sweden, who escaped unhurt.

After a vote by club officials and drivers, two of the four remaining races were held after a two-hour delay.

Trouble-Avoiding Tony Takes Prize

Tony Mortel managed to keep out of trouble Saturday night and won the 30-lap main modified race before 2,310 car-racing fans at Western Speedway.

Mortel skirted a seven-car pileup in the seventh lap of the feature race, took over the lead on the 12th lap after a restart and cruised across the finish line six car-lengths ahead of Seattle's Tom Fox.

Nine cars out of the original field of 16 returned after Ted Glawson of Vancouver spun out and started the chair-reaction accident. There were no injuries in the mishap.

Dave Anderson won the 30-lap stock car main half a car-length ahead of Harvey St. Hilaire, who won the trophy dash.

Anderson, who led from the start, also finished third in both the trophy dash and fast heat.

FORMER VICTORIAN SECOND . . . . . . AT CONNAUGHT

Daigle Takes Queen's Medal Again

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) — A 40-year-old sergeant of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Valcartier, Que., Sunday continued the pace set Saturday by his unit and walked away with the Queen's Medal at the 88th annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association matches at Connaught Ranges.

It was the third time since 1963 that Sgt. J. E. (Joe) Daigle, already the Quebec champion rifleman this year, has won the medal.

He outshot Sgt. E. A. (Ed) Zwolak of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and formerly of Victoria, to take the award, offered annually to members of Canadian forces winning the second stage of two-stage Sir Arthur Currie match. The Currie match involves shooting from a variety of positions and targets with the C1A1 rifle.

A second Queen's Medal, offered to the top militiaman or RCMP member shooting in the Currie match, went to G Wilfred Black, an RCMP sergeant stationed in Ottawa.

Scores were not available on the Queen's Medal competition.

Sgt. Daigle also was winner of the Helmer service conditions aggregate.

Saturday, M. Cpl. Dale Thornton of Shearwater, N.S., won the first of the week-long matches by just one point.

Shooting prone from 200, 300 and 500 yards in the King match, Cpl. Thornton scored 97 of a possible 105 points to edge Cp. J. R. Gingras of the Royal 22nd Regiment.

Sgt. R. Lebrecque of the Royal 22nd won the Sherwood while a Lorne Scots Regiment private, J. F. McDonald, won the Borden Match.

Trail Reaches Tourney Final

PRINCE GEORGE — East Trail All-Stars moved to the finals of the British Columbia Little League baseball championship Sunday by blanking Vancouver Victoria Drive 4-0 for their third straight victory of the tournament.

Bruce Ferguson slammed a three-run homer to pace the attack of the slick-fielding Trail club, which had defeated Prince George 5-1 in a Sunday-morning contest.

Victoria Americans were not around to watch Ferguson's heroics. The Vancouver Island champions were ousted from the double-loss elimination tourney Saturday when they dropped a 10-4 decision to North Vancouver Jaycees after suffering a 6-4 loss to East Trail earlier in the day.

FASHIONED BIG LEAD

Larry Kerr's three-run homer and a pair of run-scoring doubles by Greig Semino helpel Jaycees fashion a 10-0 lead before Americans scored all their runs in the bottom half of the sixth inning.

Either North Vancouver or South Vancouver, due to clash tonight in the losers' bracket, will advance to the Tuesday-night final against Trail.

Rangers Start Strongly

LONDON (CP) — Colin Stein, Rangers' star centre forward, scored the first goal of the new Scottish soccer season Saturday, two minutes after the start of the Rangers' Scottish League Cup match against Dunfermline Athletic.

The Rangers put on a devastating display to crush Dunfermline, 4-1 before 45,000 fans.

In England, Derby County whipped Manchester United, 4-1, in the final of the new Watney Cup competition. Roy McFarland, Alan Hinton, Alan Durban and Dave MacKay scored for Derby, which led 3-1 at half time. Manchester's only goal came from George Best.

CELTIC PRESSED

Celtic, the Rangers' great rivals in Scottish soccer, found the going tough against Hearts in league cup play. The game was in its 77th minute before Celtic got the winning goal in a 2-1 victory.

John Hughes scored for Celtic for a 1-0 half-time lead. Hearts newcomer Kavin Hegarty tied it up in the 73rd minute. Four minutes later Jimmy Johnstone scored Celtic's winner.

More than 44,000 fans saw the match, played as usual on the Saturday before the official start of the English soccer season.

Rock Music Festival 'A Religious Event'

By VICTOR STANTON

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — To the thousands of kids who attended this weekend's Strawberry Fields rock music festival, it was more than just a musical happening.

"It's a religious event."

Mr. Macdonald spoke from the position of having seen the best and worst sides of a rock festival.

During the three-day event attended by more than 50,000 people, he was a volunteer at the on-site medical centre which handled an average of 1,500 cases daily, about 300 of them involving drugs and the rest mainly cuts, bruises and sunburn.

Mr. Macdonald spoke of the brotherhood and community feeling that such a festival could arouse in young people who only days earlier were total strangers.

As an example, he said that when the health unit needed more methadon, a heroin substitute used to treat heroin users, other users brought some in from their own supplies.

"It was mind-blowing to see these junkies come in and lay down their dope on the table for the community," Mr. Macdonald said.

Drugs were a definite part of the festival, as was semi- and total nudity and uninhibited love-making.

The site was 55 miles east of Toronto, in Clarke, Township. Earlier this year, the township passed a bylaw forbidding all but motor sports events at the park.

When the Strawberry Fields promoters got their festival in under the guise of a motorcycle racing event featuring some live musical entertainment, the attorney-General's office sought an injunction from the Supreme Court of Ontario to stop it, but this was denied.

The festival went on and thousands of young people, most from the United States where it had been widely advertised as a major rock festival, spent the three days soaking up sun, making friends and enjoying the music of such entertainers as Jose Feliciano; Melanie; The Grand Funk Railway; Ten Years After and Procol Harum.

Most were part of a continuous drug scene that went observed by about 300 provincial police officers who stayed outside the park.

They camped in tents, under plastic shelters stretched between trees, in, under and on top of their vehicles or just out under the open sky.

Some cooked meals over campfires while others lined up for free food from booths set up by a Toronto restaurant, or patronized the several concessions set up in the 500-acre park area.

POLICE DISCREET

The absence of uniformed police 40 plainclothes OPP and RCMP mingled among the crowds in the park made for good relations between the youths and police.

"At home they beat us, here they feed us," said one young American with whom a police officer shared some sandwiches.

The special detachment of provincial police outside the park performed normal police functions, an OPP spokesman said.

There were a handful of arrests, involving persons coming to or leaving the festival site. but none in the park area itself.

Chief Superintendent Laurence Gartner of the provincial police told a news conference Sunday police expected to arrest a number of drug pushers.

He said four or five persons who had sold drugs, all of them Americans had been photographed and their vehicle licence plates recorded by plainclothes officers.

Although the festival officially ended Sunday night, the promoters indicated some local groups would provide entertainment today as many of the young people took their time breaking camp.

Charges Refuted

CALGARY (CP) — Charges by the Welfare Rights Group that social workers were discouraging welfare recipients from joining the organization have no basis, said Ken Motherwell, director of citizen participation for the social development department.

Motherwell told a meeting of the welfare group the department could find no evidence of such action by social workers but "we heard of some social workers who have referred welfare recipients to the rights group."

Charges by a Calgary social worker that members of the group had attempted to intimidate him were also incorrect, Motherwell said.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday night, showed Saskatchewan with seven deaths, Manitoba with five and Alberta with three.

Four of Manitoba's deaths were in traffic and the fifth was a man hit by a train. Two persons died in a fire in Alberta and a third drowned.

The seven persons died when a car and a three-quarter ton truck collided on Highway 11 near Craik, Sask., 70 miles north of Regina. Names of the victims and details were withheld.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Passengers on an airliner generally do not see much of the weather the aircraft slices through on its passage over land and sea. The pilot and his crew see the weather from their own vantage point, but they do so with the help of special knowledge and very exotic instruments. However, everybody can look out the windows in sunlight or bright moonlight and thrill to the cloud pattern.

Once, flying into Shannon from the coast of Ireland in a Constellation, I looked down to see patterns in the hill-and-dale cloud formation that looked just like ski tracks. That trip also brought peculiar cloud formations on the way to London from Shannon that had all sorts of huge and strange animals gamboling about in the path to the right and ahead of us.

One of the most interesting sights is to see the land or ocean below the aircraft through holes in the cloud pattern. On the way to Tonga from Fiji the aircraft flew over a group of islands that at first appeared to be a large body of land because the clouds obscured most of the sea between the islands.

RACING ROUNDUP

Swinging Apache Captures Derby

(Times News Services)

Swinging Apache, a bay son of the famous Northern Dancer, lived up to expectations Saturday and ran away with the $20,000-added Canadian Derby at Edmonton.

The three-year-old gelding, owned by Frank McMahon of Vancouver and trained by Vance Longden, led from gate to wire. It was his fifth victory in five starts.

Sent off at 3-5 odds, Swinging APche, ridden by Basil Frazier, covered the 1⅜ miles in 2:21 4-5, three-quarters of a length ahead of Prebens Pride. Steel Hatter finished third, 1¼ lengths back of the winner.

SWEEPS WINNER

Biggest winner was Lana Sundstrom, 19, of Edmonton, who collected $60,000 of a $100,000 sweepstake, the first major lottery in Alberta. Alberta's second $100,000 sweepstake will be held with the running of the Stampede Futurity Stakes Sept. 5 in Calgary.

At Vancouver, Silver Double led all the way for a 12-length victory in the $5,000-added Vancouver PURSE AT Exhibition Park, reduced to an exhibition run because of lack of entries.

McMahon's Love Your Host was 3½ lengths back, followed by another McMahin runner, Regal Jingle, and Handsome Chief. The small field meant there was no wagering.

Twice Worthy, the favorite, won the $109,000 Monmouth Invitational Handicap at Oceanport, N. J. Roman Scout took second while Dust Commander, the Kentucky Derbd winner, finished third.

Twice Worthy won in the track record time of 1:48 2-5 over the 1⅛-mile distance.

Yonge Sparks Polo Triumph

Victoria Polo Club downed Tacoma 5-3 Sunday in the final game of a three-team, round-robin tournament for the Jack Robertson Memorial trophy on Victoria's home grounds near Saanichton.

Tony Yonge scored three goals to pace Victoria riders while singles were added by David Harris and Andrew Barrie. Gordie Wood (2) and Allen Amaroso scored for Tacoma.

In opening matches, Tacoma downed Vancouver 2-1 and Victoria toppled Vancouver 4-3.

This marks the first time that a Victoria team has won the tourney in its three-year history.

Victoria Bowlers Nab Big Share of Crowns

Victoria contestants collected a major share of the titles Saturday as play was completed in a pair of annual lawn bowling tournaments on city greens.

Tom Dixon's Nanaimo team, which included Harry Tuck and Frank Lee, captured the triples title. Dixon also won the "C" singles crown.

NOVICE CHAMPION

Domination of finals began Friday when the Victoria quartet of Hugh Renfrew, Joe Davidson, Bert Mildleton and Matt Yule emerged with the rink crown.

In the Greater Victoria Ladies' Lawn Bowling Association tourney on the Carnarvon Park greens, Joan Turner of Victoria West recorded a double victory.

Joan won the singles championship and then teamed with clubmat Vilsie Wright for a doubles win.

Victoria's entry of Alice McConnell, Vi Cole, Jean Siddons and Jennie Bennett captured the rink title while Mrs. Bennett also won the "B" singles crown.

Coquitlam Tykes Take Boxla Title

COQUITLAM (CP) — Coquitlam's "A" squad downed Vancouver Grandview 9-2 Sunday to win the A-class British Columbia tyke lacrosse championship.

The three-day championships involved eight teams in the under-eight age group.

Tucker Sidelined

OTTAWA (CP) — Flanker Whit Tucker of Ottawa Rough Riders underwent an operation Wednesday for removal of bone fragments in his right knee. He will be placed on the 30-day injury list.

Belkin Finds No Glee In Victory by Default

TORONTO (CP) — Mike Belkin of Montreal retained his Canadian closed tennis championship Sunday but it wasn't a victory with which he was particularly happy.

Belkin, the tournament's top seed, lost the first set 6-3 to second-seeded John Sharpe, beat the 31-year-old Toronto stockbroker 6-0 in the second and couldn't believe it when Sharpe withdrew because of foot blisters.

"I would have preferred it if he had ployed the last set out but if his foot was real bad . . . " said Belkin.

DEFAULT DOUBLES

Sharpe was also forced to withdraw from the doubles, meaning he and Belkin defaulted the title to Bob Bedard of Lennoxville, Que., and Bob Puddicombe of Vancouver.

"I had three layers of skin that just rolled off when I tried to run," Sharpe said after withdrawing. "I just couldn't continue."

Andree Martin, a 20-year-old pert blonde from Montreal, took some advice from the late American great Bill Tilden and defeated Jane O'Hara of Toronto 4-6, 6-2, 6-0 to take the women's crown vacated by Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont.

"He (Tilden) said if you go out on the court, you must go out to win. If you lose, that's too bad, but you can't go out scared you're going to lose."

Saturday, Belkin reached the final by beating Bedard, the 38-year-old schoolteacher who says he's retired from tournament tennis, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

Sharpe entered the finals by beating Keith Carpenter of Toronto 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Martin had little trouble in beating 45-year-old Louise Brown of Toronto 6-2, 6-1 while Miss O'Hara eliminated Susan Eager of Vancouver 7-5, 6-2 in Saturday's semis.

The two finalists later teamed to beat the Vancouver team of Vicki Berner and Michelle Carey 9-7, 2-6, 6-1 in Sunday's doubles final.

Sharpe and Belkin won their doubles semi-final Saturday by beating Robin Elliott and Bob Howes of Vancouver 6-3, 6-4 while Bedard and Puddicombe struggled past Harry Fauquier of Toronto and Carpenter 6-4, 10-8.

Berner and Carey beat Miss Eager and Benita Senn of Toronto 6-2, 6-2 while Martin and O'Hara downed Susan Butt and Stephanie Bardsley of Vancouver 6-0, 6-4.

Pocket-Size Parks Make Sense

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

The idea of pocket-sized parks in Victoria is a sound one, not only for today but for the future when it is more than likely that green swards, no matter how small, will be worth more to the public than all the tea in China. Increasing population, with its increase in housing and the attendant encroachment on open land, eventually will make parks, large or pocket-size, one of our city's most precious assets.

It is my hope, therefore, that if Alderman Peter Pollen's wish to pick up two available patches of land for such use does become fact, this moderate start will live and grow.

Mini-parks have been successfully acquired and developed in many other places.

I know some who read this column will point as an example to London, England, where parks and greenbelts of all sizes are not new—they are centuries old.

However, you don't need to go far away to find cities, towns and municipalities striving in a small way to emulate London.

For instance, if you know the district of North Vancouver then you will know that for some years now it has been developing pocket-size pieces of land into mini-parks.

Where these are situated in dense traffic zones, they have merely been landscaped with flower beds and benches.

In other places, where traffic is not dense, or where new sub-divisions have gone in, little parks have been developed as Tot Lots with one or two pieces of play equipment.

* * *

One such Tot Lot that I saw not too long ago was in the Capilano district. There a small piece of land had been acquired and when it came time to develop it the district parks board came up with a very imaginative idea.

It was to create a log replica (in miniature) of an old-time Hudson's Bay Company fort, instead of putting in slides and swings.

This was done. With the result that now I don't suppose there is a day in the week that the play fort is not besieged, captured and recaptured, as youngsters up Capilano-way (and for that matter from other areas in North Vancouver) re-enact history with their own modern twist.

You can see, then, that when you start talking of pocket-size parks in our city, the ideas can be endless.

That's why I wish Alderman Pollen good luck in his endeavor to acquire the first of these bits of land, one near Memorial Arena and the other at Oak Bay Junction.

And I hope, if these first mini-parks do become fact, that before too long they will multiply into many more.

Just a reminder: Victoria Fair season is now well into the final half of its program. There is only four weeks more in which to see the three productions in McPherson Theatre. If you have not already booked your tickets then do so now.

In the main, reviews of all three have been complimentary. Androcles and the Lion is short and extremely funny. The Duchess of Malfi an amazing picture of avarice, pride and a curious kind of love, in a Rome of long ago. Turcaret is a comedy with a moral.

Take your pick or go to all three. In doing so, remember Victoria Fair is our own. Support it!

The silly season must surely be here. When postal Columbia came to a complete halt, as they did last Friday, and the strike zone co-ordinator for postal workers announces it was done (at the expense of the general public, mind you) to celebrate Trudeau Day in the province.

I ask you, how silly can you get in an effort to gain publicity? To me the move was downright asinins.

Plane Crash Kills Five

STOVER, Mo. (AP) — Five relatives were killed in the crash of a light plane near Stover Sunday night.

Jim Scrivner, operator of a funeral home at Versailles, Mo., said the victims were Capt. Clarence J. Lilly, 27; his wife, Clara, 27; their two-year-old daughter, Julia Marie; and the captain's brothers, Sgt. Henry J. Lilly, 21, and Samuel Eugene Lilly, 14.

The captain and sergeant were stationed at Whiteman Air Force Base northwest of Stover. The plane had flown from Little Rock to Whiteman earlier Sunday and had taken off from Whiteman shortly before the crash, an official said.

The crash occurred on a farm.

In the days when sail was king, B.C.'s weekend mariners knew a thing or two about the water. And the beer. Sure, there have been some changes — but the yachtsmen of yesteryear would still say "Aye" to Old Style. It's still their style. Slow brewed and naturally aged to wet a man-sized whistle. That's why it's British Columbia's favorite beer. Down the hatch, me hearties!

LIVING IT UP

Four Good Things In Two Off Days

By Jack Scott

Being some adventures I enjoyed in Victoria over the weekend:

★ ★ ★

I enjoyed the morning service at the Chinese Presbyterian Church at Blanshard and North Park, where my handsome friend Rev. Edward Ling is the pastor, though exactly half The Message went in one ear and out the other.

Edward conducts a bilingual service because some of the older Chinese here are short on English and some of the younger second and third generation Canadian Chinese are short on Cantonese.

The hymns are sung simultaneously in both languages until east and west meet thunderously in the common tongue of Latin with "Amen."

Scott

What surprised me most was that Cantonese, so often parodied as a sing-song twittering, is immensely powerful in rhythm and emphasis.

Edward and his guest, Wing Mak, who is soon to be ordained, told me that each language has peculiar advantages over the other. The English use of alliteratives for dramatic effect and the cadences of multi-syllable words aren't possible in Chinese since one sound represents one word. On the other hand a preacher who manages 120 words a minute in English can get 400 across in Cantonese in the same time which, depending upon the preacher, may either shorten the sermon or lengthen the proposition.

Edward told me that it's uncharacteristic of the Chinese to visualize heavenly beings, but that angels are depicted in church magazines with Occidental, rather than Oriental, faces, simply because Presbyterian is an imported religion and the western tradition is respected.

Would God, Himself, be imagined as a Chinese by a Chinese? They simply didn't know.

I enjoyed a quiet hour in the nook at the Art Gallery currently graced with the paintings of Emily Carr, my own three favorites being "Deep Woods," "Deep Forest" and "Among The Trees."

The miracle of her genius in painting the British Columbia rain forest, as I measure it, is that I get the same feeling of peace, wonder and awe sitting in front of these canvasses that I get when I'm deep in the Scott Do-It-Yourself National Park that I've been creating on Salt Spring Island these past 20 years.

Mark Kearley, in a talk to students at Brentwood College, came closest, I think, to explaining why this should be so.

"When you look at Emily Carr's trees," he advised the youngsters, "remember always that to her the whole forest was alive. It was a Mystic Place, the dwelling of that Great Spirit who gives Life to all things. For her the trees lived. Some danced — some almost skipped, pirouetting and spinning in the gayest fashion, some trail their branches majestically as they turn: others are gnarled and old, and of immense height. Some are almost threatening, their great heavy branches hang down like the wings of doom, or curtains of gloom and eternal silence. Some — like burning brush of old — are bright with fire, yet are not consumed. But all of them, all of them are alive, suffused with life and movement and rhythm."

It is a remarkable thing, but demonstrably true, that if you look into an Emily Carr for just a few minutes you will suddenly scent the fragrance of evergreens.

I enjoyed a splendid, authentic Japanese dinner at the Maiko Gardens in Bastion Square, newest of our town's exotic eating places, already a run-away success. "Maiko," by the way, loosely translates as "apprentice geisha dancer." It's about all that's missing in this pleasant nook.

The man with the idea is a 41-year-old one-time piano salesman with the singularly un-Nipponese name of Art Smith who became interested in things Japanese when he started importing Yamaha pianos. Such are the accidents that shape men's lives. He's in partnership with Mieko and Yuriko, two charming, Japanese-born experts in their native cuisine who, with four other Japanese girls, provide tender, loving care from the moment you doff your shoes at the door.

You dine, of course, in your own little room at low tables (there's a well under there for long, occidental legs unaccustomed to pleating) and your Sukiyaki (sliced beef with fresh mushrooms, bamboo shoots and whatnot) is barbecued by the kimona-clad girls on your own habachi. So there's all sorts of involvement.

Watch for the Yakitori, which is barbecued chicken, the Tempura, which is deep-fried shrimp, fish and vegetables in a light batter and the Beef Teriyaki, all served with warmed Kiku Masamune saki, the Japanese rice wine that has a sneaky bite — so watch that, too, (In Japan, it should be noted, the Japanese are more likely to be drinking Haig & Haig.)

If you've a mind to—and very few have—the fresh octopus is a whole new taste sensation.

One remarkable thing about this 6,539-yard, par 70, layout is that it plays almost exactly as it did when A. V. Macan designed it nearly 60 years ago on property purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company by James Dunsmuir. Even the sand traps, all 80, are the same.

The "Royal" in Royal Colwood was conferred by Edward VIII who, as Prince of Wales, played it in 1935 and, like most everyone, loved it. There's no record of the Prince's scores (he was, I'm told, a five handicap), but the course record is 65, held by several players, including Lawrie Kerr, eight times city champion.

Oak Bay and Gorge Vale are more scenic courses, but the magnificent turf of Colwood can hardly be surpassed anywhere. So long as you're on the fairway your ball is sitting up there, begging to be kissed.

Sweda and his crew have the staggering task of maintaining some 60 acres of lush lawn, year in and year out, whatever the weather, with as many as 400 players a day hacking at it. The whole procedure is a curiously arbitrary exercise in horticultural. "We force the hell out of the grass and we cut it shorter than nature meant it to be," Gerry told me, "so you're always pushing for growth just to cut it off. Crazy, isn't it?"

Crazy or not, it's a magnificent achievement.

Oh, and a footnote for first-time Colwood players: That baronial building above the 18th green, once the clubhouse, is now the residence of St. Mary's Priory so remember, when you miss that putt, that the gentle sisters are listening.

Regional Study Of Services Urged

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he hopes the Greater Victoria Regional District Board will undertake a study of co-ordination of some municipal services.

Campbell indicated he has dropped any hope that the four major municipalities in the region will undertake such a study following what he called "very lukewarm" reaction to his June 25 requests for such a study.

Campbell said he has discussed the question of a regional study with board chairman Hugh Curtis.

It would involve possibly two or three of the suggested co-ordination areas.

In his letters to the four municipalities of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, Campbell listed police and fire protection, garbage disposal, assessment machinery, accounting and auditing procedures, purchasing and public works equipment as potential areas in which efficiencies might be made.

The minister said it is "pointless" to pursue a voluntary study by the four main municipalities unless some "enthusiasm" is evident on all sides.

Victoria referred Campbell's request to a committee after indicating approval, Saanich and Oak Bay backed it and Esquimalt turned it down.

Campbell said the regional approach would now seem to be the most likely way of getting an over-all study under way. He said he hoped that a majority of the regional board would support a partial co-ordination study.

Campbell's letter in June to the four mayors "strongly" suggested they look at services which might be co-ordinated. It was one of a lengthy series of moves by the minister to promote greater efficiency in municipal services which he has described as "running to stay in the same place" in the face of rising costs.

New Plan For Island 'Different'

The first one was withdrawn by the Capital Regional District board after islanders complained it would make many business properties non-conforming.

Regional planner Tony Roberts said today a number of meetings have been held with the Salt Spring Island Advisory Planning Commission "and we have come up with another draft and a different approach."

Asked whether it solves the non-conforming problem, he said "we've come with a solution. I don't want to describe it right now."

Roberts said it is possible the new draft will come before the regional board later this month in bylaw form.

2 Persons Killed In Bridge Crash

Two people were killed and a third was seriously injured early Sunday morning when a late-model convertible slammed into a bridge abutment in Saanich.

★

Killed in the crash at 1:40 a.m. on the Trans-Canada Highway were Linda Fitton, 19, of 107 Quincy, and John Edward O'Flynn, 27, of 828 Hockley.

★

Saanich police said the car, outbound on the highway, was apparently approaching the bridge at the Interurban overpass when it went out of control, veered across the centre line and smashed into the concrete abutment at the south side of the east end of the bridge.

Driver of the car has not been determined.

Police investigation into the accident is continuing.

FAMILY SERVICE SEEKS BRANCH IN ROYAL OAK

The Family and Children's Service is looking for a new branch office but hasn't found a place yet, an official said today.

A new branch was started at 3621 Quadra Street in mid-June, before rezoning approval was given. When the application came before Saanich council, it was rejected.

The official said the premises have been vacated and the work is being carried on from the main office on Fort Street.

Family and marital counselling would have been provided at the branch, closer to the area being served than Fort Street.

"We are hoping to find another place, in the Quadra-Royal Oak area," said the official.

HOT ON THE TRAIL

Three Alarm Boxes Later, He . . .

He lit out running, but he didn't stop at the nearest house to telephone, and he didn't stop at the first fire alarm box at the corner.

He didn't even stop at the second fire box a few blocks down the street.

He didn't stop, in fact, until he had made it all the way to the Century Inn beer parlor.

By the time the alarm came in what had started as a simple chesterfield fire had spread to the floor and the walls, doing $500 damage to the residence of B.C. Browning.

BEACON 'FESTIVAL'

A Better Life For Everyone

By GINNY GALT

The Voice of Women's Festival of Life in Beacon Hill Park Saturday peacefully marked the 25th anniversary of the day the atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima.

And, although the commemoration was two days late, protest groups of all shapes and sizes turned up to quietly urge their plans of action for a better world.

The Victoria Abortion Reform Committee did it with signs. Make Love, Not Babies. Stop Heir Pollution. Control Your Local Stork.

A local rock band did it quietly with music. quietly because park officials asked them to turn it down. It turned out that you need a special permit for rock bands, and the Voice of Women didn't have one.

VoW president Mavis de Girolamo, applied to city council for a permit Wednesday, but was turned down. The reason given was that nearby high-rise residents would object to the noise. So two rock bands scheduled to play later in the day didn't play.

The 10-hour festival, which started at noon, attracted a total of about 600 people, who came and went all day.

Mrs. Waveney Burchill, promoting Canadian aid for Vietnam civilians, was asking people to knit clothing for Vietnamese children. Ten knitters signed up.

A Save Our Seas sign drew people to a booth where they were asked to sign a petition requesting that the federal government make Georgia Strait an underwater national park.

The Save Our Trees people from Begbie Street were there too.

One of the day's highlights was the Saanich Silver Threads band, which has been playing together for just over a year. The two fiddlers, pianist, and countless harmonica players played all the oldies but goodies.

Home on the Range. McNamara's Band. Two of them did the highland fling and people sang along.

Mrs. de Girolamo asked people, as they celebrated the life and joy of the community, to turn their thoughts for a few brief moments to the anniversary they were commemorating. — "a terrible and bloody tragedy which we must still strive to overcome."

●

And while there were no doves fluttering around when she recited The Dove Is Dead, a family of swallows kept swooping through Cameron Bandshell.

The festival's keynote speaker was University of British Columbia zoology professor, Robin Harger.

He said the "Hiroshima atrocity" happened in the first place because the magnitude of the atomic bomb as a weapon compelled its use in the hands of people who had become obsessed with the idea of vengance and reprisal.

"The decision to use that bomb reflected the essence of fascism on this continent," Harger said.

Harger said if man is to survive, people must join action groups.

"It's all right to talk in church and universities but unless people act on their grandiose ideas, nothing will get done," said Harger, an active member of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

Perm Proud Flappers Wore Hair Afro Style

By ROMOLA METZNER

In the last few years, opportunities for black models have opened up as never before. Magazines, live fashion shows and TV all are using darker-skinned girls at an increasing clip. Does this mean quick success for every qualified black youngster who would like to model?

"Far from it," said Norma Darden recently, after she had given a lively performance with other models showing off Jon Haggins' new collection for Bymini. "I've only just signed with one of the leading agencies for live modelling. I've been running my feet off, and grabbing every opportunity that comes. There are lots that don't pan out, but that's true for every model, even established ones. Sure, the chances are there, but it just means the same hard work all models put in."

Norma Darden has worked as an extra in over 80 films, eaten quarts of cottage cheese and ice cream for various TV commercials — "One fattened me up, the other slimmed me down!" — and been in a few shows both on and off Broadway. A drama major from Sarah Lawrence, prestigious women's college, Norma confessed that her long-range ambition is for the theatre. Modelling she sees as a way to break in nowadays.

Norma is one of the new breed of fashion model, the animated kind who can move and express emotion, rather than the once-standard haughty glamor type. Her fashion feeling is similar, in the swingy young mode.

"I love fashion today, for the freedom of it in every area. I've gotten hipped on the Twenties. There's a place up at Amsterdam Avenues and 79th Street that carries some of the real things. I have a real sugar-daddy Charleston dress of black chiffon with all-over glitter bead embroidery which the shop owner told me was handworked and worth about $2,000 originally. I bought it for $20."

Norma's love for the Twenties also extends to her theatrical idols, Josephine Baker, Florence Mills and Billie Holliday, all stars of that era. She spends a lot of time in the Schomberg library up in Harlem studying the lives of such famed performers, goes to lots of plays and movies to watch techniques of today's stars.

Not all her clothes come from the wild side.

"Wearing way-out stuff can become just as tiresome as wearing standard clothes all the time. The fun lies in using clothes to suit an occasion or a mood. There are plenty of places where a quiet suit is called for."

Norma feels the same way about hair fashions. On the day of the Jon Haggins show she wore it in a Twenties way, brushed down smooth, then brushed out around the sides in what is now thought of as Afro.

"Pooh, lots of Twenties hairdos looked like that," Norma said. "It was the permanent wave that did it. Perms were new then, and women wore their hair unset after the permanent. But I also brush it back smooth into a chignon, and wear hairpieces at others to create other styles. I wouldn't be hung up on an Afro any more than I would be hung up on one kind of fashion look. In fact, I use tension rollers to keep my hair less springy, therefore easier to change in style."

Norma comes naturally by her independence. She recalled that her first dramatic appearances were at funerals, beginning when she was three. Professional mourners were a custom in North Carolina, and her grandfather was a funeral director.

"It was a family business started in the 1800's by an ancestor who was among the first to own a business as a freeman. The family has kept it going ever since, although my own father is a physician in Newark, New Jersey. As an official mourner I used to alternate between beige and lavender dresses. I retired when I was eight years, old, but I never lost the performing bug. I'm glad opportunity is greater today, but I know the hard work is still necessary."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Never Too Old

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I cannot remain silent after reading about that 67-year-old man making a play for his 88-year-old sister-in-law. This man needs help all right. What he needs is a woman who is ready, willing and able. I'd guess that his wife is able, but she is neither ready nor willing. The fact that the object of his affections is an 88-year-old woman is perhaps unusual, but it sets no precedent.

And I'll tell you something else, too. Eighty-eight-year-old Mamma may not be as dismayed by his attentions as is her daughter. I was a good man at 67, and still lack a lot of being dead at 70, and I resent your inferring that a 67-year-old man is a doddering old dodo.

Your answer, "Speak to the man as you would to a 'naughty boy'," irked me.

Dear Abby, just wait until you are 67 and see if you want some patronizing person talking to you as if you are a 10-year-old "naughty girl." Very truly yours—Still Alive at 79.

DEAR ALIVE: Thanks for writing. I am aware that Cupid doesn't work with a calendar, and I know that a 67-year-old man (or woman) can have a lively interest in romance. But when a man that age tries to take improper liberties with his 88-year-old sister-in-law, I say, he is neither healthy nor normal, and this bird needs help — and watching!

DEAR ABBY: I am a hairdresser in one of the better shops in town. The tips here run a dollar for a shampoo and set, so you know our clientele isn't exactly cheap.

We have a money-hungry operator here I'll call Susie who talks her customers into "conditioners," treatments and color, whether they need it or not. She brags that she sells her customers haircuts, then a perm, followed by another haircut (cutting all the perm off), followed by another perm and so on. She pulls every trick in the book to run up the customer's bill. She makes the rest of us look like a bunch of pikers.

Now Susie has a new one. She has a piggy bank in her booth with a sign over it, "Send Susie to Jamaica." We think this is pretty crummy. What do you think?—The Other Operators.

DEAR OPERATORS: I think all you operators ought to buy Susie the ticket! (One way.)

DEAR ABBY: How important are table manners? I am married to a very fine young man who is kind and considerate, and I really do love him, but Abby, his table manners are unbelievable! We've been married only four months, and I admit I noticed this before we were married, but I thought I could change him later.

He eats just like an animal. He piles so much food on his plate that it slops over the edges, and soon it's all over the tablecloth. He fills his mouth full, chews with his mouth half open, and he eats like someone is going to take the food away from him. He doesn't use a napkin. He wipes his mouth with his bread.

Naturally, I don't invite anyone for dinner. Is there a book that tells how to eat properly? I hate to nag him, and little hints like "Please slow up, honey," or, "Please close your mouth when you chew, darling," don't seem to get through to him. Except for this one fault, he's a wonderful guy.—Frazzled Nerves.

DEAR FRAZZLED: There are books to teach one which fork to use, but your husband needs more than that. With all the love and kindness you can muster, give him a palatable eating lesson, and teach him everything he needs to know. And if he's as "wonderful" as you say he is, he'll thank you for it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. J. P.: Urge him to put his affairs in order. He may live.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Wrote to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Children Prefer Structured Setting

TORONTO (CP) — Children who turn to drugs often come from overly-permissive homes a woman specialist in teaching children with learning disabilities said.

Angie Nall, director of a school-hospital bearing her name in Beaumont, Tex., said in an interview that children need rules and a structured setting in which to function.

Miss Nall, who received the Learning Disabilities Award in the United States last year, listed some rules she enforces in her school and stressed that normal children need the same type of environment.

- Speak quietly to a child at all times but "a quiet voice with a certain tone or accompanied by a look can turn it into a scream from the child's view."
- Avoid hustle and bustle in the morning.
- Stop teasing or arguing between brothers and sisters or parents.

Miss Nall said she believed that just as many girls as boys suffer from learning disabilities, which is contrary to many educationists who claim young boys have more learning problems than girls and are handicapped by competing with girls and having women teachers.

Boys' problems can be identified earlier, Miss Nall said, because they tend to show more aggression in the classroom.

This Frenchman Grows Emeralds 'Like British Grow Roses'

By SHIRLEY CONRAN

LONDON — I have just found, tucked away in a sleepy French village, a darling man who makes Cartier look dowdy.

He is called Pierre Gilson. He has eight children, the eldest of whom, Petit Peirre, is 30. He is a civilian pilot and an engineer. He runs his family brickworks and also grows emeralds.

It was for his emerald-growing that I went to see him, so I invited top British jewellery designer John Donald to go along with me as well. His favourite stones are emeralds.

He is not alone. Even Pliny the Elder (who can surely have never stopped talking) said that tired or dull eyes are refreshed when they contemplatean emerald, and I agree. Emeralds are also reputed to prevent leprosy, preserve chastity and aid childbirth (which seem contradictory claims).

We were met at Le Touquet airport by young Pierre, who was to drive us to the factory. He was charming, and treated us like the British treat foreigners, talking in a loud and kindly voice as if asking the way of the village idiot.

"The first cultured emerald" he spelled out, "was produced in France in 1840, but it was only the size of a pinhead. Mr. Chatham, an American physicist, has been producing his own small (sic) emeralds since the 1950s and Papa read one of his articles in a magazine, then thought he would rather like to grow emeralds himself, as a hobby, you understand, as you English grow roses.

"Fourteen years later, after much disappointment, he produced an emeral that was big enough to cut, but of poor quality. At the end of 1965 the quality started to improve, and, whereas then it was difficult to produce a good stone, now it is difficult for us to produce a bad one. Our stones are not reconstructed emeralds, not synthetic; we just force them to grow bigger and faster under artifical conditions."

"Like rhubarb?" I asked.

"Not really, because we start with the seed of the natural emerald, using a naturalbaby emerald to grow bit of the big one and start all over again."

"Like Yogurt," I thought.

"The gestation period is nine months," he said.

"Those, too" I said.

"There are only two emerald growers in the world, my father and Mr. Chatham, and we make big crystals with a maximum of 650 carats, which Mr. Chathem has not produced. At the beginning no one in the jewellery trade believed that our cultured emeralds were of as good quality as the natural stones. But we claim that they are harder, better cut and cost a fifth of the price. We can insert flaws also," he added carelessly. "We can adjust the color 2— we make three tints and six shapes and decide exactly which quality we want to make. There are three grades: bijouterie, joaillerie and gemme."

We whizzed along hot, poplar lined roads until we arrived at a long, low white-painted building which looked like five small suburban houses squashed together built in five different styles with an assortment of left-overs from the btick factory. The small front garden twas full of clover with a rose bed and a child's swing. It did not look like an Aladdin's treasure store of emeralds.

Inside was a cool small room where four plump teenagers in flowered aprons were casually cutting up emeralds on mechanical saws supervised by an engineer In another room emeralds were being cut, 11 at a time, on a machine that was computer-operated and tended by another teenager. Heaps of emeralds were lying around. "We get great wastage," sai Petit Pierre. "Seventy-five to 80 per cent of the crystal is lost when the stone is cut; we throw the ground-up waste away."

John Donald was growing quieter as his ehes grew bigger and bigger. On the wall before the safe was a sales chart showing the turnover since 1965. Nineteen-sixty-nine had gone right off the top of the chart, like a cartoon.

Young Pierre then showed off a bit; he opened the safe and produced huge velvet boxes of glittering emeralds, saying: "Every seen a 400-carat emerald?" Mr. Donald was impressed. he said: "You might get a natural emerald as big as that, but not nearly of such fine quality, so beautifully formed or so clean."

I've never seen a man break an emerald in two without flinching, but that was the next thing Pierre did, and it made me feel so weak that I asked for a glass of water.

John Donald called for a Chelsea filter, a sort of monocle with different colored glass filters, and examined some natural and some cultured emeralds. You cannot call them real or artificial because both sorts are real.

"Well, I'm sorry, but I think I can tell the difference," he said. I could as well. Underneath the Chelsea filter a fake emerald looked green, the real emerald looked coconut-ice pink, and the Gilson emerald looked deep red.

At lunch we met the famous Monsieur Gilson. He looks like a kindly doctor with small features, pepper-and-salt hair, gold spectacles and a near square figure; a bit like Eli Wallach.

I boldly asked him how he made emeralds. "We prefer to keep the secret and not to patent it. It is a very complicated but logical process. I was always optimistic throughout those 14 years because the original idea never proved a dead end, it always proceeded logically."

"What did you do once you had made your first emerald?"

"I then invented turquoises."

"What are you going to make next?"

"To wear aquamarines when swimming is very pretty but I shall grow lapis lazuli next, then opals. Whatever you want."

"Why not diamonds?"

"Why not? Diamonds are more emotive. At the moment I am most interested in emeralds. I have met Monsieur Chatham twice in San Francisco. It was an emerald-growers' convention — just the two of us."

"Did you see his stones, did you whip out your Chelsea filter?"

"Chatham cannot control his process as well as we, and he makes smaller crystals. Our process is more sophisticated."

"In the engineering sense?"

"In every sense. Anyway, there is another emerald detection method apart from the Chelsea filter. You heat a natural emerald and a cultured one slowly in a graduated furnace until it reaches a temperature of 1,000 degrees C. and the stone which turns white and pasty and crumbles is the real emerald, which you then throw away."

I had been told that I would on no account be allowed inside the laboratory, but thought I'd give it a try.

"Please, dearest M. Gilson, will you show me how you make emeralds?"

"You run the bath," he said. "Then add the instant emerald mix."

Enormously pleased with this joke he walked back with us through the forest to his laboratory, which is in the hayloft, a room a bit bigger than my kitchen, divided centrally by a glass wall, beyond which I could see a row of grey ovens, with temperature gauges, glass and needles zigzagging above them. Obviously that must be where they cook them. On the table stood a half-gallon plastic jar labelled "Mousse de Platine pure" and a jugful of small emeralds, about one-and-a-half pints at a rough guess.

All this time with a twinkle in his eye Gilson was telling me how to make emeralds. Of course I understood nothing.

Under the laboratory were rows and rows of expensive-looking machinery, all clicking like loose-fitting false teeth. He glowed inwardly as he stroked his Atomic Absorption Spectrophotometer. The only time he showed a little concern was when I held a sort of platinum toast-rack full of emeralds up to the light. He put his hand underneath it in case I dropped it, explaining: "That is worth £100,000.

We then saw the test pieces of turquoise which were very good indeed, a beautiful bird's egg color as well as the rare deep-blue shade.

Later, tearing back late to the aircraft, John Donald found his voice again, and very respectful it was.

"What Gilson's doing is lifting the rarest stones in the world, for which no synthetics exist, and then growing them like orchids. It's daft, but his emeralds are purer emeralds than natural emeralds. Judged as gems they are superior to a natural emerald in that they are more practical. They produce a harder stone with fewer flaws.

"It is the catalyst process he's perfected, and the main problem is to find the catalyst in each precious stone. I feel he could make any gem. The fantastic thing — what is unique — is the size of his stones and the scale of his production. It's a fantastic feat of alchemy and control One secret is the contents of the mixture in which they immerse the baby emerald, and the other is how they manage to keep the consistency of the mixture and precisely over nine months.

"In theory," he said gloomily, "it's all the simplest schoolboy chemistry stuff. It's just what your son is doing at a school, growing crystals, though instead of emeralds he is growing copper sulphate."

Indians Must Learn to Cope With Conflict of Cultures

By ROBIN BURGESS

Helping Indian youngsters to function within our white-oriented school system is one of the main projects of the B.C. Native Women's Society, said Hattie Fergusson at the Festival of Life Saturday.

Mrs. Fergusson, a member of the Kispiox tribe, told participants in the Festival in Beacon Hill Park about some of the projects and aims of the year-old society for native women.

"One of our big concerns at the moment is education," said Mrs. Fergusson. "We know there is a conflict in cultures for Indian youngsters who try to succeed in white schools. But so there is as well for Chinese youngsters and they seem to be able to overcome it."

Mrs. Fergusson described the B.C. Native Women's Society as "a group of native women who aren't afraid of anyone or anything trying to tackle some of the gigantic problems facing Indians today."

In an interview afterwards she outlined how the sociaty is attempting to find a solution for some youth-related problems.

At a recent convention in Vancouver, said Mrs. Fergusson, the members passed a motion recommending that Indian or understanding non-Indian counsellors be provided for Indian students at the elementary school level.

Also, in an effort to encourage recreational competitions and program for native youth, the B.C. Native Women's Society sponsored this year's Indian Princess pageant.

Mrs. Fergusson said promoting better treatment of the native aged is another important aim of the society.

The members have raised enough funds to set up two homes, she said, one in North Vancouver that is already in operation and another one in the Okanagan.

Mrs. Ferguson strongly criticized the plan initiated in the U.S. under President Dwight Eisenhower to phase out all Indian reserves over a five-year period.

"Elimination of reserves is not the answer for helping the Indian. You cannot put a group of people on a reserve for over 100 years and expect them to fit quickly and easily into white society."

She sympathized with the impatience of young Indians involved in radical organizations such as the Native Alliance for Red Power.

"When I was young I hated the white man too. Now I'm older I have a different way of fighting," she said.

Japanese Wives Fight for Their Place in the Sun

By SELIG S. HARRISON

TOKYO — Japanese husbands are still taking the long way home, but the geisha, the bar girl and the cabaret hostess face formidable competition from a new generation of wives in their 20s and 30s with lively new ideas about marriage.

Hollywood and the television screen have gradually begun to undermine the old ideal of the submissive Japanese wife who tends the hearth uncomplainingly while her husband looks for extracurricular companionship.

More and more young couples are measuring their marriages against the western model. They go out together on Sunday, they talk to each other and they are even beginning to sleep together without a child at their side as houses get bigger and separate bedrooms replace traditional Japanese-style togetherness.

Love and marriage were never meant to go together like horse and carriage in Japan under the feudal joint family system. In arranged marriages, the young wife was handed over from her parents to her in-laws after the most perfunctory introduction to her husband.

Her relationship with her husband was not expected to be too consuming lest it get in the way of her major responsibility to her mother-in-law and the family group as a whole. The very word for the marriage of a girl in Japan literally means "going from one family to another."

'SHALLOW BRAINS'

According to the Onna [illegible] marital guide for girls in [illegible] Japan, women "generally speaking suffer from the mental defects of disobedience, resentment, slander, jealousy and a shallow brain, which places them below men and which they must correct by self-reflection."

Man is comparable to the heavens, said the handbook, "and women to the earth, so that she should give preference to her husband, always keeping behind him. She should never contradict his orders and precepts, but ask for his instruction in every doubtful case."

War and industrialization have broken up the joint family system in the cities, leading to the rapid rise of western-type nuclear families and a growing number of "love" marriages in which the partners make their own choice without parental dictation.

This has not automatically wiped out the imprint of tradition, however, and the Japanese scene today is a confusion of old and new attitudes concerning what the marital relations should be.

Husbands are uncertain how far and how fast they should go in accepting the western pattern. Surprisingly, while the wives want to move toward the western model, many have concluded that a generation of Japanese males still steeped in centuries-old attitudes cannot be changed overnight.

Even the younger, mod wives here, are pre-feminist and are not seeking the complete destruction of the feminine mystique.

EMBATTLED WIVES

The picture emerging from the popular media, from conversations with leading sociologists, marriage counsellors and psychologists and from personal contacts with families here over the past two years, is one of embattled young wives struggling to overcome a series of interlocking psychological problems built into Japanese marriages.

By far the most fundamental of these is the fact that Japanese husbands over the centuries have never thought of their wives as people to talk to or relax with. Communication has normally been confined to mundane household matters.

While old-style Japanese marriages often produce affectionate, compatible relationships, by all accounts, they were not expected to bring the companionship and close communication idealized in the western conjugal marriage.

One of the obvious surface illustrations of this is found in the way husbands even today address their wives — "oi, oi" (hey hey) or some other summons, but never the name — and the impersonal manner of introducing them in social groups — simply a terse "okusan" (wife), "kanai" (the wife), or more often, "gusai" (literally, the foolish wife).

In the early years of married life, novelist Otohiko Kaga told a TV audience, the typical Japanese salaried worker immerses himself in his career and begins to spend his evenings with his "company gang" (batsu), working late at the office or carousing in cabarets.

TURN TO CHILDREN

"The wife, finding an increasing communications failure with her husband, turns her entire attention to raising her children, and the husband rarely makes an effort to understand her loneliness. After his retirement the husband wants to have a warm, quiet life at home, but it's too late; his wife won't pay the slightest attention to the man who has treated her like a housemaid for so many years.

"The evening of their life is nothing but the coldest existence of two people merely waiting for the end."

Directly related to the communications gap is the deeply rooted psychological legacy left by the Samuri concept that the serious pursuit of sex and romance would only upset the serenity of the well-ordered Japanese home and properly belongs outside in a domain of its own.

The man of substance in prewar Japan either had his "nigo San" (honorable number two) or, at the very least, was a frequent patron of a particular geisha house or cabaret.

This was respectable and expected, a mark of his station and his vigor, and the bills were sent home to be processed by his wife along with the laundry and grocery accounts.

DIFFERENT IMAGE

What has changed is that the nuclear family wives of the postwar generation have acquired a radically different image of marriage and their rightful place in it.

The husband who pursues extracurricular liaisons now must do so surreptitiously or be guilty of extremely bad form.

At the very least, he must help his wife to keep up appearances in accord with changing social values and proprieties.

One of the most significant barometers reflecting change in attitudes toward marriage may well be what happens to the traditional Japanese practices of parents and children sleeping together.

In a penetrating study of 323 households in three cities, sociologist William Caudill of the National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda found that lack of space in crowded houses is not the only reason for the persistence of old-style "co-sleeping" patterns in urban families.

Nearly all children in the families studied slept with one or both of their parents until the age of 10, and half until they were 15.

IGNORE INTIMACY

The basic explanation for this, Caudill argues, is "the strength of family bonds. The sleeping arrangements in Japanese families underplay or largely ignore conjugal intimacy between husband and wife in sexual and other matters in favor of a more general family cohesion."

As University of Michigan sociologist Robert Blood put it, Japanese couples are "chaperoned by the baby." This is slowly changing, however, partly because houses are getting bigger all the time and partly because separate bedrooms are the fashion along with other western touches in the new suburban apartment houses.

Many American housewives living here are indignant at first when they encounter Japanese male attitudes, but eventually conclude that Japanese women have a good thing in some ways.

The division of labor in Japanese faimiles is so absolute that the wife's control over her children and her household is much more complete and much more secure than in the United States.

In Japan, the wife rather than the husband calls her home her castle, and the most common family pattern finds mother and children ranged against father when conflicts arise.

Japanese wives reject the logic of "women's lib" and declare their unashamed desire to keep their present control of home and children. They can even see some virtue in giving their husbands a long leash for occasional carousing with cronies, reasoning that if the husband entertains his business friends at a cabaret, the wife doesn't have to entertain them at home.

'IT'S ALL MOTHER'

To some students of Japanese social patterns, notably Caudill, "there isn't any wife left, it's all mother" once the children come. My own clear and growing impression, however, supported by what husbands and wives both say, is that the younger wives no longer fit this stereotype.

They are trying to evolve something new, and more and more of the younger husbands are hesitantly getting into step. Many of the men are not staying out quite as late or coming home late quite as often.

On Sundays, the department stores and playgrounds are increasingly filled with family groups, mostly young couples, but even some in their 40s.

Japanese couples have a long way to go "before we can really fully enjoy husband-wife relations" observed a TV pundit in his commentary concluding the much-discussed "new image of the family" series.

"A long way before we will independent-minded, truly compassionate couples consciously sharing common values in a spirit of mutual respect.

"But we are not proposing that Japan imitate the American pattern. We Japanese place an absolute value on the serenity and quietude of the home. We know that 'silent communications' is often the most effective kind and certainly the most relaxing.

"Marriage styles naturally reflect cultural patterns. There will be some things about the way we do it that we will never be able to explain to outsiders."

●日に一度は、鏡を見ることを忘れるな

Dear Eunice Farmer,

Now I think I've seen everything I saw a jumper dress for this season's new look with the zipper upside down. In other words, it zipped from the lower edge of the skirt up to the neck, instead of the conventional way of closing. Why was this done? — Mrs. B. H. J.

Dear Mrs. B. H. J.

If I hadn't seen the latest fashions that were shown to the women who write for the newspapers, I wouldn't have believed your question, but your are so right! The reason the heavy duty zipper was inserted the way it it was, is because of the garment design. With the longer midi length skirts, one way to bridge the gap is the zipper which can be left open as far as your courage allows. In other words, the new midi look, is most interesting if part of the leg is showing. So, leave as much open as your courage allows; it's the next best thing to the mini.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

IT TAKES A THIEF, 7:30 p.m., Channels 4 and 8. "The Suzie Simone Caper." (Repeat.) Good show which has a couple of attractive ladies going for it—Jane Morgan and Susan Saint James. Miss Morgan plays a retired chanteuse whose fabulous portrait collection by such great artists as Picasso and Matisse becomes the focal point in a tale of double-dealings. Susan Saint James returns to the series in the role of Chuck, Al Mundy's fellow-thief and part-time amour. The action is swift, the dialogue glib and the thieves clever.

GUNSMOKE, 7:30 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. (Repeat.) This is Forrest Tucker's hour, and he's roaring about, playing essentially the same character he always plays which should please all his old fans. With a jug in his hand, Tucker chases an escaped Apache prisoner who kidnapped Miss Kitty and is holding her hostage. Amanda Blake is Tuck's only competition, and she's not only a pro dealing with blathering fools, but she's also his equal in the key shouting scenes.

THE LUCY SHOW, 8:30 p.m., Channel 7. (Repeat.) Wholesome 1965 outing, neatly tailored to show off the talents of singer Wayne Newton. Lucy discovers Wayne, the farm boy who can sing like Crosby in his barnyard, but who turns out to be a dud in a recording studio until Lucy takes over. Newton's scenes crooning to cows, chickens, ducks and a fawn have warmth and should appeal to the whole family.

MONDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES, 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. "The Train." (1965.) (Repeat.) An exciting Second World War drama set in Paris during the German occupation, which builds scene by scene to a magnificently staged climax in a railroad yard. Burt Lancaster stars as a railroad boss who seeks the aid of the powerful French Resistance fighters when it becomes known that France's valuable art treasures are going to be transported by train to Germany. The suspense is almost unbearable at times, and the cast is first-rate, particularly Paul Scofield as a German officer, Suzanne Flon as a dedicated curator of a museum, and Michel Simon as a bull-headed train engineer.

FIVE YEARS, 8:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Opposition leader Dave Barrett is in the spotlight during this hour-long special. Barrett talks about his past and bares his political ambitions.

CBS NEWS SPECIAL REPORT, 10 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. Chief Justice Warren Burger's "State of the Judiciary" address delivered earlier today before a meeting of the Amrican Bar Association in St. Louis, Mo., will be repeated at this hour, followed by a panel discussion among members of the bar and the judiciary. CBS News Correspondent George Herman is the reporter for the hour.

NET JOURNAL 9 p.m., Channel 9. "China in the '70s." "Educate me," says former Vice-President Hubert Humphrey. Addressing himself to a group of China experts from Harvard University, Stanford University and Hunter College during a seminar at the University of Minnesota, he is asking to be informed about the realities of mainland China, a huge country of 800 million about which we have built up so many fears.

NOW, 10:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Eye of the Storm." (Repeat.) Producer-director William Peters is responsbile for this deeply moving and illuminating documentary about the nature of prejudice in children. An imaginative and gifted teacher of third-grade youngsters in a tiny farm community is shown graphically illustrating the pain and misery of discrimination to her all-white students by using a simple experiment. Tune in for a remarkable bit of TV journalism.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Recently, I saw charts with lines showing changes in the yearly mortality rate from cancer of several of the organs of the body. Most of the lines ran straight across the graph, from 1950 to 1969, showing almost no change in mortality. A few lines, like those for cancer of the stomach and cancer of the womb, went definitely down, showing a decided decrease in mortality with the years. There was only one line that went spectacularly upward during the years, and this is the line for cancer of the lung in men. The corresponding line is now beginning to shoot up for women.

Every so often, someone will say, "Well, you doctors have no real evidence to show that cancer of the lung is due to smoking." Actually, I just read a report in Medical World News of the marvellous convention of 2,000 experts on cancer that has just recently been held in Houston, Texas. There it was noted that in 1775, Sir Percival Potts, a great English physician, observed that cancer of the scrotum (the bag that holds the testes) was far more prevalent among London's chimney sweeps than in the general population. The reason appeared to be that the chimney-sweeps got much of the tar that is formed from chimney smoke on their scrotums, and this would seem to be carcinogenic (able to produce a cancer). Also, interesting was the fact that men who worked in factories where chemicals are made from tar, also suffered from cancer of the scrotum. Finally, in the 1930's, chemists found that a drug called 3-4-benzopyrene (a component of coal smoke) is a carcinogen. This then explained the observation that Sir Percival Potts had made many years before.

Some years ago, a Japanese physician reported that he had taken the tar from tobacco smoke and by repeatedly rubbing it into the skin of mice had produced skin cancer in many of them. Since then, a number of carcinogens have been found in tobacco smoke. Today, doctors are trying to learn something about cancer production by trying to find out why cancers of some bodily organs are more prevalent in some countries than they are in other countries. For instance, we don't know why in Japan cancer of the stomach is the most prevalent form of cancer among males, while nearby in Taiwan, the common cancer is in the nasopharynx, or back of the throat. No one can yet explain why cancer of the prostate gland is 14 times as high in the United States as in Japan. Some day, when we get an answer to such questions, we may learn a lot about cancer which may prove to be very useful and helpful in the treatment of the disease.

Many studies have shown that women such as nuns, who have never had sexual intercourse, or women like Jewesses who have for many years been married to a man who was circumsized, are much less likely to get cancer of the neck of the womb that are women who were married to uncircumsized men. It would appear then that there must be some carinogen in the material that forms under the foreskin.

Recently, it has been shown that if a man is working in a uranium mine or in an asbestos factory where there is a strong tendency to get lung cancer, and he smokes, that makes his chances of getting cancer of the lung greater than would be indicated by a sum of the two risks. The exposure to one carcinogenic agent seems then to make the person more susceptible to the action of another carcinogen.

B.C. ROUNDUP

Count Surprises Abbotsford Show

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Officials of the Abbotsford International Air Show counted the house this year for the first time and annuunced Sunday an attendance less than half the estimates of 1968 and 1969.

A tabulation releasel by Ron Thornber, secretary-manager of the show, put the total at 129,000. Crowds were estimated at 300,000 in each of the last two years.

"There was an element of optimism in figures for previous years," said Thornber.

TALLY SOLID

"But now we have a solid, realistic tally and I don't think we'll have to change it or qualify it when we're done the final calculating."

Prior to this year, attendance was calculated by counting the cars entering the show grounds and multiplying by the number of persons per vehicle.

Thornber said air show and department of transport observers described Sunday's turnout of 65,000 as the largest in the show's nine-year history.

Jack McCullom, the show's public relations director, said the event is still the largest of its kind in North America.

"Our closest competitor is in Reading, PA., where they have a three-day total of about 65,000," he said.

Welfare Counselling To Expand

The Community Action Group plans to train welfare recipients in advocate work with the help of the provincial government's incentive plan, group president Mrs. Dee Rafferty said today.

Mrs. Rafferty said the project will expand the group's counselling services, which until recently have been directed by Mrs. Susan Talbot.

Under Mrs. Talbot's direction five CAG advocates have been giving advice and other assistance — such as transportation and aid in appeal cases.

But Mrs. Rafferty said the great increase in welfare rolls this year has made more advocates necessary.

EARN UP TO $50

Under the incentive plan, welfare recipients can earn up to $50 a month for work as teacher aids or in other projects which involve them in community life.

Don Bingham, the provincial welfare department's program director, said the purpose of the incentive plan is to "help people on welfare help themselves return to a normal life in society."

Five welfare recipients now work as advocates with the Low Income Group at their office in the First United Church.

Mrs. Rafferty said the CAG is now looking for its own office. She said the group has also applied for a federal grant to support the office and other group activities.

Future Revolution Unnecessary—Chou

PARIS (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai of Red China has said in an interview that young people do not necessarily have to make revolution in the future; that the most important thing, in fact, is finding "the right road, the happy medium."

Chou's almost conservative-sounding ideas appeared Saturday in an interview with Francois Debre, son of French Defence Minister Michel Debre, published by the newspaper France-Soir. Debre saw Chou while in China last month as a journalist assigned to the visit of French Planning Minister Andre Bettencourt.

Chou was quoted as saying:

"I spent several years in France and it was there that I discovered the revolutionary struggle and enrolled in the Chinese Communist party. It was an exalting era, one in which one could do many great things. Nineteen seventy is also a great era and I envy those who are young today. The future, more so than at other times, belongs to them. It doesn't necessarily mean making and remaking the revolution. The revolutionary struggle is a personal struggle. One can commit errors, change and progress. The important thing is to find the right road, the happy medium."

Talking about international politics Chou went on:

"In the world today there exist one or two superpowers which constantly oppress others by force while battling for control of the world. The danger that these superpowers start a world war remains and we must be prepared for it. But the times have changed and a growing number of people in the world have become aware or are becoming aware of this.

"The era when the great powers could decide the future of the world is gone forever. The myth which brought about fear of them must be crushed."

Charge Suspect In Shootings

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man has been arrested and charged in connection with two separate shooting incidents Sunday and early today involving Metro police.

Arnold Symzer, 36, was charged with two counts of shooting with intent to resist arrest, two counts of possession of a dangerous weapon and one count of trafficking in drugs.

Police said they received information at about 1:40 a.m. today that a man had attempted to buy a shotgun.

Police gave chase to a suspect in the area who fired two shots from a revolver at police. Two shots also were fired by police.

After a chase, a man was discovered hiding in bushes behind a house.

On Sunday, two constables hid in a city apartment after receiving information that a man sought on a charge of breaking parole was living in the apartment.

FIRES SHOT

A man knocked on the door and spoke to a woman in the apartment with the constables. The man apparently became suspicious and fired a shot in the hallway, shouting that he was going to kill the policemen.

The man then kicked the apartment door open and fired a second shot from a revolver which hit the wall behind one of the constables.

The constables responded by firing one blast from a 12-gauge shotgun which missed the man as he dived aside.

The man fled the apartment, firing another shot as he ran. The two policemen fired a total of four revolver shots as the gunman ran for a car outside and escaped.

Joplin, RN Provide A Stone for Bessie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Blues-rock singer Janis Joplin and a registered nurse from Philadelphia have split the cost of a tombstone for the "Empress of the Blues," whose grave lay unmarked for more than 30 years.

A grey-black stone was unveiled Friday on the grave of Bessie Smith, who died in an auto accident in 1937. Only blades of grass had marked her grave in Mount Lawn Cemetery in Sharon Hill, near here, because her family lacked money to buy a tombstone.

Some 50 admirers gathered at the graveside Friday for the dedication of the stone, inscribed: "The greatest blues singer in the world will never stop singing—Bessie Smith—1895-1937."

Bessie started singing in a minstrel show in Chattanooga, Tenn., at age 15. Her career skyrocketed in the 1920s when she was reported earning $2,500 a week and recording such songs as Gimme a Pigfoot, Nobody Knows You and Money Blues.

HOME GARDEN

Fragrant Shrubs for Divider

By HILDA BEASTALL

If we are to enjoy a fragrant garden we must have enough of one kind of plant to waft the perfume around a fair portion of the garden. One lavender shrub will not be enough, nor one rosemary though each is intensely fragrant when close.

Hilda

Attractive because they are evergreen, have flowers, and are easily controlled, a small interior hedge of either lavender or rosemary can be utilized as part of the garden design.

Especially suited as a two to three foot high divider beside a sunny terrace or for a three-foot-long break in front of a door entrance, either lavender or rosemary would be easy and charming.

I mention the two together because they need the same sunny aspect, well drained soil rather dry in summer, and can be propagated in quantity fairly easily by almost any gardener.

The so-called English lavender, Lavandula vera, can be kept to a height of 30 inches or so by clipping twice in the season. Take off an inch or so in early April.

Then in early August after flower stems have been gathered for drying, go over all the plants with the shears taking another two inches.

This annual shearing will keep the shrubby plants compact and more able to resist frost and wet snow. It is only when allowed to grow tall, spreading and leggy that lavender is likely to die out or become unsightly. Both flowers and leaves of lavender are strongly fragrant and clippings smell wonderful when burned in the incinerator.

Rosemary needs to have its foliage touched to be noticeably fragrant. The shrubs are particularly charming in spring when covered with tiny mauve flowers.

As soon as they are finished, shorten the stems.

No further trimming should be done later, for rosemary needs to have all its growths well hardened to go through hard frosts. Near salt water, rosemary thrives, living up to its lovely name of Rosmarinus — Spray of the Sea.

Cuttings three or four inches long of lavender and of rosemary can be taken now and thrust into a sandy patch of soil kept damp. Leave them there for the winter with a few twiggy branches as wind shelter.

By late April, the pieces will be rooting, and can be set out into a nursery row to grow for the summer.

For a hedge, transplant about 15 inches apart in early fall. With a little careful pruning each year to help them fill in, you will be enjoying fragrance in the first year.

Primitive Parks Attract Visitors

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's 36 provincial parks, taken largely for granted by local residents, continue to draw Canadian and United States visitors seeking the kind of vacation that is becoming increasingly rare for the average North American city-dweller.

"Our parks are rated pretty highly because we haven't done much with them," Chafe said.

"We provide primitive campsites so people can feel they're really camping . . . and we find they come back."

There are no cabin accommodations, snack bars or concession stores. Nor are there playgrounds or organized activities.

But nature and hiking trails winding over ridges of spruce, fir and birch often lead to a close-up view of moose or beaver.

Then there's the fishing—lively Atlantic salmon, sea trout, eastern brook trout and the various sub-species of mud trout.

Last year the parks attracted an estimated 1.16 million visitors in 290,024 vehicles. Just over 92 per cent were Newfoundlanders.

An estimated 66,000 persons came from the U.S. and 34,600 from other provinces.

The total was an increase of about 32 per cent in four years—and the parks are beginning to show it.

None is cramped and nobody is ever turned away, but there is a chance some parks may become "over-used."

The parks division of the resources department has started to enlarge camping and picnic areas by one-third in all parks.

There is lots of room for expansion—the parks range from a minimum of 150 acres to the largest, Barachois Pond near Stephenville, with its 8,640 acres.

Camping and picnic areas occupy a comparatively small space in each park, but should the recreation explosion continue at its present rate they eventually spread to park boundaries.

GIRL JUMPS FROM BRIDGE

Police said the girl, taken to hospital in serious condition, had seen her mother jump to her death over the Niagara Falls escarpment in 1957.

Diamonds Found

BHOPAL, India (Reuters) — Two miners have found two diamonds weighing 39 and 22 carats and worth nearly $120,000, and they will be able to keep most of the money when the government auctions the gems. Because the diamonds were found on government land, the lucky miners will have to pay the state only a small royalty.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

One tremendous advantage that the expert possesses when he is playing in an all-expert game is that he knows that he can trust his partner in both the bidding and the play. Here is a case in point, with respect to the play.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ K J 9 5
♡ Q 5
◇ 7
♣ K J 10 8 5 3

WEST
♠ 7 6 4
♡ K 10 9 7 6 2
◇ K J 10 3

EAST
♠ 8 3
♡ A J 3
◇ Q 5 4 2

SOUTH
♡ 8 4
◇ A 9 8 6
♣ A Q 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	2 ♡	3 ♣	3 ♡
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♡.

When the five of hearts was played from dummy on West's opening lead of the deuce, East took a "time-out" to analyse the situation.

It was immediately apparent to him that West could not have a four-card heart suit, as the lead of the deuce would seem to indicate; that is, if West were leading his fourth-highest heart, the deuce, then he had exactly four hearts. Surely no West player, having four hearts headed by at most the king, would have made a vulnerable two heart overcall.

And, further, it was equally certain that West had the heart king, for no expert West player would overcall on a five-or-six card suit headed by at most, the 10-spot (the queen, ace, and jack were in evidence). Hence East concluded, there must have been some purpose in West's obviously abnormal lead of the heart deuce.

The reason, East decided, must have been that West was void of some suit. By gazing at his hand and dummy, which between them contained 10 clubs, East deduced that West's void suit was probably clubs.

So, having the courage of his convictions, East inserted the jack of hearts on the opening lead, and it won the trick. East then returned a club, West ruffing South's ace. Another heart lead by West now enabled East to win his ace, after which a second club was played back, West ruffing again. Thus the defenders took the first four tricks, and declarer incurred a one-trick set.

Had East played automatically — by paying no attention to West's opening lead of the deuce — declarer would have fulfilled his contract. In this case, East would have won the first trick with the ace of hearts. And even if he returned a club for West to ruff, East couldn't regain the lead to give West a second club ruff.

Asian Allies Offer Little Aid To South Viets

By WILLIS JOHNSON

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon's Asian allies have shown little willingness to increase their military efforts in Indochina despite expansion of the battlefields and the start of United States withdrawals.

Like the U.S., the Asians seem inclined to place their trust in Vietnamization.

Thailand, a major exponent of the domino theory that once was used to explain the American presence here, has been reluctant to go to the aid of its neighboring domino, Cambodia.

At one point, the Thais threatened to pull out of Vietnam in a flap over remarks attributed to a South Vietnamese general.

The South Koreans have spoken about reducing their strength in Vietnam if the Americans carry out plans to reduce theirs in Korea.

The Filipinos last year pulled out most of their 2,000-man military civic action group. The Australians, who with New Zealanders are the only Saigon-allied troops in Vietnam not subsidized by the U.S., will withdraw one of their three battalions this fall.

Not counting 406,000 U.S. troops, the allied nations have nearly 70,000 men in Vietnam. There are about 50,000 Koreans, 8,000 Australians, 550 New Zealanders and 100 Filipinos. The Thais have 11,500, minus a brigade that is supposed to be in the process of being replaced.

The non-American combat units say they have killed more than 37,000 guerrillas. All but 4,500 of those have been claimed by the South Koreans, who also have suffered the heaviest casualties, some 3,000 killed and 6,500 wounded. The Australians and New Zealanders have lost more than 400 men on the battlefield and the Thais more than 250.

None is engaged against main-line units, such as the elite North Vietnamese regiments in South Vietnam's border zones and northern sector. They remain generally stationary in their home zones, trying to clean out Viet Cong.

AUSSIES ON COAST

The Australian and New Zealand troops are based in coastal Phouc Tuy province, 40 miles southeast of Saigon. The Thais are at Bearcat, abot 20 miles northeast of the capital. Koreans occupy a stretch of central coast from Da Nang south.

Meahwhile the Cambodian offensive has drawn thousands of South Vietnamese troops across the frontier. Their strength there at various times since March has ranged from 14,500 to 47,000.

The Americans are heavily committed in Laos and perhaps that helps explain why the Thais would enter in force there while shying back in Cambodia, with which the U.S. only recently re-established relations. All U.S. troops withdrew from Cambodia June 30 at the end of their two-month offensive and Bankok repeatedly wanted a guarantee that the Americans would subsidize any Thai expeditionary force.

The United States says it has no combat troops in Laos but it flies heavy air raids against the Ho Chi Minh trail in the east and in support of Royal Laotian forces throughout the country.

Pocket-Size Parks Make Sense

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

The idea of pocket-sized parks in Victoria is a sound one, not only for today but for the future when it is more than likely that green swards, no matter how small, will be worth more to the public than all the tea in China. Increasing population, with its increase in housing and the attendant encroachment on open land, eventually will make parks, large or pocket-size, one of our city's most precious assets.

It is my hope, therefore, that if Alderman Peter Pollen's wish to pick up two available patches of land for such use does become fact, this moderate start will live and grow.

Mini-parks have been successfully acquired and developed in many other places.

I know some who read this column will point as an example to London, England, where parks and greenbelts of all sizes are not new—they are centuries old.

However, you don't need to go far away to find cities, towns and municipalities striving in a small way to emulate London.

For instance, if you know the district of North Vancouver then you will know that for some years now it has been developing pocket-size pieces of land into mini-parks.

Where these are situated in dense traffic zones, they have merely been landscaped with flower beds and benches.

* * *

In other places, where traffic is not dense, or where new sub-divisions have gone in, little parks have been developed as Tot Lots with one or two pieces of play equipment.

One such Tot Lot that I saw not too long ago was in the Capilano district. There a small piece of land had been acquired and when it came time to develop it the district parks board came up with a very imaginative idea.

It was to create a log replica (in miniature) of an old-time Hudson's Bay Company fort, instead of putting in slides and swings.

This was done. With the result that now I don't suppose there is a day in the week that the play fort is not besieged, captured and recaptured, as youngsters up Capilano-way (and for that matter from other areas in North Vancouver) re-enact history with their own modern twist.

You can see, then, that when you start talking of pocket-size parks in our city, the ideas can be endless.

That's why I wish Alderman Pollen good luck in his endeavor to acquire the first of these bits of land, one near Memorial Arena and the other at Oak Bay Junction.

And I hope, if these first mini-parks do become fact, that before too long they will multiply into many more.

Just a reminder: Victoria Fair season is now well into the final half of its program. There is only four weeks more in which to see the three productions in McPherson Theatre. If you have not already booked your tickets then do so now.

In the main, reviews of all three have been complimentary. Androcles and the Lion is short and extremely funny. The Duchess of Malfi an amazing picture of avarice, pride and a curious kind of love, in a Rome of long ago. Turcaret is a comedy with a moral.

Take your pick or go to all three. In doing so, remember Victoria Fair is our own. Support it!

Plane Crash Kills Five

STOVER, Mo. (AP) — Five relatives were killed in the crash of a light plane near Stover Sunday night.

Jim Scrivner, operator of a funeral home at Versailles, Mo., said the victims were Capt. Clarence J. Lilly, 27; his wife, Clara, 27; their two-year-old daughter, Julia Marie; and the captain's brothers, Sgt. Henry J. Lilly, 21, and Samuel Eugene Lilly, 14.

The plane had flown from Little Rock to Whiteman earlier Sunday and had taken off from Whiteman shortly before the crash, an official said.

PATIENT HAD BELLYACHE

AURORA, Ohio (UPI) — Doctors here congratulated themselves on curing what may have been the biggest bellyache in the world.

After consultations with colleagues in San Diego, the veterinarians gave Shamu, a 4,000-pound performing killer whale at Sea World, four ounces of activated charcoal in powder form. Shamu was seen swallowing a piece of dead fish.

Luxury Sea Cruises Subsidized by U.S.

By JAMES R. POLK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is paying as much as $400 a passenger in federal aid to finance luxury cruises aboard ocean liners to such exotic ports as Hong Kong, Tahiti, Jamaica and Bora Bora.

Even a bubbly New Year's Eve party aboard a ship cruising off the California coast is covered by the rich flow of federal aid.

The payments are part of a special subsidy to American passenger ships that cost taxpayers an estimated $240 million during the last five years.

The aid was begun for national defence reasons before the Second World War. But now, government records show the only passenger liners benefitting from the payments are 10 cruise ships sailing the South Pacific and the Caribbean.

The subsidies go mainly to pay the difference in the higher wages for American seamen compared with the lower-paid crews on foreign ships.

When the Santa Paula sailed this spring from New York to Curacao, Haiti, Jamaica and St. Thomas in the Caribbean, maritime administration records show that $120,692 in federal aid was paid for the two-week cruise.

Shipping officials say that without this federal aid to pay their higher wage costs, they would be priced out of business and the privately owned American fleet would be certain to vanish from the seas.

THANKS ANYWAY, SAYS HIJACKER

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A smiling passenger boarded a city bus early Saturday and lyrically asked the driver, "Do you know the way to San Jose?"

Driver John Grayson explained he was familiar only with his city route, and the unidentified passenger pulled a pistol. "I want to go on this bus," he said.

Grayson turned off his regular route and headed for the Bayshore Freeway leading to San Jose. At Brisbane, just south of San Francisco, Grayson flipped an emergency switch, bringing the bus to a halt. "Out of gas,"he explained.

The hijacker, a swarthy, short man in his early 20s, laughed put away his pistol and got off the bus. "Well, thanks anyway," he said, and began walking toward San Jose.

WHAT BRINGS HOMER HOME?

LONDON (AP) — A British and an American scientist are pecking away at each other on this question: How do homing pigeons know which way to fly?

British bird expert G. V. T. Matthews, weighing in with nine footnotes in a scholarly journal, defends his theory that the pigeons look up to the sky, compare positions of the sun, make complex mental calculations, and fly right.

Armed with binoculars, a compass, a stopwatch and 20 pigeons, Keeton conducted experiments which he says prove that the way the birds view the sun has nothing to do with their path.

He kept half the pigeons in blacked-out coops in Ithaca so they couldn't see the sun for 11 days. The other half could look at the sun as much as they wanted.

Since the sun shifted positions during that period, the blacked-out pigeons should have flow off the wrong way when they were released from a fire tower 53 miles distant.

But they winged their way to Ithaca the same as the other pigeons. So Matthews is wrong. Or is he?

The Briton argues that Keeton's birds had been shown all the landmarks from the tower to Ithaca, so they didn't have to take readings from the sun.

Italians Present Policy

ROME (Reuters) — Premier Emilio Colombo presented to parliament today his government's program, approved unanimously by his four-party centre-left cabinet.

The program for Italy's 32nd government since Fascist times was assured of legislative approval, since the coalition of Colombo's own Christian Democrats, the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans hold a comfortable majority in both houses.

The Chamber of Deputies (lower house) was expected to start debate on it later today and give the 50-year-old bachelor economist a vote of confidence Wednesday.

In the Senate, action is expected Thursday or Friday.

Among the problems to be faced by the new government, formed after a political crisis following the resignation July 6 of the last coalition cabinet, are pledges of expensive economic reforms and the necessity for improving the balance of payments.

Greeks Free Prisoners

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek military dictatorship today announced the release of 500 political prisoners and said it was part of a "new liberalization policy."

George Georgalas, the government spokesman, told his weekly press briefing the "Communist deportees," including 22 women, would be freed in three stages within the next two weeks.

He said another 66 prisoners would remain in four detention camps, two on the Aegean island of Leros, one in Crete and one at the Oropos military camp on the Athens coast.

He said the women's detention camp on Crete would be closed, and the 20 women still held would be transferred to Oropos.

Bennett's Son Tops at Show

CALGARY (CP) — Russell J. Bennett, son of Premier W. A. C. Bennett, took the performance jump class Friday at the Alberta Light Horse Show.

Gunmen Wounded In Shootout

GADSDEN, Ala. (AP) — Four gunmen battled their way into an industrialist's home today and shot their way out, taking a hostage after chaining the man's wife and son.

The four were captured shortly afterwards in a shootout with more than a score of law officers who trailed them. The hostage, a security guard, was not hurt striously.

Three of the gunmen were wounded and taken to hospital in Gadsden. The fourth was jailed.

The industrialist, John F. Bradford, was shot in the foot but managed to wound one of the gunmen as his mansion atop a mountain between Gadsden and Rainbow City was invaded.

The gunmen overpowered guards at the fenced and heavily guarded home. They tied up Mrs. Bradford and the couple's 15-year-old son, Steve, with chains.

Sheriff's deputies, Gadsden police and state troopers shot it out with the gunmen on U.S. 431 about 1½ miles south of Beaz.

The wounded gunmen were identified as David Allen Ford, 21, Atlanta, Ga., shot in the foot; Teddy Edward Holiday, 30, Georgia, wounded in the shoulder, and Tommy Garrison, 23, undetermined wounds.

Trash Converted

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Engineers at Illinois Institute of Technology Research say they have found a way to convert municipal trash into ceramic material for sewer pipe, structural tile and other construction products. In an experiment reported in the current issue of Technology Today, the engineers said that when waste material is burned at 2,800 degrees it leaves a "ceramic fraction" which also can be made into glass fibre. Most incinerators burn trash at 2,000 degrees.

Brothers Top Swim Entrants

NANAIMO — Two Port Alberni brothers finished first and second Sunday in the 12th annual Protection Island Swim.

Bruce Sherrock, 15, set a record when he covered the 1¼ mile course in 17½ minutes.

Russ Sherrock, 14, finished second in 23 minutes. He was followed by Louis Branchi and Doug Nicks, both of Nanaimo, who were clocked at 25 minutes.

About 100 swimmers and 30 rafts took part in the races sponsored by Nanaimo Realty. The firm gave out $1,000 in silver dollars to winners.

Prizes were presented by Miss Mermaid, Debbie Fedje of Nanaimo.

Stephen Rainforth won a prize for having the most-Huckleberry Finn-looking raft and he also won first prize in the raft race.

Youngest swimmers were Bryce Whittle, 9, and Sheila Danco, 10.

Bennett Appeals Woodward Ruling

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett will ask the B.C. Appeal Court to set aside a Supreme Courtruling quashing his imposition of $1.6 million tax on the estate of the late P. A. Woodward.

The department store owner left $4.5 million to the Woodward Foundation, and the premier, acting as minister of finance, ruled the foundation was not a charitable organization and refused it tax-exempt status.

Mr. Justice Craig Munroe recently allowed the appeal of the foundation and quashed the decision of the minister.

Postmen Strike Mainland Centres

Pickets Close Haney

Postal workers stayed off the job at a number of post offices in British Columbia today and threw picket lines around the tiny office at Haney where postmen have ignored union instructions to take rotating strike action.

The 25 Haney postal workers had consistently rebuffed union instructions to strike but today were prevented from going to work by the picket line.

Postmen were on strike today in the Vancouver, North and West Vancouver, Burnaby, Richmond and Delta, all in the Greater Vancouver area, and in Kamloops.

NORMAL HERE

It was business-as-usual in Victoria today, but Ken Stofer, public relations officer for the main post office, indicated local postal employees could be locked out Tuesday as a result of today's strike in Vancouver.

He said it all depends on whether there is enough mail available Tuesday to warrant sorting and delivering staffs.

Postal workers in Victoria and six other Island towns were locked out July 28 following a strike in Vancouver the day before. Most Island mail has to come through Vancouver, Stofer said.

Jim McCall, union strike coordinator for the lower B.C. Mainland said Haney was the only post office in the country where workers had failed to support the strike. He said the union decided to take picket action following published reports that Haney workers were staying on the job.

CAT OUT OF BAG

He said that until the Haney rebellion became general knowledge, the union had looked upon it as an internal union problem to be dealt with following settlement of the national dispute.

He added that union members had decided to take the picketing action on their own after the Haney workers "blabbed to the newspapers,

PLUMBERS REJECT MEDIATION OFFER

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. construction industry appears headed for another deadlock following rejection by a fifth union Sunday of settlement proposals made by a special mediator.

The plumber's union voted 90 per cent against accepting proposals by the mediator, deputy labor minister Bill Sands.

Other unions which have also rejected Sand's proposals are the bricklayers, laborers, heat and frost insulators and the tunnel and rock workers.

And Teamsters president Ed Lawson said that union's negotiating committee also is recommending that its members reject a settlement proposal of 19 per cent over two years on an average rate of $4.50 an hour.

Nerve Gas En Route To Ocean

Times News Services

RICHMOND, Ky. — A closely guarded freight train, loaded with potentially deadly nerve gas rockets, began its slow journey to the sea today from an army arsenal here.

A second 46-car train, carrying the same cargo and similarly protected by elaborate safety measures, was to leave Anniston, Ala., this afternoon.

Their destination, expected to be reached after 37-hour, 600-mile trips over classified routes, was the Sunny Point military terminal near Wilmington, N.C. The deteriorating Second World War rockets will be shipped from here to a point in the Atlantic Ocean 282 miles off Florida and dumped in 16,000 feet of water.

The trains together contain 418 vaults, concrete and steel jacketed, with 30 nerve gas rockets to the vault.

The army kept the routes secret but said the shipments would move through thinly populated areas. By highway, it is about 540 miles from Anniston and about 645 miles from Richmond to the North Carolina coast.

The army said there is no danger of leakage from the vaults.

Army chemical experts will accompany the shipments and their mechanical gas-leak dectors will be backed up by 12 rabbits and 12 pigeons, highly sensitive to gas.

Army spokesman said similar shipments in the future will be unnecessary because the army is developing a method of decomposing the gas at the military bases where it is stored.

CLAIM CITIES ON ROUTE

Congressional sources said the Anniston train will pass through the Georgia cities of Bremen, Griffin, Macon and Athens before angling up through the Carolinas to an ocean terminal at Sunny Point, N.C.

The train is to move no faster than 35 miles an hour.

Gov. Lester Maddox, of Georgia offered to ride atop the train to demonstrate his confidence in the army's safety precautions. The army said it had no orders permitting him aboard.

But Representative Tim Lee Carter (Rep. Ky.) says he will be on the Blue Grass Depot train until it leaves Kentucky "to help allay fear among the residents."

Dissent has been expressed by a number of persons, among them Florida Gov. Claude Kirk, three congressmen from his state and U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations.

Thant said disposal of the gas in international waters would violate a UN General

Insurance Bill Showdown Seen

WINNIPEG (CP) — An amendment that could produce a key showdown vote on the NDP government's compulsory government automobile insurance bill went before the Manitoba legislature today.

The motion, introduced by Liberal House Leader Gordon Johnston, would allow private companies to sell basic coverage in competition with the proposed Manitoba Insurance Corp. (See also Page 2.)

It would mean a "free choice" insurance plan as opposed to the state monopoly on which the government is insisting.

Success of the amendment would kill the key principle of the bill and almost certainly lead to a general election.

Mr. Johnston introduced his amendment shortly after the house went into committee of the whole for clause-by-clause study of the bill.

Meantime, Premier Ed Schreyer gave notice of a number of government amendments to be considered later.

They included establishment of an advisory board of not fewer than five members, which would be consulted on details of the insurance scheme and on transitional assistance for those losing business or employment under the advent of the state-run plan.

Quebec Workers Forced to Return

QUEBEC (CP) — Construction workers began returning to their jobs today following the passage Saturday of tough legislation by the Quebec national assembly aimed at ending a province-wide strike.

Officials of the Confederation of National Trade Unions which represents most of the workers had recommended the return to work although CNTU President Marcel Pepin described the legislation as a "bludgeon law and a tomahawk law."

Renewed activity at large and small building projects throughout the provincial capital was reported early today.

The emergency legislation was presented Friday by Labor Minister Pierre Laporte at special session of the national assembly called to deal with the strike.

Peace Talk Arrangements Show Unexpected Progress

TEL AVIV (CP) — As the ceasefire along the Suez canal entered its third day today, Reuters news agency quoted Israeli sources as saying an unexpectedly rapid solution has been found to procedural arrangements for the proposed Middle East peace talks.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel planned flying Wednesday to New York to see Gunnar Jarring, the United Nations mediator charged with arranging indirect negotiations with Egypt and Jordan, the sources said.

The sources said substantive issues dealing with future borders and the withdrawal of Israeli forces would come next, in Jarring's talks.

At a five-hour session Sunday, the Israeli cabinet heard a report from Lt. Gen. Yitzak Rabin, the Israeli ambassador in Washington, who was expected to return to the U.S. with Eban.

QUIET IN WEST

As the diplomatic tempo quickened, an Israeli army spokesman reported silence on the western front, with Egyptian forces along the canal observing the ceasefire which came into effect at midnight Friday night.

But Israeli troops facing Syria, Jordan and Lebanon engaged in clashes with Palestinian Arab guerrillas strongly opposed to the current peace bid.

Guerrilla attacks on villages near the Lebanese border led to the first retaliatory air raid Sunday by Israel across the frontier since the ceasefire. Lebanon is not included in the U.S. peace plan.

The targets attacked were on the southwestern slopes of Mount Hermon east of the Hasbani River.

Kidnappers Execute U.S. Aide in Uruguay

Times News Services

MONTEVIDEO — The Tupamaro guerrillas executed American police expert Daniel A. Mitrione because the Uruguayan government refused to release an estimated 150 political prisoners as ransom for him and two other kidnapped foreign officials.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that a second body had been found, but the police said nothing.

Mitrione's body was found today bound and gagged in a bloodstained stolen car parked on a city street. He had been shot twice in the head.

Radio Monte Carlo said the body also had a bandaged bullet wound in the chest. Mitrione was reported to have received such a wound when he was abducted 10 days ago.

The body of the 50-year-old father of nine children was found, with his hands chained together and his white hair dyed black, by a two-man police patrol searching for the stolen car.

Meanwhile, more than 5,000 troops and police searching for the three kidnapped men made more than 100 arrests. Those arrested included nine suspected members of the Tupamaro guerrillas, including their leader, and a doctor believed to have treated Mitrione, of Richmond, Ind., for his earlier bullet wound.

Local radio stations received several anonymous telephone calls telling of Mitrione's death shortly after noon Sunday, the time a Tupamaros communique had said the adviser would be killed if the government did not free all of its political prisoners.

The telephone callers also said Mitrione's execution would be followed by those of other two hostages: Brazilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide, 41, and Claude L. Fly, 65, an American agronomist employed by the Uruguayan government.

'PRAY FOR ME'

Fly's wife, in Montevideo, received a letter from her husband Sunday. He wrote: "Please don't worry. I am well. Pray for me and wait. Go home, they are feeding me. Help me please. Always my love, Claude."

In a post script, he added: "They have my glasses. I cannot read without my old pair, but they won't give them to me."

Mitrione and Dias Gomide were kidnapped July 31. Fly was lured from a laboratory Friday by men claiming to be bodyguards assigned by the government.

The Tupamaros, a leftist guerrilla group organized seven years ago, demanded the release of all political prisoners held by the government, President Jorge Pacheco Areco refused, saying the Tupamaros were "common criminals" and those held by the government were not political prisoners.

Pacheco Areco met with his 11 cabinet members and other top officials Sunday night and called a joint session of Congress today to suspend such individual rights as trial guarantees and habeas corpus.

REACTION ANGRY

Several congressmen proposed reinstatement of the death penalty, which was banned many years ago. There was also an unconfirmed report that a group of right-wing extremists calling themselves the "Death Squad," like the killer squads of police vigilantes in Brazil, had threatened reprisals against the families of suspected Tupamaros.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Adair broadcast an appeal for mercy 20 minutes before the noon deadline Sunday, saying the assassination of Mitrione "would be a high crime, not only against the traditions of Western society but also against humanity."

"In the name of Mrs. Mitrione, and in those of his

Manhunt Snares Tupamaro Chief

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — The Uruguayan government has derived one dividend from the search for kidnapped foreign officials. It has captured the leader of the Tupamaro guerillas sought for six years.

Raul Sendic, 45, was arrested Friday with a dozen other persons during the search for U.S. advisers Dan A. Mitrione, 50, and Claude L. Fly, 65, and Brazilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide, 41.

The rebels immediately threatened reprisals against the government, the diplomatic colony and security forces if harm comes to their "arrested companions."

Police believe the Tupamaro organization got its start among Socialist party organizers of a sugar workers union in northwestern Uruguay in the late 1950s. They later transferred their field of operations to Montevideo, the capital.

Extremists in Party Threaten Ulster PM

BELFAST (Reuters) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark, back from a Spanish vacation, faced threats today within his Unionist party to topple him from power in riot-torn Northern Ireland.

His first official engagement was scheduled for tonight when he planned to attend a meeting of his constituency association. It was believed to be preparing a proposal of no confidence.

He gave little indication of being worried when he talked to reporters Sunday night and sidestepped questions about possible resigning.

Only two hours before he arrived from Spain Sunday an explosion rocked Magherafelt, the constituency, 30 miles west of Belfast. It was the fifth major bomb blast during the weekend and was believed to be a studied welcome-home insult.

Prisoners Revolt

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Prisoners took over the ninth floor at the Manhattan prison and seized five guards as hostages today in a protest against "overcrowded conditions" in the jail.

BANKS OF NEW engines stand ready for assembly line startup at Ford's St. Thomas plant where production of Pinto starts this week. The new vechicle will have a 1.6 litre motor to drive the little auto at better than 30 miles to a gallon, with a more powerful two litre engine available as option. Customs clerk Ruth Cobban, perched on a rack, indicates some of the 21,500 European-made engines, which feature belt-driven overhead camshaft.

Financial Crisis Hits U.S. Airlines

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Excessive and overlapping routes have plunged the United States airline industry into a financial crisis, said Jajeeb E. Halaby, chairman of Pan American Airways.

He said there are "too many carriers with too many seats on too many routes chasing fewer passengers.

He said government regulation had served only to "proliferate the competition, regulate the fares, the fees and the social costs, but let the labor costs escalate."

"The unions have all the power and the airlines have all the pain."

He said balance might be achieved by letting the airlines make economic agreements to consolidate routes and to merge carriers. To contend with rising labor costs he suggested industry-wide bargaining.

He congratulated Yves Pratte, Air Canada chairman, and J. C. Gilmer, CP Air president, who were present, for leading a drive to simplify fare systems.

Halaby said airlines will be hungry for primary capital for years to come, to keep up with technical progress.

Inability to generate capital internally had forced borrowing at interest rates of up to 11 per cent, he said.

Noting the presence of Boris P. Miroshnichenko, Soviet Ambassador to Canada, he said he hoped both the Soviet Union and China will join the International Air Traffic Association and the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Prices Board Will Probe Ford Estimate

OTTAWA (CP) — The prices and incomes commission will investigate a three-per-cent estimated price increase announced by Ford Motor Co. of Canada for its 1971-model cars and trucks.

A commission spokesman said discussion with Ford were held recently, and that it is likely an investigation will begin in the next two weeks.

It will be the first prices and incomes commission study on automobile prices.

The spokesman said other auto manufacturers probably will announce price increases and will also be investigated.

Under agreement between the commission and business leaders last February in Ottawa price increases this year must be clearly less than cost increases.

The study could take six weeks.

Overseas Cars Sales Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — One out of every five automobiles sold in Canada in June was of overseas manufacture, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

The average price paid for the overseas cars was $2,518, compared with $3,629 for Canadian-and American-built automobiles.

The bureau said June sales of overseas-made cars were up 14.8 per cent in numbers and 16.5 per cent in value from a year earlier. Sales of North American cars were down by 9.1 per cent in numbers and 8.1 per cent in value.

Ionarc Shoots For Mars Rocket

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — A Canadian company hopes to turn Australia into a major producer of space-age metals with the construction of a tiny furnace which burns 2½ times hotter than the surface of the sun.

Ionarc Smelters Ltd. of Vancouver has been working with the U.S. Space Agency on the development of a gas core nuclear rocket for a 1985 deep

Marle Thorpe, vice-president and executive director of Ionarc, smelting process he hoped to bring to Australia was partly an offshoot of this space rocket research.

IOS REORGANIZING

Cornfeld Promises Fight

From AP-Reuters

GENEVA (CP) — Bernard Cornfeld, the ousted founder of Investors Overseas Services, told a press conference Sunday he had begun formal proceedings to replace the majority of the 27 IOS directors within 45 days.

Cornfeld's announcement followed a decision by the IOS board of directors Saturday to reject his "corporate program" and his request to be returned to his former post as chairman of the board.

Cornfeld, 42, said he would use "every legal recourse available" to stop the IOS board of directors from accepting a $10 million loan from International Controls Corp. of New Jersey. Cornfeld asserted the directors would effectively surrender control of the company under the so-far-undisclosed terms of the loan contract.

The loan, which could be increased to $15 million if needed, was announced jointly by IOS and ICC during the weekend. The signing of the contract was to take place within two weeks, said the annoucement.

An IOS spokesman said Saturday the board wasn't concerned" about Cornfeld's claim to voting control.

Cornfeld said on the same day that he had formally requested the Canadian-incorporated company to hold a preferred stockholders' meeting in 45 days. This procedure is mandatory once requested by a stockholder with more than 10 per cent of the stock, he said.

HAS POWER

Cornfeld said preferred shareholders elect two-thirds of the directors and that he has sufficient voting power to replace the majority of the directors.

Cornfeld also said he was illegally defeated for re-election as a director at the June 30 stock-holders' meeting in Toronto. He said infractions have occurred in the way proxies were solicited and in the way they were voted.

Asked why he wanted to replace the majority of directors, Cornfeld said the present board had failed to bring in outside management help, had not developed new products for the company to sell, and had allowed existing mutual-fund sales to decline 75 per cent in four months.

Meanwhile, IOS plans a major change in its Fund of Funds operation to save it fom a possible run. Its total portfolio was split in two, with non-liquid assets in mineral and real estate holdings frozen until Oct. 1.

These are valued at $217.45 million, or 60 per cent of the total IOS portfolio, and they are to be transferred immediately to a new closed-end fund called Natural Resources Property Corp.

NRPC will issue one certificate for each FOF share, the value set at $11.03, which is expected to drop in trading this week to around $9. The remainder of tht FOF stock will bring $7.44 a share when redeemed, a drop from $10 at issue in 1962, but $11.05 less than the price quoted Friday.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some speculative buying developed during the final hour of trading, but rapeseed prices still closed up to 7⅝ cents lower at the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Early stop-loss selling that met with indifferent buying interest had rapeseed futures sharply lower at the open. The futures moved steadily downwards all day.

Light trading in other commodities was featureless. Oats and barley were neglected most of the day.

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybean futures declined nearly 5 cents under profit-taking and apparent speculative liquidation on the Board of Trade today.

New-crop corn futures advanced more than 3 cents and tended to influence buying of wheat and oats. Soybean oil and meal prices were mostly lower, possibly discounting early a government report that might be bearish on prices.

Gas, Oil Probes To Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee begins an investigation this week into offshore oil production and whether federal restrictions force U.S. consumers to pay higher prices for gasoline.

The Senate commerce anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee has scheduled three days of testimony starting Tuesday.

Coupled with the production-price inquiry into interior department policies will be questions surrounding the long-term efforts of big oil spills and safe-guards for the environment, said Chairman Philip A. Hart, Dem., Mich.

Hart said the interior department has been contributing to higher oil prices by "holding down production to . . . an inefficient level."

"There is question also as to whether more competition could be injected into the bidding for offshore leases if indeed expanding this drilling is a good idea," he said.

"There is one school that feels the artificially high price of oil has been encouraging drilling that harms the environment. We want to examine the possibilities."

Committee aides said there are indications that offshore production could be increased some 500,000 barrels daily — with resulting lower prices.

Project To Open

HAZELTON (CP) — The ceremonial raising of the totem pole carved by five Indian carvers and the dedication of five longhouses by Premier Bennett will take place here next Wednesday at celebrations marking the K'san project in the K'san village five miles north of here in the Skeena area.

Eagle on Last Hole Does It for Rookie

RICHMOND — A 25-year-old rookie professional from Santa Barbara, Calif., thrilled a huge gallery with three perfect shots on the last hole to score an eagle and win the British Columbia Open golf championship by two strokes Sunday.

Brian Allin, a 140-pound Vietnam veteran, showed steely nerves under tremendous pressure to turn near-disaster into his first tournament victory as a pro.

He won $3,000 and the Carling Cup with his seven-under-par total of 67-69-73—209 on the 6,815-yard Richmond Country Club course. Par is 36-36—72.

His last-hole heroics averted what looked like a sure playoff as four other players tied at 211. Rafe Botts (69-69-73) of Los Angeles, Rick Jetter (71-68-72) of San Jose, Calif., Finn Sorenson (71-71-69) of Edmonton and Wayne Vollmer (73-66—72) of Vancouver each received $1,300 from the total $15,000 pot.

Defending champion Bill Wakeham of Victoria and Mexican Open champion Ernesto Perez of Tijuana, both of whom shared the lead after the first round then blew up in Saturday's session, finished tied for sixth with 54-hole totals of 213. They took $750 each.

FELL BACK

Allin, who went into the last round eight strokes under par and two ahead of Botts, lost three strokes to par and fell two behind Vollmer, who charged to seven-under at the turn.

Then Vollmer ran into trouble and they were tied at five-under with three holes left. Allin dropped a stroke behind on the 16th when he scored a five on the par-four hole, but bounced ahead again by birdying the 17th as Vollmer took a one-over five after his approach shot bounced over the sun-baked green.

As they started the 18th, Botts, Sorensen and Jetter had already finished at five-under, and a tie seemed likely.

But Allin out-drove Vollmer for the first time in the round, then drilled a three-iron shot to within four feet of the pin on the par-five hole. Vollmer's approach shot again bounced over, virtually eliminating his chances of snatching victory. The Vancouver pro made a good recovery for a birdy and a tie for second.

With most of the more than 4.000 spectators massed around the green, Allin stepped up and canned the putt for his eagle, touching off an explosion of applause.

ASSISTANT PRO

Allin got out of the service in September and returned to his job as an assistant pro at the Montecito club at Santa Barbara. He entered the B.C. Open after a friend sent him an application form.

Vollmer, who looked a solid choice to win after his first nine holes Sunday, moaned about approach shots that wouldn't hold.

Wakeham, who had won the championship the two previous years, was a good bet to repeat after his opening round 67. But he blew to 77 Saturday in the second round.

"I can't explain it," he said. "I just played badly."

Perez, who also had a 67 in the first round and practically matched Wakeham's Saturday disaster with a 76, said: "I never made a putt."

Top amateur in the tournament was Mike Davis of Portland, Ore., who finished with 74-70-72—216—even par. He got a gold medal and a merchandise prize.

City Stars Earn Trip To Canadian Tourney

KELOWNA (CP) — An all-star team from the Victoria senior amateur baseball league capped a strong comeback Sunday by blasting Vancouver CYO 15-3 in the final of the British Columbia senior championships.

With its back to the wall after losing 5-3 to Vancouver Saturday, the strong-hitting Victoria team was forced to play three games Sunday to win the right to represent the province in the Canadian championship in Brandon, Man., Aug. 28-31.

Victoria started its comeback Sunday by eliminating Kelowna 11-5, then forced a deciding game by stopping the previously unbeaten CYO squad 6-3.

Victoria unleashed a 15-hit attack against Vancouver, in the sudden-death finale, scoring seven runs in the first inning and forcing CYO to use four pitchers.

FIVE HOMERS

Outfielder Gord Strongman batted .524 for Victoria in the three-day, double-knockout event. He hit homers in all five games the winners played and batted in 14 runs.

Strongman had a single, double and home run and five RBIs in the game against Kelowna. He added another three RBIs in Victoria's 6-3 win over Vancouver and three more in the lopsided championship game.

In games Saturday, Victoria beat Kelowna 7-1, a Kootenay all-star team stopped Quesnel 10-5, Kelowna edged the Kootenay squad 3-2 and CYO came from behind to defeat Victoria 5-3.

Rick Mosher's three-hitter helped CYO to a 4-0 shutout over Kootenay while Kelowna clipped Quesnel 9-2 in Friday's openers.

CYO COMES BACK

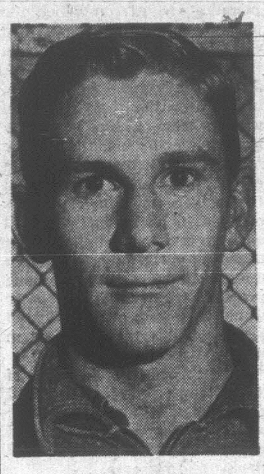
CYO had to come from behind a 3-0 deficit to hand Victoria its only loss on Saturday.

Victoria took a 1-0 lead in the first and made it 3-0 in the sixth on a two-run homer by Strongman off Vancouver ace Larry Webster.

But CYO mounted its comeback on run-scoring singles by Webster and Al Foreman in the seventh and capped the drive in the eighth on hits by Howie Stevens and John Kochan.

Kelowna dropped its 7-1 decision to Victoria as Strongman, Mike McAvoy and George Fuller laced homers to support the five-hit pitching of George Brice.

Royals Blank Cougars; Defaults Hit Schedule



ASH VALDAL

By DAN STINSON

VANCOUVER — Perhaps the most disappointing aspect regarding the Western Canada Soccer League is that it may no longer exist at the conclusion of this season.

Even now, the very existence of the league is in jeopardy.

First, there is a matter of competition. There isn't much.

Second, as a result of the first problem, the games do not draw well.

Third, teams recently have been defaulting their games.

In a league which three teams — Victoria Royals, Vancouver Spartans and Cougars — literally dominate, fans find it difficult to lend their support.

Victoria, playing some of its best soccer of the season, defeated Cougars, 4-0, to remain at least four points ahead of the idle Spartans for first place.

Don't let the score fool you. Royals had to work for this one as Cougars started quickly only to be thwarted by a tough Royal defence.

His first tally came at the 10-minute mark of the first half. Coach Brian Hughes took an indirect free kick into the goal area and Bob Bolitho headed the ball to Mark Robb, who bouned a shot off the cross bar. Valdal picked up the rebound and fired it home from about five yards.

Valdal counted his second goal at 43 minutes when his 15-yard drive was deflected into the goal by Neil Ellett of Cougars, giving Victoria a 2-0 half-time lead.

PRETTY GOAL

It was Brian Robinson, however, who scored the game's most impressive goal. From just over the mid-field line he took a pass from Jim Menzies, moved to within 25 yards of the goal, and boomed a perfectly-aimed drive into the open right side at 15 minutes of the second half.

Fifteen minutes later, Valdal completed the game's scoring, netting his hat trick by picking up Jan Bentley's rebound and scoring again from about five yards.

Graham Lee, Victoria netminder in the second half, blocked a direct kick by Cougars' Chris Bennett at 35 minutes, helping to split the shutout with starter Barry Sadler, who was well-tested in the first half.

Cougars, who controlled most of the play in the opening 45 minutes continued to threaten in the latter part of the contest, but impressive defensive play by Ray Telford and Ron Thompson helped to keep the Mainland side scoreless.

SPARTANS TOP SENATORS

Four scheduled league games were not played during the last week.

On Friday, a Spartan - Sea Tac game was postponed, Winnipeg Blues failed to show up in Victoria on Saturday and in Vancouver Sunday, and Regina Concordia defaulted two games to Edmonton in the Prairie Division.

Spartans made their trip to Seattle Sunday and topped the Sea Tacs 5-1.

Trip to Series For City Colts

PORT COQUITLAM — Victoria All-Stars, repeating their performance of last year, captured the Provincial Colt League baseball championship Sunday by defeating Vancouver Quadra, 3-1, and will now represent Canada in the Colt World Series to be played in Lafayette, Indiana, August 17-26.

All-stars, who will also represent British Columbia in the Canadian tournament at Winnipeg during the Labor Day weekend, turned in solid team efforts behind sparkling one-hit pitching performances in their last two games.

Following Ray Andre's one-hit, six-strikeout display in Victoria's 3-0 victory over Castlegar Saturday, the B.C. champions got both brilliant pitching and timely batting from Glen Wallis in Sunday's title triumph over Quadra, which earlier defeated Castlegar in the losers' bracket final.

Wallis yielded a run to Vancouver in the top of the first inning, but runs by Mike Lee and Dave Anderson in the bottom half of the same frame sent the Stars ahead to stay.

After receiving a base on balls to lead off the bottom half of the opening frame, Lee advanced to second on a passed ball and scored when Anderson's ground ball was overthrown at first.

Tom Craig's sacrifice then advanced Anderson to third and he scored the winning run on Wallis' single.

Wallis added the insurance marked in the fifth inning slamming a double and completing the circuit on another overthrow to first.

Colwood Barrage Paced by Pitcher

Colwood Inn launched a 10-hit barrage Sunday to defeat Labatts 7-2 in the opening game of a best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final playoff series at Heywood Avenue Park.

Pitcher Jack Lundquist, who tossed a five-hit triumph, paced the pounding at the plate by connecting for three singles in three trips and driving in two runs.

Ken Griffin also blasted three hits for the Colwood crew, which made use of three of the four Labs errors while scoring all the team's runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Both Steelers and Gilmour are from the McGinnis loop.

Port Angeles slipped by Gilmour 5-3 in 10-inning affair before defeating Century Inn, 6-2.

Beard Rings Up Tenth Victory

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Frank Beard took a look ahead to this week's Professional Golfers' Association national championship after picking off the $30,000 first prize Sunday in the American Golf Classic.

"No," the soft spoken technician said, "I've never won two consecutive tournaments.

Beard, who almost didn't come to Akron for the $150,000 event, fired a conservative 71, one-over par, on the demanding 7,180-yard Firestone layout in the final round.

He had 276 strokes, two fewer than Jack Nicklaus, Bruce Crampton and Tommy Aaron who earned $11,600 each.

Toronto's George Knudson fired a 67 Sunday, lowest score of the day and wound up at 282. He earned $3,180.

Of the players who had a chance to challenge Beard, only Nicklaus could break par. He had a 69. Crampton took a 71 and Aaron finished at 72.

The victory was the 10th of his career and second of the season for Beard, who didn't arrive until Wednesday night, just hours before the tournament's start, because he and his wife became the parents of their fourth child a day earlier.

"I really didn't decide to come until the baby was born and I knew everything was all right at home. Actually, it was my mother who urged me to come."

Reed, 'Bomb' Wreck Ticats

HAMILTON (CP) — George Reed descended on Hamilton Saturday night and Saskatchewan Roughriders burst the Tiger-Cat bubble, scraping a 23-22 win in the season's first Canadian Football League interlocking game played before 25,135 fans.

The victory was Saskatchewan's first in Hamilton's Civic Stadium since the interlocking schedule started in 1962, and the 'Riders hadn't defeated the Ticats anywhere since 1967.

Reed, deceptively strong at 205 pounds, crashed through the usually brutal Hamilton defensive line with such ease that Ticat coach Joe Restic admitted after the game the Westerners had found a weak spot in what many considered one of the toughest defensive units in the country.

Reed carried 36 times—more than the entire Hamilton club did in the game—including 34 rushes for 199 yards. He also scored the Roughriders' first touchdown.

BOMB DOES IT

But despite Reed's efforts and Saskatchewan's domination of play, it took a 91-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Ron Lancaster to speedster Silas McKinney to decide the issue.

Lancaster scored the other Saskatchewan touchdown from one-yard out while Jack Abendschan booted a 24-yard field goal and two converts.

Ed Buchanan was Hamilton's most effective weapon when the Ticats could get hold of the ball (they used only 34 offensive plays in the game). He rolled up 105 yards on eight carries, including a 77-yard touchdown romp, and took four Joe Zuger passes for 50 yards.

The man who was expected to set a CFL career scoring mark, Tommy Joe Coffey, missed by two points. He entered the game with 745 points, five behind Jackie Parker, current coach of the WFC's British Columbia Lions who ended his career with 750.

But Coffey was held to just four points, converting touchdowns by Buchanan, John Manel and Bill Starr and kicking a single on a 47-yard field goal attempt that went wide.

Despite bruising play by both teams, only Saskatchewan's Bobby Thompson was injured seriously enough to put him on thesideline. Coach Eagle Keys said the injury was minor, but likely would keep Thompson out of the Roughriders' next game, Tuesday night in Ottawa against the Rough Riders.

CITY ATHLETES WIN TITLES

Record Vault Highlights Meet

Three Victoria athletes collected titles Sunday and another missed a triumph by an eyelash on the final day of the two-day B.C. open track and field championships at Vancouver.

Vicky Hammond won the women's long jump with a leap of 16 feet, 7½ inches, Dave Weicker was timed in 1:54.4 as he won the 800-metre final and Tom Antonson earned the triple-jump crown with an effort of 44 feet, 6⅝ inches.

Another Victorian, Jill Pelland barely missed her second title of the meet in a dual with Vancouver's Peggy Busck in the women's 200-metre hurdles. Both were time in 28 seconds flat, one-tenth of a second off the Canadian record, but judges gave first place to Miss Busch.

Mill Pelland cracked the victory circle Saturday in the 100-metre hurdles, nipping Victoria Track Club mate Penny May by one-tenth of a second as she finished in 14.4 seconds.

Jill was fifth in the 100-metre sprint, won in 11.6 by Vancouver's Stephanie Berto, who also won the 200-metre final Sunday in 24.1.

Victoria field-event ace Lorna McHattie, won the discuss Saturday with a toss of 113 feet, 7¼ inches after finishing a close second to Vancouver rival Leona Sparrow in the javelin.

Other mainland winners included Gary Salmond (hammer), Ziguart Strauts (discuss) and Jerry Tighe (10,000 metres).

Time Diagnosis Key to Efficiency

By PETER COSSETTE
Kates, Peat, Marwick & Co.

It has been estimated that knowledge in the world has doubled between 1900 and 1950 and doubled again between 1950 and 1960. At this rate the manager in the mid-seventies will be faced with an environment that will tax his management skills to the limit. In spite of a large number of new tools and techniques to help him, his most important and shrinking commodity will be his own time.

Time is of vital importance to the manager. Hours and days pass with alarming speed; before he can make better use of his time, however, he must have clearly defined objectives. Seven practical steps to time saving are: time diagnosis — an accurate and objective record of every minute of the day; intelligent discrimination with regard to the tasks that the manager has to undertake himself; delegation of matters that can well be dealt with by someone else; a close examination of the organization structure; improved communications; time for concentration; and proper planning.

Detailed Record

Many managers know they have been busy all day but may not be able to give a precise account of their duties. To know how he spends his time a manager should have a consistent and detailed record of his performance during every working hour. This will show him how many hours he has spent "stamping out brush fires", doing things that did not need to be done or were out of sequence in the scheme of priorities, and giving valuable time to people who did not have a right to it. He is then in a position to compare his record with an ideal time plan suited to the job he should be doing. He may need help in deciding exactly what that job should be but a detailed analysis of time used is an essential prerequisite to remedial action.

This diagnosis leads naturally to a phase of "discrimination," where the manager can decide what it is that he is doing that need not be done at all, or could be done by somebody else. For example, how many managers go to functions that do not require their participation, do not impart new knowledge or are of little value for business development? How many hold large meetings regularly where time is wasted hearing from people who have no immediate concern for the matter under discussion? How many managers open their own mail, answer their own telephones, make their own appointments? The number is tragically large.

In Real Trouble

From an analysis of how a manager spends his working day will come a definition of tasks that can be done by somebody else. The worst thing that can happen in a business is to mix functions so that no one but the manager bears the responsibility. When that happens the company is in real trouble. No company can operate effectively unless work is divided and yet many managers cannot forget their antecedents and even when they are at the top of the organization they still keep a finger in production, marketing or personnel or wherever it was they came from, much to the chagrin of the heads of those departments.

A manager who is continually chasing his shadow in a vain attempt to do all the things he thinks should be done may be suffering from the effects of poor organization. He may have organized his company badly and have too many people reporting to him with a mass of trivia. A hard look at his organization and how it functions may bring more relief from time pressure than he thought could be possible.

Communication is perhaps the single most important facet of the manger's job. It is also the most time-consuming unless it is logically and effectively handled. The methods the manager employs and the use he makes of the mechanical and electronic aids available will, to a large degree, determine not save but how effectively he will communicate. While it may not only how much time he can be possible to emulate Churchill or Eisenhower and have all reports reduced to one sheet of foolscap, with a little planning and care he will be able to receive his information in a short form that can be rapidly assimilated.

When the average person is considering a complex problem he needs a certain amount of uninterrupted time to comprehend the situation. Obviously, the more often he is interrupted the longer it will take him to solve the problem or complete the work. So it is with the manager. He may handle a tremendous amount of fairly superficial work in which he is making decisions almost intuitively, but projects needing penetrating analysis and study will certainly require time and concentration of time.

Careful Planning

To implement many of these suggestions will require the most careful planning. There are many planning aids and one of the most effective is a large planning board on which the whole year's planned activities can be seen at a glance. Priorities must be established, dictated by their importance, urgency or the time frame in which they must be done. Having firmly established the priorities, the manager should record his plan of action and then adhere to it as closely as possible. Obviously it will undergo revision and change but this does not in any way lessen the effectiveness of the planning process, for without it there would be a lack of co-ordinated activity and a resulting loss in time and efficiency.

A vigorous application of these steps may well lead the manager to that happy state where results can be achieved without excessive personal strains and stresses.

Canadian International Power Co. Ltd. reports net earnings for the 12 months ended July 30 of $13.88 million or $4.78 a share, up from $12.55 million or $4.34 in the previous 12-month period.

President John Kazakoff said second-quarter results illustrate the "impressive growth pattern" of the company, which operates electric light and power services in Venezuela, El Salvador, Bolivia and Barbados.

Morse Corp.

Robert Morse Corp. reports consolidated net income before taxes and extraordinary items of $623,000, for a net loss of $227,000 after taxes for the six months ended June 30, 1970.

Consolidated net income on the same basis a year earlier was $1.97 million.

The company said the loss was due to the fact that most profit was earned in corporate units paying full income taxes while losses were in units not now taxable.

Dominion Bridge

Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. reports unaudited consolidated net earnings of $2.4 million or 93 cents a share for the six months ended June 30 against $1.2 million or 47 cents a share in the six-month period ended April 30, 1969.

The company last year changed its fiscal year-end from Oct. 31 to Dec. 31.

Mackenzie McMurry, president, attributed the growth in earnings to a 40 per cent increase in sales. Sales for the first six months this year were $51.2 million.

National Nursing

Operating results for the 12 months ended May 31 show net income of $605,371 for National Nursing Homes Ltd., which had $111,205 in the same span a year ago.

Earnings were based on revenue of $4.8 million, against $3.4 million.

During the year, National added 521 beds to its 1,300 total in Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and B.C. private hospitals.

Aquitaine

Financial results for the first six months of 1970 were exceptionally higher at $6.59 million net income before an extraordinary item, reports Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd.

The extra item added $135,500 to the net, making it $6.7 million or 36 cents a share, compared with $2.88 million (17.3 cents) in the period a year ago.

Revenues rose from $6.2 million to $11.2 million, or from $3.5 million to $8.2 million after expenses.

American Smelting

The company had slightly less sales revenue in the first six months, although in the quarter ended June 30 the figure rose from $193.98 million to $203.6 million. For the half-year, ASARCO reported $384 million against $389.77 million revenue.

Earnings in the quarter were $30.6 million ($24 million), and in the six months $61.75 million ($47.7 million). In per share terms, earnings were $1.07 (83 cents) and $2.14 ($1.64), respectively.

LIVING IT UP

Four Good Things In Two Off Days

By Jack Scott

Being some adventures I enjoyed in Victoria over the weekend:

★ ★ ★

I enjoyed the morning service at the Chinese Presbyterian Church at Blanshard and North Park, where my handsome friend Rev. Edward Ling is the pastor, though exactly half The Message went in one ear and out the other.

Edward conducts a bilingual service because some of the older Chinese here are short on English and some of the younger second and third generation Canadian Chinese are short on Cantonese:

The hymns are sung simultaneously in both languages until east and west meet thunderously in the common tongue of Latin with "Amen."

Scott

What surprised me most was that Cantonese, so often parodied as a sing-song twittering, is immensely powerful in rhythm and emphasis.

Edward and his guest, Wing Mak, who is soon to be ordained, told me that each language has peculiar advantages over the other. The English use of alliteratives for dramatic effect and the cadences of multi-syllable words aren't possible in Chinese since one sound represents one word. On the other hand a preacher who manages 120 words a minute in English can get 400 across in Cantonese in the same time which, depending upon the preacher, may either shorten the sermon or lengthen the proposition.

Edward told me that it's uncharacteristic of the Chinese to visualize heavenly beings, but that angels are depicted in church magazines with Occidental, rather than Oriental, faces, simply because Presbyterian is an imported religion and the western tradition is respected.

Would God, Himself, be imagined as a Chinese by a Chinese? They simply didn't know.

I enjoyed a quiet hour in the nook at the Art Gallery currently graced with the paintings of Emily Carr, my own three favorites being "Deep Woods," "Deep Forest" and "Among The Trees."

The miracle of her genius in painting the British Columbia rain forest, as I measure it, is that I get the same feeling of peace, wonder and awe sitting in front of these canvasses that I get when I'm deep in the Scott Do-It-Yourself National Park that I've been creating on Salt Spring Island these past 20 years.

Mark Kearley, in a talk to students at Brentwood College, came closest, I think, to explaining why this should be so.

"When you look at Emily Carr's trees," he advised the youngsters, "remember always that to her the whole forest was alive. It was a Mystic Place, the dwelling of that Great Spirit who gives Life to all things. For her the trees lived. Some danced — some almost skipped, pirouetting and spinning in the gayest fashion, some trail their branches majestically as they turn: others are gnarled and old, and of immense height. Some are almost threatening, their great heavy branches hang down like the wings of doom, or curtains of gloom and eternal silence. Some — like burning brush of old — are bright with fire, yet are not consumed. But all of them, all of them are alive, suffused with life and movement and rhythm."

It is a remarkable thing, but demonstrably true, that if you look into an Emily Carr for just a few minutes you will suddenly scent the fragrance of evergreens.

I enjoyed a splendid, authentic Japanese dinner at the Maiko Gardens in Bastion Square, newest of our town's exotic eating places, already a run-away success. "Maiko," by the way, loosely translates as "apprentice geisha dancer." It's about all that's missing in this pleasant nook.

The man with the idea is a 41-year-old one-time piano salesman with the singularly un-Nipponese name of Art Smith who became interested in things Japanese when he started importing Yamaha pianos. Such are the accidents that shape men's lives. He's in partnership with Mieko and Yuriko, two charming, Japanese-born experts in their native cuisine who, with four other Japanese girls, provide tender, loving care from the moment you doff your shoes at the door.

You dine, of course, in your own little room at low tables (there's a well under there for long, occidental legs unaccustomed to pleating) and your Sukiyaki (sliced beef with fresh mushrooms, bamboo shoots and whatnot) is barbecued by the kimona-clad girls on your own habachi. So there's all sorts of involvement.

Watch for the Yakitori, which is barbecued chicken, the Tempura, which is deep-fried shrimp, fish and vegetables in a light batter and the Beef Teriyaki, all served with warmed Kiku Masamune saki, the Japanese rice wine that has a sneaky bite — so watch that, too, (In Japan, it should be noted, the Japanese are more likely to be drinking Haig & Haig.)

If you've a mind to—and very few have—the fresh octopus is a whole new taste sensation.

I enjoyed a round of golf at Royal Colwood, mercilessly humbling my opponent, and realized anew that it is one of the truly fine courses of the world.

One remarkable thing about this 6,539-yard, par 70, layout is that it plays almost exactly as it did when A. V. Macan designed it nearly 60 years ago on property purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company by James Dunsmuir. Even the sand traps, all 80, are the same.

The "Royal" in Royal Colwood was conferred by Edward VIII who, as Prince of Wales, played it in 1935 and, like most everyone, loved it. There's no record of the Prince's scores (he was, I'm told, a five handicap), but the course record is 65, held by several players, including Lawrie Kerr, eight times city champion.

Oak Bay and Gorge Vale are more scenic courses, but the magnificent turf of Colwood can hardly be surpassed anywhere. So long as you're on the fairway your ball is sitting up there, begging to be kissed.

Sweda and his crew have the staggering task of maintaining some 60 acres of lush lawn, year in and year out, whatever the weather, with as many as 400 players a day hacking at it. The whole procedure is a curiously arbitrary exercise in horticultural. "We force the hell out of the grass and we cut it shorter than nature meant it to be," Gerry told me, "so you're always pushing for growth just to cut it off. Crazy, isn't it?"

Crazy or not, it's a magnificent achievement.

Oh, and a footnote for first-time Colwood players: That baronial building above the 18th green, once the clubhouse, is now the residence of St. Mary's Priory so remember, when you miss that putt, that the gentle sisters are listening.

Regional Study Of Services Urged

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he hopes the Greater Victoria Regional District Board will undertake a study of co-ordination of some municipal services.

Campbell indicated he has dropped any hope that the four major municipalities in the region will undertake such a study following what he called "very lukewarm" reaction to his June 25 requests for such a study.

Campbell said he has discussed the question of a regional study with board chirman Hugh Curtis.

It would involve possibly two or three of the suggested co-ordination areas.

In his letters to the four municipalities of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, Campbell listed police and fire protection, garbage disposal, assessment machinery, accounting and auditing procedures, purchasing and public works equipment as potential areas in which efficiencies might be made.

The minister said it is "pointless" to pursue a voluntary study by the four main municipalities unless some "enthusiasm" is evident on all sides.

Victoria referred Campbell's request to a committee after indicating approval, Saanich and Oak Bay backed it and esquimalt turned it down.

Campbell said the regional approach would now seem to be the most likely way of getting an over-all study under way. He said he hoped that a majority of the regional board would support a partial co-ordination study.

Campbell's letter in June to the four mayors "strongly" suggested they look at services which might be co-ordinated. It was one of a lengthy series of moves by the minister to promote greater efficiency in municipal services which he has described as "running to stay in the same place" in the face of rising costs.

New Plan For Island 'Different'

The first one was withdrawn by the Capital Regional District board after islanders complained it would make many business properties non-conforming.

Regional planner Tony Roberts said today a number of meetings have been held with the Salt Spring Island Advisory Planning Commission "and we have come up with another draft and a different approach."

Asked whether it solves the non-conforming problem, he said "we've come with a solution. I don't want to describe it right now."

Roberts said it is possible the new draft will come before the regional board later this month in bylaw form.

2 Persons Killed In Bridge Crash

Two people were killed and a third was seriously injured early Sunday morning when a late-model convertible slammed into a bridge abutment in Saanich.

★

Killed in the crash at 1:40 a.m. on the Trans-Canada Highway were Linda Fitton, 19, of 107 Quincy, and John Edward O'Flynn, 27, of 828 Hockley.

★

Saanich police said the car, outbound on the highway, was apparently approaching the bridge at the Interurban overpass when it went out of control, veered across the centre line and smashed into the concrete abutment at the south side of the east end of the bridge.

Driver of the car has not been determined.

Police investigation into the accident is continuing.

FAMILY SERVICE SEEKS BRANCH IN ROYAL OAK

The Family and Children's Service is looking for a new branch office but hasn't found a place yet, an official said today.

The new branch was started at 3621 Quadra Street in mid-June, before rezoning approval was given. When the application came before Saanich council, it was rejected.

The official said the premises have been vacated and the work is being carried on from the main office on Fort Street.

Family and marital counselling would have been provided at the branch, closer to the area being served than Fort Street.

"We are hoping to find another place, in the Quadra-Royal Oak area," said the official.

HOT ON THE TRAIL

Three Alarm Boxes Later, He . . .

He lit out running, but he didn't stop at the nearest house to telephone, and he didn't stop at the first fire alarm box at the corner.

He didn't even stop at the second fire box a few blocks down the street.

He didn't stop, in fact, until he had made it all the way to the Century Inn beer parlor.

By the time the alarm came in what had started as a simple chesterfield fire had spread to the floor and the walls, doing $500 damage to the residence of B.C. Browning.

BEACON 'FESTIVAL'

A Better Life For Everyone

By GINNY GALT

The Voice of Women's Festival of Life in Beacon Hill Park Saturday peacefully marked the 25th anniversary of the day the atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima.

And, although the commemoration was two days late, protest groups of all shapes and sizes turned up to quietly urge their plans of action for a better world.

The Victoria Abortion Reform Committee did it with signs. Make Love, Not Babies. Stop Heir Pollution. Control Your Local Stork.

A local rock band did it quietly with music. quietly because park officials asked them to turn it down. It turned out that you need a special permit for rock bands, and the Voice of Women didn't have one.

VoW president Mavis de Girolamo, applied to city council for a permit Wednesday, but was turned down. The reason given was that nearby high-rise residents would object to the noise. So two rock bands scheduled to play later in the day didn't play.

The 10-hour festival, which started at noon, attracted a total of about 600 people, who came and went all day.

Mrs. Waveney Burchill, promoting Canadian aid for Vietnam civilians, was asking people to knit clothing for Vietnamese children. Ten knitters signed up.

A Save Our Seas sign drew people to a booth where they were asked to sign a petition requesting that the federal government make Georgia Strait an underwater national park.

The Save Our Trees people from Begbie Street were there too.

One of the day's highlights was the Saanich Silver Threads band, which has been playing together for just over a year. The two fiddlers, pianist, and countless harmonica players played all the oldies but goodies.

Home on the Range. McNamara's Band. Two of them did the highland fling and people sang along.

Mrs. de Girolamo asked people, as they celebrated the life and joy of the community, to turn their thoughts for a few brief moments to the anniversary they were commemorating. — "a terrible and bloody tragedy which we must still strive to overcome."

●

And while there were no doves fluttering around when she recited The Dove Is Dead, a family of swallows kept swooping through Cameron Bandshell.

The festival's keynote speaker was University of British Columbia zoology professor, Robin Harger.

He said the "Hiroshima atrocity" happened in the first place because the magnitude of the atomic bomb as a weapon compelled its use in the hands of people who had become obsessed with the idea of vengance and reprisal.

"The decision to use that bomb reflected the essence of fascism on this continent," Harger said.

Harger said if man is to survive, people must join action groups.

"It's all right to talk in church and universities but unless people act on their grandiose ideas, nothing will get done," said Harger, an active member of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

Nerve Gas En Route To Ocean

Times News Services

RICHMOND, Ky. — A closely guarded freight train, loaded with potentially deadly nerve gas rockets, began its slow journey to the sea today from an army arsenal here.

A second 46-car train, carrying the same cargo and similarly protected by elaborate safety measures, was to leave Anniston, Ala., this afternoon.

Their destination, expected to be reached after 37-hour, 600-mile trips over classified routes, was the Sunny Point military terminal near Wilmington, N.C. The deteriorating Second World War rockets will be shipped from here to a point in the Atlantic Ocean 282 miles off Florida and dumped in 16,000 feet of water.

The trains together contain 418 vaults, concrete and steel jacketed, with 30 nerve gas rockets to the vault.

The army kept the routes secret but said the shipments would move through thinly populated areas. By highway, it is about 540 miles from Anniston and about 645 miles from Richmond to the North Carolina coast.

The army said there is no danger of leakage from the vaults.

Army chemical experts will accompany the shipments and their mechanical gas-leak dectors will be backed up by 12 rabbits and 12 pigeons, highly sensitive to gas.

Army spokesman said similar shipments in the future will be unnecessary because the army is developing a method of decomposing the gas at the military bases where it is stored.

CLAIM CITIES ON ROUTE

Congressional sources said the Anniston train will pass through the Georgia cities of Bremen, Griffin, Macon and Athens before angling up through the Carolinas to an ocean terminal at Sunny Point, N.C.

The train is to move no faster than 35 miles an hour.

Gov. Lester Maddox, of Georgia offered to ride atop the train to demonstrate his confidence in the army's safety precautions. The army said it had no orders permitting him aboard.

But Representative Tim Lee Carter (Rep. Ky.) says he will be on the Blue Grass Depot train until it leaves Kentucky "to help allay fear among the residents."

Dissent has been expressed by a number of persons, among them Florida Gov. Claude Kirk, three congressmen from his state and U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations.

Thant said disposal of the gas in international waters would violate a UN General

PLUMBERS REJECT MEDIATION OFFER

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. construction industry appears headed for another deadlock following rejection by a fifth union Sunday of settlement proposals made by a special mediator.

The plumber's union voted 90 per cent against accepting proposals by the mediator, deputy labor minister Bill Sands.

Other unions which have also rejected Sands' proposals are the bricklayers, laborers, heat and frost insulators and the tunnel and rock workers.

And Teamsters president Ed Lawson said that union's negotiating committee also is recommending that its members reject a settlement proposal of 19 per cent over two years on an average rate of $4.50 an hour.

Insurance Bill Showdown Seen

WINNIPEG (CP) — An amendment that could produce a key showdown vote on the NDP government's compulsory government automobile insurance bill went before the Manitoba legislature today.

The motion, introduced by Liberal House Leader Gordon Johnston, would allow private companies to sell basic coverage in competition with the proposed Manitoba Insurance Corp. (See also Page 2.)

It would mean a "free choice" insurance plan as opposed to the state monopoly on which the government is insisting.

Success of the amendment would kill the key principle of the bill and almost certainly lead to a general election.

Mr. Johnston introduced his amendment shortly after the house went into committee of the whole for clause-by-clause study of the bill.

Meantime, Premier Ed Schreyer gave notice of a number of government amendments to be considered later.

They included establishment of an advisory board of not fewer than five members, which would be consulted on details of the insurance scheme and on transitional assistance for those losing business or employment under the advent of the state-run plan.

Quebec Workers Forced to Return

QUEBEC (CP) — Construction workers began returning to their jobs today following the passage Saturday of tough legislation by the Quebec national assembly aimed at ending a province-wide strike.

Officials of the Confederation of National Trade Unions which represents most of the workers had recommended the return to work although CNTU President Marcel Pepin described the legislation as a "bludgeon law and a tomahawk law."

Renewed activity at large and small building projects throughout the provincial capital was reported early today.

The emergency legislation was presented Friday by Labor Minister Pierre Laporte at a special session of the national assembly called to deal with the strike.

Pickets Close Haney

Postal workers stayed off the job at a number of post offices in British Columbia today and threw picket lines around the tiny office at Haney where postmen have ignored union instructions to take rotating strike action.

The 25 Haney postal workers had consistently rebuffed union instructions to strike but today were prevented from going to work by the picket line.

Postmen were on strike today in the Vancouver, North and West Vancouver, Burnaby, Richmond and Delta, all in the Greater Vancouver area, and in Kamloops.

NORMAL HERE

It was business-as-usual in Victoria today, but Ken Stofer, public relations officer for the main post office, indicated local postal employees could be locked out Tuesday as a result of today's strike in Vancouver.

He said it all depends on whether there is enough mail available Tuesday to warrant sorting and delivering staffs.

Jim McCall, union strike coordinator for the lower B.C. Mainland, said Haney was the only post office in the country where workers had failed to support the strike. He said the union decided to take picket action following published reports that Haney workers were staying on the job.

CAT OUT OF BAG

He said that until the Haney rebellion became general knowledge, the union had looked upon it as an internal union problem to be dealt with following settlement of the national dispute.

He added that union members had decided to take the picketing action on their own after the Haney workers "blabbed to the newspapers,

Kidnappers Execute U.S. Aide in Uruguay

Times News Services

MONTEVIDEO — The Tupamaro guerrillas executed American police expert Daniel A. Mitrione because the Uruguayan government refused to release an estimated 150 political prisoners as ransom for him and two other kidnapped foreign officials.

Unconfirmed reports circulated that a second body had been found, but the police said nothing.

Mitrione's body was found today bound and gagged in a bloodstained stolen car parked on a city street. He had been shot twice in the head.

Radio Monte Carlo said the body also had a bandaged bullet wound in the chest. Mitrione was reported to have received such a wound when he was abducted 10 days ago.

The body of the 50-year-old father of nine children was found, with his hands chained together and his white hair dyed black, by a two-man police patrol searching for the stolen car.

Meanwhile, more than 5,000 troops and police searching for the three kidnapped men made more than 100 arrests. Those arrested included nine suspected members of the Tupamaro guerrillas, including their leader, and a doctor believed to have treated Mitrione, of Richmond, Ind., for his earlier bullet wound.

Local radio stations received several anonymous telephone calls telling of Mitrione's death shortly after noon Sunday, the time a Tupamaros communique had said the adviser would be killed if the government did not free all of its political prisoners.

The telephone callers also said Mitrione's execution would be followed by those of two other hostages: Brizilian Consul Aloysio Mares Dias Gomide, 41, and Claude L. Fly, 65, an American agronomist employed by the Uruguayan government.

'PRAY FOR ME'

Fly's wife, in Montevideo, received a letter from her husband Sunday. He wrote: "Please don't worry. I am well. Pray for me and wait. Go home, they are feeding me. Help me please. Always my love, Claude."

In a post script, he added: "They have my glasses. I cannot read without my old pair, but they won't give them to me."

Mitrione and Dias Gomide were kidnapped July 31. Fly was lured from a laboratory Friday by men claiming to be bodyguards assigned by the government.

The Tupamaros, a leftist guerrilla group organized seven years ago, demanded the release of all political prisoners held by the government. President Jorge Pacheco Areco refused, saying the Tupamaros were "common criminals" and those held by the government were not political prisoners.

Pacheco Areco met with his 11 cabinet members and other top officials Sunday night and called a joint session of Congress today to suspend such individual rights as trial guarantees and habeas corpus.

REACTION ANGRY

Several congressmen proposed reinstatement of the death penalty, which was banned many years ago. There was also an unconfirmed report that a group of right-wing extremists calling themselves the "Death Squad," like the killer squads of police vigilantes in Brazil, had threatened reprisals against the families of suspected Tupamaros.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Adair broadcast an appeal for mercy 20 minutes before the noon deadline Sunday, saying the assassination of Mitrione "would be a high crime, not only against the traditions of Western society but also against humanity."

"In the name of Mrs. Mitrione, and in those of his

Extremists in Party Threaten Ulster PM

BELFAST (Reuters) — Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark, back from a Spanish vacation, faced threats today within his Unionist party to topple him from power in riot-torn Northern Ireland.

His first official engagement was scheduled for tonight when he planned to attend a meeting of his constituency association. It was believed to be preparing a proposal of no confidence.

He gave little indication of being worried when he talked to reporters Sunday night and sidestepped questions about possible resigning.

Only two hours before he arrived from Spain Sunday an explosion rocked Magherafelt, the constituency, 30 miles west of Belfast. It was the fifth major bomb blast during the weekend and was believed to be a studied welcome-home insult.

Peace Talk Arrangements Show Unexpected Progress

TEL AVIV (CP) — As the ceasefire along the Suez canal entered its third day today, Reuters news agency quoted Israeli sources as saying an unexpectedly rapid solution has been found to procedural arrangements for the proposed Middle East peace talks.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel planned flying Wednesday to New York to see Gunnar Jarring, the United Nations mediator charged with arranging direct negotiations with Egypt and Jordan, the sources said.

The sources said substantive issues dealing with future borders and the withdrawal of Israeli forces would come next, in Jarring's talks.

At a five-hour session Sunday, the Israeli cabinet heard a report from Lt. Gen. Yitzak Rabin, the Israeli ambassador in Washington, who was expected to return to the U.S. with Eban.

QUIET IN WEST

As the diplomatic tempo quickened, an Israeli army spokesman reported silence on the western front, with Egyptian forces along the canal observing the ceasefire which came into effect at midnight Friday night.

But Israeli troops facing Syria, Jordan and Lebanon engaged in clashes with Palestinian Arab guerrillas strongly opposed to the current peace bid.

Guerrilla attacks on villages near the Lebanese border led to the first retaliatory air raid Sunday by Israel across the frontier since the ceasefire. Lebanon is not included in the U.S. peace plan.

The targets attacked were on the southwestern slopes of Mount Hermon east of the Hasbani River.
